Dodd's Kidney Pills now Asked For by every Sufferer from Bright's Disease

QUEBEC, Nov. 19.— Contemporaneous with the publication of the letter of Dr. A. G. McCormack, of Richmond, with respect to his permanent cure from Bright's disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills, every druggist in this city ordered a generous supply of the pills, but so great has been the demand as the result of this testimonial from so eminent an authority, that the run has been in excess of the supply. All other proprietary medicines have been relegated to the shelves and it would appear from the demands made upon the druggists as if every sufferes from kidney disease in the city was bound to try the remedy recommended by Dr McCormack.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Priestley's Dress Goods

A good name is more potent than thrones and kingdoms. In business a good name is vital. The name of Priestley is a synonym for what is delicate, durable and beautiful in Black Dress Goods. In England it is a household word. Priestley's dress fabrics are worn by the well dressed women of Great Britain, while on this side, they have attained to general favor. Ladies should buy no other black dress goods till they have seen Priestley's. They add to an unequalled durability, a beautiful draping quality. Women of taste understand what that means in the success of a costume. 1

COLD STORAGE PLANT.

REFRIGERATION HAS NOW REACHED A STATE OF PERFECTION.

Some of the Advantages Derived—Market Gluts Prevented—Nursery Stock Kept for Three Years and Taken Out in Good Shape.

The first experiments with cold storage were made in New York 18 years ago, and developed into a commercial industry three years later, says Garden and Forest. Since then the knowledge of scientists and inventors has been combined with the practical experience and capital of warehousemen, until now the business of cold storage and freezing is a considerable factor in the market supply of the world. At first cold air for refrigerators on the ground floor was forced to storerooms above, but this plan was soon given up for the system, still in limited use, of massing ice at the top of buildings, so that a current of cold air is drawn by gravity through shafts to the lower floors. By this system only cold storage at 38 degrees and above is possible, while actual freezing is necessary for many classes of goods.

One of the nine large cold storage warehouses in New York uses a system of metal pipes 10 inches in diameter, which encircle storage rooms. These begin below the "charging floor," the upper story of the building. Here ice is broken by hand power, the sectional trap doors are lifted, and the pipes, set close beside each other and extending down to the floors below, are closely packed with ice and salt. The drainage from these, which is collected on the second floor, is utilized to cool rooms on the ground floor to a temperature of 40 degrees. This method of cold storage is especially adapted for holding comparatively small amounts of perishable goods, without the cost of expensive machinery.

The system most generally in use, however, is that of producing intense cold by the evaporation of ammonia, and one of the largest and best-equipped cold warehouses uses the so-called "direct expansion" system, which it is not necessary here to explain. In this immense establishment which comprises in two warehouses 1,500,000 cubic feet of cold storage and freezing space, eight boilers, each of 75 horse power, are used in the smaller building alone.

The engines, compressors, and all parts of the machinery are in duplicate, so that if one set is disabled the other set of machinery may be started and the requisite temperature throughout the building steadily maintained. Whatever the method used, the effect aimed at is the reverse of that in heating, that is to grasp and carry heat out of the rooms which it is desired to refrigerate. The brine which is produced by the ammoniacal gas process, and conveyed throughout the building in main pipes and smaller coils, leaves the manufacturing room in the basement at zero and returns from the circuit only 5 degrees higher. All this apparatus is especially constructed; buildings cost money, and at the present time more than $4,000,000 are invested in cold storage in this city alone.

The first floor of these great buildings is usually occupied by offices and open space necessary for receiving and discharging goods, and the storage floors above are reached by heavy freight elevators. Passing through a small ante-room on leaving the elevator, the "bulkhead," or thick wall, which is air spaced and padded so as to be nearly as possible a non-conductor of heat, is reached. The heavy door swings open, and a change of 50 degrees to 70 degrees is realized in a second of time. The purity of the atmosphere and the uniform temperature of each room or "box" are evident.

Tiers of goods extend to the ceiling, closely packed along immense floor spaces, or in smaller lots in separated rooms. To the visitor, who, as well as the guide, is protected with heavy wraps, the long stretches of pipes and rafters covered with frost crystals glittering in the electric light present a strange and beautiful spectacle. Poultry, meats, fish, butter and eggs are stored in largeat quantity, and actual experiments show that these usually perishable goods can be held in cold storage almost indefinitely, and meat and fish frozen and kept for five years have come out in good, marketable condition.

By this preservative process a glut is prevented in periods of too plentiful supply, the season for perishable goods is lengthened to extend the year through, and prices are equalized, to the profit of both producer and consumer. For example, yearling turkeys, which last February were stored and frozen, and since kept in a dry air of 10 to 15 degrees, now bring in the markets three cents a pound more than the best spring turkeys. But even in this favoring market there is not much profit to the merchant since a cent per pound is charged for the cold storage of poultry a month, and the higher rate of half a cent a pound each month for freezing. The prices charged for storage are, however, nearly 50 per cent. lower than they were 10, or even 5, years ago.

The artificial low temperature, besides their uses in arresting the decay and retarding the maturity of fruits and vegetables, are applied to horticulture. Nursery stock has been kept in a cool temperature in good condition for three years, with the roots ready for growing when taken out. Hardy plants which are intended for forcing are often frozen after they are lifted, so as to give them their needed experience of a winter, after which they will push forward with energy. Imported pips of lily of the valley are largely held in cold storage, not only to preserve them, but because they start more quickly and strongly after having been frozen. Bermuda lily bulbs and other stock of this sort are also treated successfully in this way.

A Fourteen-Year-Old Girl's Dress.

A typical gown is an olive green wool sateen, and the skirt, while it is rather full, is almost plain across the front and hips, and is laid in coarse gathers in the back. An invisible hem is its finish, and it reaches almost to the ankles. The bodice is a round one, arranged in full folds in front, where it is invisibly hooked, and on each side of these folds are two revers, so that a vast effect is obtained. The ribbon girdle, which is fastened on the skirt, is of three-inch-wide olive ribbon, the ends of which hang long and straight at the back. The sleeves are very full and are drawn in below the elbow to tucked cuffs of the material. The high collar is a folded one of the ribbon with a little rosette on one side, under which the fastening is concealed. Black stockings and black shoes are worn with this dress.—Ladies' Home Journal.

"What is your next novel going to be, Timmins?"

"It will treat of the influence of tight shoes on woman's moral and spiritual nature."—Indianapolis Journal.
