

MAIN BRIDGE.

'My history is soon told. I was a mercantile man; but fortune never favored me. I had no money myself, and loved and married a poor girl. I could never begin business on my own account. I took a situation as book-keeper, which I held until I became useless from age, and younger men were preferred to me. Thus my circumstances were always circumscribed, but my domestic happiness was complete. My wife, an angel of love, kindness and fondness, was good and pious, active and affectionate; and my daughter is a true image of her mother. But age and illness have brought me to the last extremity, and my conscience revolts against the idea of the best child in the world sacrificing her life for an old useless fellow. I cannot have much longer to live, and I hope the Lord will pardon me for cutting off a few days or weeks from my life, in order to preserve that of dear Bertha.'

'You are fortunate, my friend,' exclaimed the young man. 'What you call misfortune is sheer nonsense, and can be cured. To-morrow I shall make my will, and you shall be the heir of my possessions, and to-morrow night I shall take the leap from the Main bridge alone. But before I leave this world I must see Bertha, for I am anxious to look upon one who is worthy of the name of human being.'

'Sir, what can have happened to make you so unhappy at this early age?' said the old man moved to compassion.

'I am the only son of one of the richest bankers in Frankford. My father died five years ago, and left me heir to an immense fortune. From that moment every one that has come in contact with me has endeavored to deceive and defraud me. I was a child in innocence and confidence. My education had not been neglected, and I possessed my mother's loving heart. My friend, to whom I opened my heart betrayed me, and laughed at my simplicity; in time I gathered experience, and my heart was filled with distrust. I was betrothed to a rich heiress, possessed of all fashionable accomplishments; I adored her with enthusiasm, and her love, I thought, would repay me for every disappointment. But I soon saw she wished to make me her slave, and yoke all the other men besides to her triumphal chariot. I broke the engagement, and selected a poor, but a charming girl—a sweet, innocent being as I thought, who would be my life's own angel. Alas! I found her one day bidding adieu with tears and kisses to a youth whom she loved. She had accepted me for my wealth only. My peace of mind vanished. I sought diversion in travel. Everywhere I found the same hollowness, the same treachery, the same misery. In short, I became disgusted with life, and resolved to put an end this night to the pitiable farce.'

'Unfortunate young man,' said the other, with tears of sympathy, 'pity you. I confess I have been more fortunate than you. I possessed a wife and daughter, who came forth pure and immaculate from the hand of the Creator. The one has returned to him in the whiteness of her soul, and so will the other.'

'Give me your address, old man, and permit me to visit your daughter to-morrow. Also give me your word of honor that you will not inform her or insinuate in any manner that I am a rich man.' The old man held out his hand.

'I give you my word. I am anxious to convince you that I have spoken the truth. My name is William Schmidt, and there is my address, giving him at the same time a bit of paper which he drew from his pocket.'

'And my name is Karl Traff. I am the son of Anton Traff. Take these bank notes, but only on condition that you do not leave this house until I fetch you from it. Walter! a bedroom for this gentleman. You require rest, Herr Schmidt. Good night. To-morrow you will hear from me again.'

In one of the narrow and ill-lighted streets of Sachsenhausen, in an attic of a lofty and unsightly house, sat a blonde about 20 years of age, busily engaged with her needle. Her features were delicate, like those of one nobly born; her eyes betrayed sleeplessness and anxiety, and over and anon a sigh rose from the maidens' breast. Suddenly steps were heard on the staircase, and her face lighted up with joy. She listened, and doubt seemed to shadow her brow. Then came a knock at the door which made her tremble so much that she almost wanted the courage to say 'Come in.' A young man, shabbily dressed, entered the room and made a low and awkward bow.

