He also pointed out that the same situation obtaining throughout Canada, particularly in Toronto and the West.

once stumped and against whom he was enthusiastically campaigned. He extended the sale of beer and wine to hotels, putting an end to the last remnants of Ontario's prohibition days. He cut every cabinet minister's salary by $2,000 a year, fixed 1,500 civil servants, sold Government-owned automobiles at public auction and closed the Lieutenant-Governor's residence.

He introduced compulsory pasteurization of milk, despite objections of his farm friends. In the 1937 provincial election with his handling of the General Motors strike at Oshawa as a burning issue, he promised continuing industrial peace if elected. He kept his promise.

Mr. Heppburn's long-drawn-out feud with the Federal Liberals provoked some resentment among the rank and file of the provincial party. A factor in this was looked upon as a factor in a split in the Ontario Liberals.

With bewildering suddenness Mr. Heppburn resigned in October, 1942, naming Mr. Conant as his successor. He had not taken the cabinet into his confidence nor consulted it on the choice of a successor. In his official announcement he gave no specific reason for his resignation, beyond saying he did not want to seek a third term in office.

Fearless Fighter

In death, both his admirers and his political adversaries praised him as a fearless fighter. He was considered right, a brilliant debater and master of repartee, a man of quick and happy wit and with a gift of making friends. A typical tribute was that of George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party who sat opposite Mr. Heppburn in the Ontario Legislature.

After he returned to his 1,000-acre Bannockburn Farms near St. Thomas after his tumultuous years in politics, he went from one major farming venture to another. For a time he raised one of the richest black muck of one of his Elgin County holdings. Then he bred fine Clydesdale horses, built up a herd of dairy cattle and, in recent years, imported high-quality Herefords from near Calgary to develop a beef herd. He put in equipment to turn out gravel in commercial quantities from deposits on his land.

He divided his 1,000-acre holdings into farms. These have been worked on shares by his many employees.

Surviving besides his widow are three adopted children—a son and two daughters—a sister, and a grandson.

C.P.R. was under examination all day today. He was Charles W. Smith, an official of the Federal Power Commission. Testifying in a private capacity, he had supported the 6 1/2-per-cent rate-of-return plan in November.

Frank D. Smith of Halifax, counsel for the Maritimes and Newfoundland, suggested to the F.P.C. expert that railway traffic in Canada would not be able to bear, in the long run, the level of rates needed to earn 6 1/2 per cent for the C.P.R.

The witness replied he did not know enough of Canadian conditions to say if not, the Canadian Pacific would be subject either to deterioration of service, bankruptcy or being taken over by the government.

J. J. Frawley, Alberta counsel, suggested to the C.P.R. witness that the root of the C.P.R. problem was not higher freight rates as a whole but the fact that general increases could only be applied to about half its traffic—excluding competitive rates and the low statutory grain rates in the West. Mr. Smith said the railways still constitute the backbone of transportation service and should have an adequate return. If they were so "tied up" that increases could not be applied, he conceded, it

Mrs. Fred Osborne and Mrs. Fred Gamble poured for the first hour, and Mrs. G. M. Avarad and Mrs. W. M. Forsythe for the second hour. Four young lady members of the Phlat Clubs served in the tea room, these being Miss D. Hillon, Miss M. Huestis, Miss B. Hamm, and Miss B. Frost. MacLean-Campbell Wedding

A very pretty wedding took place at the bride's home in Park Corner, December 18th at 2:30 p. m., when Rev. D. A. Campbell united in marriage Lulu Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Campbell to Robert Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie MacLean of Dunblane.

The bride looked charming in a floor length dress of yellow mylon net over satin, with matching veil and mits as she entered the living room to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus played by her aunt, Mrs. Heath Montgomery. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Eliza who wore a floor length dress of mauve net over taffeta with matching veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The groom was supported by his brother-in-law, Mr. Harding Boulter.

After the ceremony a buffet lunch was served to about twenty-five guests.

The happy young couple left for Halifax and other places of interest in the Maritimes on a short honeymoon.

On their return they will reside in Dunblane where the groom is a prosperous young farmer. Their many friends wish them many years of happiness.

Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Heath Montgomery.

The bride was escorted to a seat of honour by her cousin, Miss Nellie Montgomery, after which Myrna MacLeod and Monty Campbell carried well filled baskets of gifts into the room. After the gifts were opened by Miss Lottie Parsons and Mrs. James Montgomery, Miss Jean Parsons and Mrs. Arthur Campbell read the accompanying verses of good wishes. Mrs. James Campbell and Mrs. Warren Sims arranged the gifts on the table.

