SNOWSTORM INCIDENT - A correspondent writes that what might have been a serious or even fatal accident occurred at Winsloe railway crossing during the height of the snowstorm on February 18. Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Rodd, coming from Charlottetown by car and proceeding very slowly, just managed to get off the railway track and were about twenty-five yards from it when a locomotive with a snow plow went by. It could not be seen for the snow drifts. It is suggested by the correspondent that no blame could be attached to car drivers in a case of this kind, and that the railway engine warning should be sounded further back from the crossing, in order to give car drivers a better chance.

From his observations he told the gathering that where dictators controlled the lives of the people they first destroyed the family way of life and as a result were directly responsible for causing much of the misery visited on the world through disrupting normal life through wars. In the end, he said, the dictators invariably fall.

Dear Father and Mother: - Received two letters from you yesterday, and one from Mary and two from Ella. They were all telling me about the snow storms. I am glad Feb. is here, as it is getting much closer to getting home. We are having very good weather now. The sun shines nearly every day. Sometimes we have an odd bit of snow, but it goes in no time. I got my pictures the other day, so am sending you two, I sent some to Mary and Ella. I don't have much to write you these days. My news is scarce, I am busy some days looking after the wounded, can't tell you very much. I do well to make up two pages for you. Those pictures were taken in Dec. You can see it wasn't very cold. Say hello to the neighbors for me, I trust they are all well. Our Brigade is out on rest now, will probably be out until we go home, if I go on the first draft I'll be leaving the 20th March for Canada.

Well I don't have much more to say, so I'll close now. See that you take good care of yourselves. Good-bye. Your Ever Loving Son Johnny.

COULD BE CALAMITY

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 - (CP) - The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan "could be indeed a calamity greater than any which has struck Canadian agriculture since the great drought of the 1930s," M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. Leader, said tonight. In an address prepared for delivery on the CBC's "National Business" series of free-time political broadcasts, Mr. Coldwell expressed alarm at the effect of the disease on Canadian trade. He said his party will support a program of maintaining a proper distribution of meat products across Canada, at the same time maintaining a satisfactory floor price for threatened farm commodities.

Stresses Importance Of Conservation Education

Conservation education should deal with all natural resources, starting at the community level and operating on all levels of instruction, said Mr. T. M. Lothian, professor of biology at Prince of Wales College, in addressing the Fish and Game Association here last evening.

The speaker pointed out that in 1896 there was only one game law in this island. There was a closed season on ruffed grouse from April to September, and apart from this islanders could hunt for fish when and where they pleased. This displeased many of the farmers of the day. "We still have the problem of control of hunting in this agricultural province," he added. "The informed farmer is our best conservation agent and it is essential to have the goodwill and cooperation of all groups."

Dam At Pownal

Referring to the proposed dam at Pownal, Mr. Lothian said there was a project at the community level and it should be discussed at every level of education in the community, so that every youngster knows what is being done and why. Not only should it be discussed in the classroom but an effort should be made to visit the site before and after the project. Youngsters interested in outdoor life and wildlife can contribute much to conservation and they soon become a rich source of information as to the number and location of partridge broods, hawk's nests, Speckling of deer, Mr. Lothian said that in forty per cent of the American States this animal has become so numerous as to cause serious loss to farmers. This has brought about an effort to manage the deer by withdrawing the buck law and opening hunting for does. This was a logical control measure but in some places it could not be done because the public simply would not condone hunting of does. "We should understand and teach the habitat requirements for our native and introduced game species," he emphasized. "Prairie chickens can only survive where we have native plant succession and grassland. These are essential for mere survival and we can not have abundance of this species where there is intensive agriculture. Nor is it likely that we can have abundance of each of several competing species of upland game."

Canada's 1951 Immigration Is 38 Year Record

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 - (CP) - Canada brought in 194,891 new settlers during 1951 in her biggest immigration in 38 years. The influx, 1-1/2 per cent of the population, was the heaviest since 1913. It outstripped the 73,912 of 1950 and was well above the previous post-war mark of 125,414 in 1948.

Immigration Minister Harris, disclosing the 1951 figures to the National Advisory Council on manpower, indicated a high rate of immigration would be continued in the next few months at least. He expressed belief that the rate of arrivals could be based on an expectation of continued buoyant economic conditions for Canada.

The 1951 total of immigrants was made up of 114,785 workers - adding about two per cent to the working force - and 79,605 dependents.

While the Minister assigned specifically no reason for the big 1951 jump, several factors operated through the year to contribute to it. These included more shipping facilities and government loan assistance in paying for passage. Germans provided the largest single racial group - 32,285 - compared with 5,823 the year before. The British Isles total increased by 134 per cent, going to 31,370 from 13,427. Of that number, 19,109 were English, 9,201 Scottish, 2,506 Irish and 554 Welsh.

Continental northern Europeans supplied 71,872 prospective Canadians, jumping 321 per cent from 17,060 in 1950. Next to the Germans, the largest single group from that area - 19,130 - were Netherlands.

Talians accounted for 24,251, jumping from 6,939 and leading the way among racial origins outside the United Kingdom and the northern continent. Among the immigrant groups of any size, the only one showing a drop - and that a slight one - was from the United States. Americans entering Canada fell off to 7,732 from 7,799.

Some of the other major 1951 totals included: Poles, 12,938; Ukrainians, 6,894; Danes, 4,613; Finns, 4,130; Yugoslavs, 4,144. Most of the immigrants went to Ontario, which absorbed 104,842. The figures for the other provinces: Newfoundland, 259; Nova Scotia, 2,025; New Brunswick, 1,423; Prince Edward Island, 211; Quebec, 46,033; Manitoba, 8,743; Saskatchewan, 4,178; Alberta, 12,228; British Columbia, 14,394; Yukon and Northwest Territories, 29.

Jardine Will To Go Back To Probate Court

The Court of Probate, Judge H. L. Palmer, must again hear proof in solemn form of the will and codicil of the late William Faulkner Jardine of Inverness, Highland, which was ruled by the Supreme Court in Banco yesterday. Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell dissenting.

The estate had previously come before the Court of Probate. No party had asked for its removal to the Supreme Court and Judge Palmer heard the proof in solemn form and gave judgment Dec. 15, 1949, upholding the validity of the will.

On appeal to the Supreme Court in Banco it was unanimously ruled that this judgment be set aside and a new trial by the Probate Court was ordered on June 22, 1950. This judgment was upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada on Oct. 10, 1951.

The matter being thus back in the Probate Court, Judge Palmer under Sec. 125 (1) of the Probate Act caused the proceedings to be removed into the Supreme Court. The present majority judgment is to the effect that the discretion allowed by Sec. 125 (1) must be exercised when proceedings are commenced, whereas the proceedings are still in the Probate Court and it is too late for the Probate Judge to exercise his discretion by transferring them to the Supreme Court.

Counsel for the appellant executor were Messrs. J. A. Bentley, Q.C., and M. MacKinnon, Q.C. Counsel for the respondents, Adelaide Christine Stanley and Marguerite Valentine MacLeod.
