

Rectors and Vestries.

One of the most vexing, perplexing questions of the day in the church is the proper, Christian relation that should exist between the priest in his parish, and the vestry. That there is confusion of thought and action, as to this relation, goes without saying. Throughout the Church the clergy are complaining of what are somewhat impatiently called lay popes, that is of the rough riding of laymen over the persons and spiritual rights of the clergy.

Now, whenever there is a great smoke there must be some fire; whenever there is a general complaint, there must be an underlying grievance. If the clergy generally are complaining of lay interference, there must be some cause for it. It does not, of course, follow that all the clergy complain of it; for clergymen, like other men, see things from their own point of view, and are apt as others to take a one-sided view of their difficulties. The lay view of things is necessary to complete the picture.

But that friction exists cannot be put out of sight. Now it is self-evident to any thoughtful man that the church cannot prosper as it ought to prosper, while either the clergy on the one hand, or the laity on the other, are self-seeking or oppressive, the one class to the other. If the clergy usurp authority over laymen (or seek to do it) which, either by the law or God or the exons of this Church is not theirs to possess, confusion and weakness, and loss must inevitably result. The clergy are not lords over the household of God, but their servants for Christ's sake. But on the other hand, the laity are not masters over the clergy, to dictate to them how they shall conduct themselves in the House of God.

The laity have their lawful and proper remedy, if they think at any time the priest oversteps his plain right and duty under the law. The canon defines that remedy. The rector should see to it that his laymen are properly instructed as to the extent of their lawful right and duty. No priest should wait until a difficulty arises between him and his vestry to instruct the latter as to their functions and duty. At that time passion is apt to put aside calm consideration of the subject.

It may, we think, be safely asserted that nine tenths of the difficulties that arise between the clergy and their vestries spring from ignorance of their mutual relations and duties, and the consequent want of Christian consideration for one another's rights. Too often the clergy, as well as the laity, are ignorant of the common law. The priest too often concedes to his vestry what he has no right to concede. Too often the vestry assume in perfect good faith rights which do not belong to them.—American Paper.

A Remarkable Offer.

For several years a Boston business house has made persons on farms, in towns and the suburbs of cities who keep poultry, few or many, remarkable offers of premiums payable in gold, some as high as fifty dollars to the first and not less than five dollars to any winner of a premium. The best thing about these annual offers, is that the firm making them is strictly reliable and the premiums have always been promptly paid as agreed in gold coin. Fifty dollar premiums do not "grow on every bush" as the old saying is, and we have no doubt to many who competed for them, the amount received came in handy to help pay the necessary bills of a hard winter, or if not, buy some luxury that the family absolutely needed, but otherwise could not afford. This same firm, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., authorize us to state to our readers that they have prepared an offer of similar premiums this year as heretofore, with one very important improvement and that is, so that the first winner stands a fair chance of getting premiums amounting to one hundred and fifty dollars in gold. Why! that is as good as fifty dollars per month for the three winter months. Its worth trying for any way.

Another valuable feature of the offers this year is that no one who competes need fail to get something out of the several offers; either in premiums or commissions. Johnson & Co., will send full particulars free to any person who sends them their address on a postal card. These premium offers are made in connection with the use of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay. That powder has been manufactured and sold for over thirty years. I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., (the only makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder) will send for 50 cents, two packs of Powder for $1.00 five packs; for $1.20 a large 2 1/4 lb. can, post paid; six cans for $5, express prepaid. Six cans will pay a good dividend. I. S. Johnson & Co., will also send to anyone asking for it a copy of the best poultry magazine published, free; The paper one year and a large can of Powder for $1.50.
