Marrying For Love and For Money.

In the marriages of the present day young men marry for love, but sentiment would appear to enter less into the calculation of a man of mature years, and yet no union based upon anything but love can be a permanently happy one. In this degenerate age men frequently marry for money, position or convenience. As regards women, a dreadful old cynic once observed that at 16 a woman marries for love, at 20 for position, at 25 for money and at 30 neither money, love nor position enters into the matter, the only question then being, Where is the man? This cynic evidently saw with jaundiced eyes the world of today, and understood society as it is, with all its artificiality, hypocrisy and selfishness. In olden times parents were only too glad to have their daughters marry the man they loved, and money, show and position were quite secondary considerations. It is a sad and regrettable condition of affairs when marriage becomes a mere contract in which the man seeks for wealth, position or advancement, and in which the woman recognizes her helpless and dependent condition, accepts the situation, marries for love when she can, but marries for anything else sooner than become an old maid.—New York Ledger.

MODÉST FIRE HEROËS.

What They Think About When They Are Periling Their Lives For Others.

"Heroes Who Fight Fires" is the title of an article by Jacob A. Riis in The Century, in the series of "Heroes of Peace." Mr. Riis says:

I once asked Fireman Martin M. Coleman after one of those exhibitions of coolness and courage that thrust him constantly upon the notice of the newspaper man what he thought of when he stood upon the ladder with this thing before him to do that might mean life or death the next moment. He looked at me in some perplexity.

"Think!" he said slowly. "Why, I don't think. There ain't any time to. If I'd stopped to think, them five people would 'a' been burnt. No, I don't think of danger. If it is anything, it is that up there I am boss. The rest are not in it. Only I wish," he added, rubbing his arm ruefully at the recollection, "that she hadn't fainted. It's hard when they faint. They're just so much dead weight. We get no help at all from them heavy women."

And that was all I could get out of him. I never had much better luck with Chief Benjamin A. Giequel, who is the oldest wearer of the Bennett medal, just as Coleman is the youngest, or the one who received it last. He was willing enough to talk about the science of putting out fires, of Department Chief Bonner, the "man of few words," who he thinks has mastered the art beyond any man living; of the back draft and almost anything else pertaining to the business, but when I insisted upon his telling me the story of the rescue of the Schaefer family of five from a burning tenement down in Cherry street, in which he earned his rank and reward, he laughed a good humored little laugh and said it was "the old man"—meaning Schaefer—who should have had the medal. "It was a grand thing in him to let the little ones come out first." I have sometimes wished that firemen were not so modest. It would be much easier, if not so satisfactory, to record their gallant deeds. But I am not sure that it is, after all, modesty so much as a wholly different point of view. It is business with them, the work of their lives. The one feeling that is allowed to rise beyond this is the feeling of exultation in the face of peril conquered by courage, which Coleman expressed. On the ladder he was boss! It was the fancy of a masterful man, and none but a masterful man would have got upon the ladder at all.

A THOROUGHLY Progressive Practical Institution, in which young men and women are not only taught Book-keeping (in all its applications to commerce) both by single and double entry, but are trained how to do business, or actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants, in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the College Bank and the notes issued from the Emorium, are used in bona fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business, cannot be thus acquired. That our course system of training is eminently practical, write for testimonials from business men, and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.

Hints For Young Photographers.

To squigee prints to a ferrotype plate in order to make a gloss finish have the plate perfectly clean and free from grease. It is better to wash it with soap and warm water each time it is used. Turn a little benzine on the surface of the plate and rub it thoroughly with a soft cloth, repeating the operation if the plate looks streaked. Let cold water run over the surface of the plate, and then lay the wet prints face down upon it and roll them down with a rubber roller until all moisture has been forced out. A piece of blotter should be placed over the picture to absorb the water. Before the prints are toned they can be trimmed, and before they are removed from the plate a coat of thin paste can be applied to the back, and they can be taken from the plate and mounted at once. If they are mounted dry, a thin coat of paste should be applied to the back of the picture, but if they are to be burnished after mounting they may be damp when mounted.—Harper's Round Table.

Italian, French, Spanish Confections.

It was not from either Italy or France that we got the best confectioners in the earlier days of English cookery. Spain, notably Toledo, furnished England with the most celebrated pastry cooks, or paste-ros as they are called, though we have since looked most to France for these artists. Under the patronage of "Bloody Mary" and of Queen Henrietta Maria Spanish methods flourished apace in the court cuisine. We read that when Mary entertained the Princess Elizabeth at Richmond in the summer of 1557 a sumptuous banquet was served, in which there was introduced as an ornament a pomegranate tree in confectionery work bearing the arms of Spain, showing Mary's Spanish leanings in a rather ostentatious fashion. These Spanish and Portuguese confectioners were very skillful.

In the comedy of "The Sun's Darling," by Ford and Decker (first acted 1623-4), the "Spaniard" who is one of the dramatic persons declares himself "a confectionador, which in your tongue is a confeit maker, of Toledo." He says, "I can teach sugar to slip down your throat in a million ways," and he professes himself skillful in "conserves, candies, marmalades, sinkadoes, ponadoes, narablane, bergamote, aranaxus muria, limons, berengenas of Toledo, oriones, potatoes of Malaga and ten millions more."—Gentleman's Magazine.

RING OUT THE BELLS.

Hear what Madame Albani's special accompanist has to say about the BELL PIANOS

THE QUEEN'S.
TORONTO, Feby. 22nd, 1897

To WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In connection with my visit to Canada as Pianist to Madame Albani, I have had occasion to observe various makes of pianos, and have been much impressed with the advances which are being made in the art of piano construction in this young and flourishing country. One of the most recent instruments to arrest my attention—and I might say one of the best—is the well known "Bell" Piano. Its tone is admirable throughout, and the touch firm and responsive—just what we musicians like—in fact, an excellent piano in every respect. The new Orchestral Attachment (which I understand can be obtained on "Bell" pianos only) is also an excellent feature, and one which will doubtless excite interest with all classes. I do not hesitate to say that I consider the "Bell" piano a good, honest instrument, and so recommend it to any intending purchaser.
