The Island

The Island is a lovely place So many do declare They say it is the finest spot That you'll find anywhere.

The Island is a place we know With rich and fertile land It's called "The Garden of The Gulf"

A name which suits it grand.

The Island is the place where apuds Grow larger than your shoes And flavor, well you'll eat them 'Till your belt you must unloose.

The Island is the Foxes' home From where they made a bound And filled the countries to the brim With furs the world around.

The Island is a place of song Musicians play galore They play the old time tunes so well That many ask for more.

The Island with its friendly folk Make strangers feel at home And with their open hearts and hands Bid one and all to come.

The Island with its beaches fine And cabins not a few Just makes of it a pleasure spot For friends both old and new.

The Island which one do I mean? By talking all this while What other Island is there But good old Prince Edward Isle.