Miss Campbell expressed her thanks to all after which all sang "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow", and Dainty refreshments were served.

MOVIE FAN

Pikeberg, South Africa—(CP)—Mrs. Susana Visser has just seen her first moving picture, and she is 100 years old. Mrs. Visser said afterwards that she believes she has missed a lot by not going to the movies before now.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvyre Gallant had a pleasant surprise on the evening of December 23rd, when their son Auzie walked in on them, having come all the way from Calgary. He is receiving a glad welcome from his many friends.

In the midst of joy, sadness was intermingled, when word came that one of high esteem had passed to the Great Beyond, namely, Mr. Walter Weeks, on Christmas eve. Deepest sympathy is being extended to his widow and young family.

One of the most notable gatherings of the festive season occurred when Mrs. R. W. Stevenson, assisted by her daughter Miss Anne and son Mr. Eric, entertained all the members of the family, numbering thirty four in all, at Christmas dinner. Those present included Miss Elva of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevenson of Saint John, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Sellar and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dan McLeod and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Stevenson and family, Mrs. Robert McKenzie and Mr. Milton McKenzie. Needless to say, apart from the delicious eats, it was indeed a happy family reunion, when all Mrs. Stevenson's family of nine were able to be together.

Mayer Plans To Form French Gov't

PARIS, Jan. 5—(Reuters)—Middle-of-the-roader Rene Mayer will ask Parliament to vote him in as premier tomorrow. But even if he wins France will probably have another shaky government.

The 84-member party of Gen. Charles de Gaulle said tonight it will not vote for Mayer unless he promises to revise the European Army Treaty. Mayer is not expected to give in to this demand.

This means he will need solid support from all the middle of the road parties and independents, plus dissident Gaullists.

Some of the centre-party deputies are already hostile toward Mayer. And even if they vote for him and he is able to form a cabinet, he will have a small working majority in Parliament.

Mayer is on record as favoring quick ratification of the European Army Treaty, which brings a German army into the European defence system.

The Gaullists demand that the six-country be re-negotiated in such a way that "the unity of the national army and the integrity of the French union are preserved." Gen. De Gaulle has said he wants a "grand alliance" with each country having its own national forces instead of pooling them in a European army.

Mayer is the fourth politician to try to solve France's 15-day-old cabinet crisis.

CAPAC Fee Application Is Opposed

OTTAWA, Jan. 5—(CP)—The Copyright Appeal Board agreed today to postpone indefinitely the fixing of fees to be paid by television stations for use of works in the repertoire of the Composers Authors and Publishers Association of Canada.

In a list of copyright fees for 1953, C.A.P.A.C. proposed that television stations pay $500 a month until agreement can be reached on a permanent tariff.

Peter Wright of Toronto, counsel for the publicly-owned C. B. C., said all parties had agreed that the television fee should be allowed to stand indefinitely.

Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, chairman of the board, said that since all parties were in agreement there would be no objection to allowing the item to stand.

The decision was the only one reached at the first day of a hearing of objections to the 1953 fees proposed by C.A.P.A.C. The fees are unchanged from last year.

Tomorrow the board will deal with the fees to be charged private radio stations.

Mr. Wright said the C.B.C. has no objections to the fees proposed for this year.

Until last year, the fees charged radio stations were based on the number of radio receiving sets in Canada. In 1952, the board ordered private stations to pay C.A.P.A.C. 1-3-4 per cent of gross revenues. The C.B.C. was ordered to pay 1-3-4 per cent of commercial revenues plus one cent per capita of population.

It was estimated the change would increase the charge against private stations to $350,000 compared with $150,000 in 1951. The charge against the C.B.C. would increase to $170,000 from $150,000.

A decision on whether the board has power to base fees on revenues now is pending in the Exchequer Court of Canada.

General objections to the 1953 fees were placed before the board by Willard Z. Estey of Toronto, counsel for the Musical Protective Society of Canada. The society represents most commercial music users in Canada except the C.B.C.

Mr. Estey described the proposed fees as "excessive." He urged that they be based on the extent that C.A.P.A.C. music is used and also on audiences.

Mr. Estey also asked that fees be fixed for a period and not be subject to change every year.

Mr. Justice Thorson said the Appeal Board has recommended to the Government that fees remain unchanged until good reason could be given for a change.
