Unique in Warfare.

A STRUGGLE IN WHICH THE OLD WERE FITTED AGAINST THE YOUNG.

Dr. Wolf, the explorer of the Sankurt river, says the New York Sun, has just told some curious facts about the Baluba tribe, who are becoming distinguished among all the millions of the Congo basin for their eagerness to accept from the whites all the ways of living and the information that they think will benefit or improve them. Long before the whites knew them they were regarded by the neighbouring tribes as a most remarkable people, and they are keeping up their reputation.

Until within the past 15 years the Balubas kept themselves strictly separate from their neighbors. They had no intercourse whatever with any other tribe. This is very unusual, for the tribes throughout Africa, if not quarrelling with their neighbors, generally have many commercial dealings with them, and even in time of war the women of the hostile tribes sometimes mingle in perfect unity, exchanging their commodities.
The young men among the Baluba finally decided that it would be better for their tribe to cultivate relations with their neighbors and open the country to traders with other tribes.
They had the support of their chief, but the old men and graybeards of the tribe set their faces sternly against the innovation. With the conservatism of old age they declared that such a step would ruin their tribe. As long as they lived, they said, they would never consent that the Baluba should mix with other people.

Each side was determined to have its way, and the quarrel grew more and more bitter, until finally it resulted in a civil war. It was one of the most remarkable wars ever waged, for on one side were ranged the old men, the fathers and counselors of the tribe, while on the other side fought the youth and lusty strength of the Baluba. The youth were pitted against their elders; but in this case as in other cases that might be mentioned, conservatism was simply unprogressive narrow-mindedness, and wisdom was with the younger party.

The struggle was short and furious. It ended in the complete overthrow of the old men. The hatred engendered by this unnatural war was so intense that the vanquished were nearly exterminated. Almost all the old men were killed or were thrown with their women into the Lulua. Then the young men opened their doors to commerce.

The Sun has recently told how many of these Baluba are adopting the dress of the whites and are fashioning their buildings on the model of those at Luluaburg station. Dr.
Wolf says they possess qualities that render them adept pupils in learning the arts of civilization. It is these people who decided a few years ago that drunkenness was a crime and a disgrace, and who at once adopted the most energetic prohibitory measures. The stimulant used by the bibulous members of the tribe was palm wine. The tribe attacked the evil at its roots by cutting down all the palm trees in the country, and the Baluba are today remarkable for their temperate habits.

The Heavens for August.

Venus is evening star. She reaches the point during the month of August, when she puts on her most glorious aspect as evening star. On the 15th, at noonday, she appears in her greatest brilliancy, being then about 40° east of the sun, and her diameter measuring 40". When she became evening star last December her whole illumination (like the full moon) was turned toward the earth, and, being at her greatest distance from us, her diameter was only 10". She has ever since been travelling toward us and increasing in size and brilliancy. At the same time she has been turning less and less of her illuminated side towards us, passing through the phases of the moon from full to new. Until the 15th the increasing size of the planet's disk has more than counterbalanced the lessening portion, which is illuminated, and the evening star has now noticed, the fair evening star has grown more brilliantly beautiful. After the 15th the illuminated crescent rapidly diminishes until it becomes exceedingly thin. The increasing size no longer counterbalances the lessening light, and the planet perceptibly wanes in brilliancy.
There are two of these periods of greatest brilliancy, as they are called. The one like the present occurring thirty-six days after conjunction when Venus is morning star. Our planetary neighbor will be a charming object for celestial study during the whole month of August, increasing in splendor until the 15th, and approaching the sun from the month's commencement to its close. The proof of her increasing brilliancy will be perceptible to the eye of the careful observer, and the proof that she is drawing near the sun will be found in the lessening length of her stay above the horizon after sunset. Thus on the first she sets an hour and a half after the sun. On the 31st she sets about half an hour after the sun.

OVER and over again. Repetition is the only way, sometimes, to impress a truth upon the mind. Accordingly take notice that Dr.
Pierce's pleasant purgative pellets, the only original Little Liver Pills, continue to be wonderfully effective in cases of sick and bilious headache, constipation, indigestion, rush of blood to the head, cold extremities, and all ailments arising from obstruction of the bodily functions. Their action is thorough yet gentle, and the ingredients being entirely vegetable, they can be taken with impunity into the most delicate stomach. Druggists.

At the laying of the foundation stone of the Imperial Institute the Queen used glasses for the first time. The lenses were no larger than a shilling piece, and set in a plain piece of tortoise shell.
The great egg dealers in New York report enormous losses on account of the hot weather. Out of 1,000 barrels received in twenty-four hours by one firm not 500 were good.
If it were not for the eggs that were placed in cold storage a month ago, the market would be stripped. Strictly fresh are scarcely to be had.