The Capes Route.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—Owing to the predictions and prophetic words of the editors of the Summerside Progress in the West, and the King's County Advertiser in the East, as published last week in reference to the S. S. "Northern Light" being placed at the Capes route during the coming winter, I am induced to say, in the interest of very many who have greater experience than either of these young prophetic editors, and who are really desirous to see winter mail communication effected by any possible route, that they are not only unbecomingly and uncalled for on the part of these editors to be publishing broadcast, not only what is reasonable in this matter, but what they wish to see carried out, namely, the dog in the manager policy—that is "if the 'Northern Light' can't (which has been already proven) run between Georgetown and Pictou—don't let her try to run anywhere else." Pie on such a policy! Shame on such men that would (if they could) impede progress by such puny sectionalism!! Now that thousands of dollars have been spent on the Georgetown route with a view to winter communication, and that Sewell's best sea boat, together with the talent and efforts of many, have not been equal to the task during the past winters, via the Georgetown route, why should Mr. McCourt of the K. C. A. whine so pitiously about the "N. L.'s" going to try the Capes route?—the one and only route by which we can ever have winter communication with the outer world. In proof of this look to the means always resorted to when his route failed every winter. If this is not sufficient, I ask him to look back, if he can, for the last fifty years, and if his memory does not extend so far back, let him seek information from some older and wiser head than his own. We bid him (Mr. McCourt) come to Cape Traverse at any time during the coming winter, and he will plainly see that the "Northern Light" can readily cross here thrice for the once she could from any other point on the Island; and should there be at any time, too much drift in the straits for the steamer for one day to cross, we have only to look on and behold the bold veterans, Capts. Irving & Muttart, making a laudable crossing in three to four hours, as it is on such heavy drift ice they can and always make their best crossings, and by this means easily carry out daily winter communication—the desired object of every patriot in the Province. The people of this place feel confident that the K. C. A. does not represent the views of many of our King's County friends in this matter, and we are confident that King's County people will be well pleased, should the "Northern Light" make daily crossings at Capes Traverse and Tormentine this winter, when she fails up at Georgetown. They will not fuss up merely because the editor of the Advertiser has no limits to his editorial of last week on this subject; their good sense and love of justice will prompt them to wait avee, witness the result at the Capes and then give their opinions. They will do as we have done—look on and up to the time and means of so great a boon to this Province—no matter by what route we get it. This is not a mere sectional matter. It is one affecting the public not only as this country but the whole Dominion. Then, why harp and chew at the able efforts of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in doing what his best judgment prompts him to do in a matter so important. It is really impertinent on the part of such youthful editors to make such predictions in their present impatient state; as the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries can see more at one glance on this subject than many of our young public men could learn in a lifetime.

All we ask is a fair trial at the Capes for the steamer this winter, such as Georgetown had. And should she prove a failure here, as she certainly has on the Georgetown-Pictou route, then let the Advertiser man, and his ally, the Progress, publish their predictions. Then let them appeal to the people or to the moon if you choose. But until then let them show their patriotism by their silence on this matter.

Yours, &c.,

Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with Boschee's German Syrup, although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the U. S. Its wonderful success in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma, and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by Druggists. No such test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more! Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

SEMINARY FOR YOUNG LADIES.

VISITOR:
The Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia

PRINCIPAL:
The Rev. John Padfield.

THIS SCHOOL offers, at very moderate cost, the advantages of a comfortable and pleasant home together with a thorough and refined education.

The course of instruction is the same as that of the best Schools in England and is founded upon the University Examinations for Women. Eight young ladies from this School passed the Local Examination of the University of King's College in June last. This is the only School in Canada that has passed pupils at a University Examination.

The number of pupils is limited, rendering the School select, and while it possesses all the educational advantages of a large public school, each pupil is enabled to receive that individual care and oversight which is so important, and which cannot be given in a large establishment.

Mr. and Mrs. Padfield are assisted by a staff of four resident governesses, besides visiting masters.

Parisienne French is taught conversationally. There are two resident French Governesses.

References given to parents of pupils.
For further particulars address the Principal.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy
CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—
"DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your 'Constitutional Catarrh Remedy' was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be 'too good to be true.'"

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long. I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite clear of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper. Yours truly,
W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister.
