Howe Laments Losing Engineers

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Production Minister Howe said Thursday his department constantly is losing key engineers to private industry.

"The situation is becoming more serious every month because of the traffic demand for engineers," he told the Commons during discussion of his department's spending estimates.

Key engineers were leaving the department for higher salaries paid by industry. Private companies were prepared to pay good engineers more than double the salaries they receive in the government service.

Raft Not Heard From Since July 5

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Amateur radio operators in St. Pierre St. Pierre-Miquelon, have given up trying to contact the floating raft l'Egare.

The raft and its three-man crew of Frenchmen have not been contacted since July 5, when they received supplies from the American transport ship Collan.

The amateur operators say l'Egare may have radio trouble, but are contacting hams on the Azores Island in case the raft has floated within their range.

Last position of the raft, which left here May 24, was 1,000 miles east of Halifax. One operator estimates l'Egare may have floated another 1,000 miles since July 5.

Originally, l'Egare had a four-man crew but the cook, Jose Martinez, was taken from the raft by a fishing vessel after a severe case of seasickness.

IT IS OUR DIFFERENCES THAT BIND US TOGETHER

"He was rich where I was poor, and he supplied my wants the more."

As his uniqueness fitted mine. Opposite are often the closest comrades because the gifts of each supplement the powers of the other. One can hardly imagine temperaments and attainments more different than those of Luther and Melancthon, yet each was indispensable to the other and both together made a contribution of priceless worth to the Reformation.

Similarly men as different as John Milton and Oliver Cromwell supplemented each other's gifts, the one the pen, the other the sword of the English Revolution. John and Charles Wesley had the same spiritual experience and served the same spiritual ends, but their talents differed as widely as those of the men just mentioned. John the preacher and organizer and Charles the poet of Methodism.

It is a grave error that because we differ we must stand apart: the fact is that just because we differ we need each other in our spiritual experience and service. A young scholar once said: "Now there's Miss B...; there is no question that the genuineness of her religion, but she is so different from us that we could never belong to the same church." As a matter of fact, he needed what she had to contribute, and her character and influence would have been deeper and stronger far if she had been willing to listen to him.

AS A TEAM

In New Testament times there was a marked contrast between St. Peter, the enthusiast and man of action and St. John, the thinker and mystic; yet together they were a team in the deepest things guided and enriched the infant church.

Christianity began as a fellowship. The men and women who waited "for the promise of the Father" between Christ's Ascension and Pentecost, had in common the central facts of our faith. Together they had been companions of Jesus all through His ministry; they had been witnesses of His death and resurrection; they had obeyed His instructions to "tarry in Jerusalem until endued with power from on high."

Then came the baptism of the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost when the exalted Christ poured out on them the Holy Spirit whom He had received at His Baptism. This transforming endowment they received as a company; their religion became a communion; each new experience they shared as it came. There is no place in spiritual religion for the hermit; it is in and through the Christian community that the power of God is exerted.

FIRST NEED

In the same way we need each other now. The first necessity for a young person coming alone into a great city is spiritual fellowship. We were never intended to fight on battles alone. Kipling pictures a soldier as praying: "God sent us a trusty chum", here he spoke for everyone.

Once a young man from the country came into the city to start a new career. At the same time, he felt he was being defeated in his struggle for self-mastery, and in a fit of desperation, he confided his problem to the only man he knew. Immediately he found the understanding and advice he needed, and the relief and release that the new fellowship brought him was little short of a miracle.

Often our companionship is only on the surface, sharing the pleasure and the activities of the world around us, but never reaching down to the real problems of the soul. This is not enough.

Everyone needs that fellowship of the spirit for which we were created. Each person's family background, disposition, intellectual gifts and attainments and purpose in life qualify him to find something in God peculiarly his own. But his brother, a personality as distinctive as his, is also qualified to find something in God peculiarly his own, and each need what the other has acquired.

Each will be enriched by a fellowship in which the deepest in them is shared.

I speak from experience. In solitude my religious progress would have been along lines narrow and exclusive; in fellowship with others the life of Christ broadened and deepened, and the joys of salvation and the results of service in the Christian community made one's religion rich and full.

One must open his heart to others if he expects them to open their hearts to him. The silent Christian denies himself the support and inspiration that he needs. Of course, it is personal fellowship with Christ that fits us for fellowship with one another. He is the centre of all spiritual communion, and, having Him, we are of value to other believers, and when they are and have in him is precious to us.

HAT-TIPPING FATAL

LONDON (AP) — The old-fashioned courtesy of hat tipping was blamed Thursday for the death of a retired British Army officer. Testifying at an inquest into the death of Lt.-Col. Edgar Bennett, his sister, said: "He'd taken me shopping in his car. As I left him he got out of his car... said 'goodbye' and raised his hat." At that moment the colonel was struck by a truck. He died in hospital the following day.

PHONE FAILURE
HALIFAX (CP) An unexplained power surge knocked out 10 of 21 telephone circuits between Halifax and Sydney for about three hours Wednesday night. The p.m.

Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd. said long distance traffic was not hampered, however. The company reported the circuit failures occurred at 5:45

CARS

by Earle MacLeod

You're driving merrily along at a good highway clip on one of these warm sunny days. You have to slow down at a traffic jam. Suddenly the car stalls and won't restart.

It's obviously the fuel pump, you say, and sometimes it is. But one of the possible causes people seldom think about is "vapor lock".

It's a mysterious thing, and since it's a condition you can't see, vapor lock is a dilemma that's not too well understood.

But if you remember about it, you may save yourself the expense of a new fuel pump.

Vapor lock usually happens in the season's first warm days when some service stations haven't received their supply of summer-time gas. The difference is important, for in the winter gasoline is made to vaporize easily for ready starts. In the summertime, that advantage becomes a disadvantage.

When you slowed down in that traffic jam, the engine heated up a bit and the gasoline in the carburetor, fuel line and pump began to vaporize. But the pump is made to force through liquid gas, not vapor. The engine stops. It looks like a case for a new fuel pump.

If it is vapor lock, it can be cured easily by pouring cold water over the fuel pump and fuel lines to condense the gas.

That's a simple answer to a complicated problem. Only experience can give you the answers, and it's experience that gives a good mechanic the ability to tell when you need repairs—and when you DON'T need repairs. That's just one of the reasons so many owners leave their cars in the careful hands of our service department.

And here are some of our good used cars that have been through our service department and are ready to give miles and miles of trouble-free service.

- 1953 FORD— Mainline 2-Door Sedan with radio and heater. We've installed a reconditioned motor, new tires and painted this car and it's all set to go. Guaranteed—$1350.00.
- 1952 PONTIAC— Green Deluxe two-door. Low mileage and a pleasure to drive. Guaranteed—$1095.00.
- 1955 GMC— Blue, 1/2-Ton Pickup. Excellent condition. Body-Tires-Motor. Goodwill Guaranteed—$1495.00.

Last week a child ran off the street into a passing car and was killed. On Friday evening another child came within inches of running under the car I was driving. I believe that if we motorists, when we see children darting into the street would stop and tell the children of the danger, it would help impress them and supplement their parents' warnings.