It is reported from Richmond, Va., that a pious Baptist of that city has rented her fine home and moved into cheaper quarters, that she thus might be able to give $1000 a year more to charity than she otherwise could have done.

Assassin Giteau's Anathema.

REMARKABLE SUCCESSION OF MISFORTUNES THAT HAVE FOLLOWED HIS WITHERING CURSE.

After the assassin Giteau had been convicted and sentenced by the Court to be hanged for killing President Garfield, he stood up in his place and pronounced a withering curse on every one connected with the trial. Little was thought of it at the time. It was regarded as a fitting climax of his ravings throughout that remarkable case. Giteau declared that misfortune would follow every one connected with the trial. Since then Giteau's curse has impressed itself upon the minds of superstitious people by the singular manner in which it has apparently been fulfilled.

The jury was composed of twelve strong and healthy men. The foreman was in comfortable circumstances and was estimated to be worth $50,000. Within a year after the trial he lost his money and is now reduced to the level of a day laborer.

Four members of the jury are dead, and nearly every one has been visited with some kind of misfortune.

District-Attorney George B. Corkhill was removed from office, his wife died, and his own death followed before the end of another year.

Mr. Scoville, Giteau's brother-in-law, who, with Charles H. Reed, defended the prisoner, was divorced from his wife and lost all his property.

President Arthur, who refused to grant a pardon or new trial to Giteau, was defeated for renomination and slowly failed in health, and died last winter.

Mr. Blaine, who was a witness against Giteau, was nominated for President, but defeated.

John A. Logan, another witness, is now dead, stricken down in apparent health.

Dr. D. W. Bliss, Garfield's physician, has been in very poor health for two years, and it is thought that he will never be a well man again.

David Davis, who appeared as a witness, has also joined the great majority.

Judge John K. Porter, of New York, one of the Government counsel in the case, has practically retired from the practice of his profession.

The guards who kept watch over Giteau in the jail have nearly all lost their positions.

Judge Cox, who presided over the trial, lost his wife.

The downward career of Charles H.
Reed, of Giteau's counsel, which culminated in New York recently, by his attempting to take his own life, adds another name to the list of victims of Giteau's anathema.

The only conspicuous exception is found in Walter Davidge, of the Government counsel in the case. Mr. Davidge has apparently been more prosperous since the trial than before. He stands at the head of the Washington Bar.

The defeat of the Republican party in 1884 recalls the fact that Giteau predicted its defeat.

The sum of $20,000 is to be distributed among the blind poor of New York, and as there are 500 of them each will get $40.

The statistical sharp has now calculated that if 32,000,000 persons should clasp hands they would reach round the globe.

According to Prof. E. B. Elliott, of Washington, the population of the United States and Territories, June 1 last, aggregated 59,893,000.

The cost of running locomotives on American railroads has fallen, owing to improved machinery, from 26 1/2 cents per mile run in 1857 to less than 14 cents in 1887.

The wages of engineers and firemen have increased during that period from 4 1/2 cents per mile run to 5 1/2 cents.

The King of the Belgians has just invested £1,000,000 in the purchase of estates in Hungary and Austria. They are nominally to become the property of His Majesty's sons-in-law, the Crown Prince of Austria and the Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg, but it is generally believed that this step has been taken in view of possible mishaps.

The late King invested largely both in England and America, and his son has followed in his steps, and has considerably increased the stores accumulated by his provident sire.

The most ancient Encyclopedia extant is "Pliny's Natural History," which, he says contains 30,000 facts collected from 2,000 books by 100 authors. This work was very high authority in the Middle Ages, and forty three editions of it were printed before 1536. The first alphabetical Encyclopedia written in English was the work of a London clergyman, John Harris, born about 1667. It was entitled "Lexicon Technicum, or an Universal English Dictionary, of Arts and Sciences." Chambers first published his Encyclopedia in 1728. The well known "Encyclopedia Britannica" was first issued in 1771 in three vols.

The decision of the Federal Court in favor of the Arthur Killbridge between New Jersey and Staten Island, rendered at Trenton, by United States Judge Bradley, removes the last legal barrier to the completion of Erastus Wiman's great project of forming railway connection with New Jersey and Staten Island, thereby enlarging the terminal facilities in the harbor of New York by some ten miles. It is seven years since Mr. Wiman commenced the undertaking, and its progress has been bitterly opposed by all the New Jersey State authorities, both in Congress and in the courts. The bridge is partially constructed, the railroad is almost complete, and this decision having removed the only possible bar to the final completion of the project, the work will be pushed with renewed energy. Mr. Wiman is in receipt of very numerous congratulations from leading merchants and prominent citizens.
