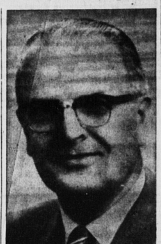
CUNA Society Official Speaks At Credit Union Day Banquet

C. Gordon Smith, managing director for Canada of the Cuna Mutual Insurance Society, was the special guest speaker last night at the annual Credit Union Day banquet held at the Charlottetown YMCA. His topic was the "Historical Significance of the Credit Union Movement".



C. GORDON SMITH

More than 100 guests, including Lieutenant-Governor W. J. MacDonald, attended the banquet. All Island Credit Unions were represented.

A film entitled "People of Kolevu" was shown illustrating how a community in the Fiji Islands started from scratch and formed a credit union enabling them to buy fishing equipment and to support their livelihood.

Also attending the banquet were J. Keir Duggan, past president of the P.E.I. Credit Union League who chaired the session; Edmond Gallant, president of the Island League; Leo Blacquiere, vice - president; George Mullally, secretary; Theodore Sabine, treasurer, and Gilbert Gaudet, Maurice Cummiskey and Bernard MacMillan, directors, and Rev. V. Murnaghan representing the extension department of St. Dunstan's University.

URGES SUPPORT

In his address, Mr. Smith urged the people of P.E.I. to continue supporting the credit union program to make it possible for the common man to control his financial affairs.

Speaking on the International Credit Union Day theme "Helping Hands in Many Lands" and on the 116th anniversary of credit unions throughout the world he added that "through our contributions of nine cents per member we are providing funds necessary to organize and promote credit unions in the so-called under-developed countries where the struggle of ideologies goes on.

"Credit unions are the instruments through which these people can turn back the tide of Communism", he said.
