

Only 18 Merchant Ships Now On Canadian Registry

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Marler said Thursday that only 18 merchant ships are now on the Canadian registry. He said the number of ships on the registry has dropped from 145 in 1948.

Mr. Marler said everybody would like to see a large Canadian merchant marine but one had to be realistic. He said the problem was more difficult or complex.

Shipbuilding costs in Canada were 165 per cent of those in the United Kingdom. It cost $75,000 to $100,000 more a year to operate a Canadian freighter of 10,000 tons than it did a ship under British, Scandinavian, German, French, Italian, Greek, Panamanian or Liberian registry.

The difference in wages received by Canadian and foreign crews was a "very real handicap" for Canadian operators. But the costs were also higher for repairs, supplies and insurance.

Disarmament Proposal Appeals To Canadian Ideas

OTTAWA (CP)—President Eisenhower's disarmament proposal Thursday is believed to be along the lines of Canadian thinking on the subject.

External Affairs Minister Pearson declined comment on the president's plan until he has had a chance to study it in detail.

But he told reporters Wednesday on his return from Europe that some method will have to be found to prevent any sudden attack without warning.

President Eisenhower suggested that the U.S. and Russia exchange blueprints on each other's military establishments and provide for mutual air inspection of the establishments.

He said Wednesday in an interview that because atomic weapons have been manufactured and stored it would be impossible for inspection teams to find them.

Both in Canada and the U.S. serious thought has been given to this matter. Apparently the central theme now is that aerial inspection to warn of any enemy concentration, especially of air power, might serve the purpose.

In this way the major powers would be tipped off in time about any impending attack. This in itself could add another deterrent to war.

Mutual air inspection is not a new idea. It was discussed in the United Nations as long ago as 1946.

Until recently Canada, a member of the UN disarmament sub-committee, insisted along with other Western powers a 100-per cent foolproof inspection and control system is the core of disarmament. Other members of the sub-committee, which met for nearly three months in London this spring, are Britain, the U.S. France and Russia.

Whether Canada would accept a 100 per cent air inspection is not known. One official said the matter would have to be looked at in detail.

CANADA INVOLVED

This could involve Canada directly because a part of U.S. defenses are radar warning line and fighter-control radar station in Canada.

One official said President Eisenhower could not have included these radar lines in his proposal at least not yet—because Canada had not been consulted on the matter.

Mr. Pearson told the NATC council last week that proposal at Geneva for easing world tension should be related to the disarmament problem.

It was necessary to re-examine assumptions that had been made about inspection because it now appeared impossible that any foolproof system of inspection acceptable to both sides could be devised.

Bombers From S' side Drop Mock A-bomb On G'town

A theoretical atom bomb was dropped on Camp Gagetown at first light Friday as one of the key experiments in the experimental warfare being waged at Gagetown and Summerside.

It was the first time an atom bomb has been dropped into Canadian army maneuvers even in theory, and to make the theory more real to the forces defending Fredericton from mock invasion, army engineers on the ground simulated an atom blast.

Within an hour of the atom drop Mitchell bombers of the Saskatchewan Reserve Squadron followed up with attacks on targets of opportunity.

The results of the theoretical bombing were still being assessed and discussed late Friday as the combined Army-Airforce exercise continued seeking solutions to problems that have not yet arisen on actual battlefields.

Showing the important position of the Reserve squadrons in Canadian defence planning, bombing results of the Saskatchewan and Edmonton Squadrons are being closely watched by the Defence Research Board.

Back Stretch

We are glad to see that Colonel Jim Calkin is keeping his notes "From The Tack Room" going in the Sentinel Press at Woodstock. The Colonel is an authority on harness horses and gets that honestly as his father was one of the mainstays of the sport and owned some of the best in the long ago. We note from his column that Henry DeWitt's stable is now racing at Gorham, Maine. Here's another item and a real good one: The trotter Whiskey appears to have improved with age as he has recently lowered his record to 2:08 2/5 and on July 8 at Foxboro, Margy Frisco, owned and driven by Henry DeWitt was second in 2:09 1/5.

George McIntyre, manager of the Montague Raceway, put on a very splendid race meet on Wednesday afternoon which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The track was in first class condition as one would expect. The weather was delightful and everything combined to make it a most pleasant affair. Records were lowered in three of the four events. In No. 1 DD Pace, Doctor J. D., owned and driven by Alfred Lowery, was 1:2; Uscito's Boy (D. MacNeill) owned by George Brookings, 2:1. Time: 2:16 4/5, 2:15 4/5—both new records. In Dash 2 C Trot, Royal Train (A. Llewellyn), owned by Dr. P. McIntyre, was 1:2; All Budlong, owned and driven by Rannie MacDonnell, 8:1. Joppa Maid (Shaw) 2:5. Time: 2:19 2/5, 2:16—new records for both horses.
