MARY HAWORTH Engaged Man Continues To Postpone His Wedding

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a widow, 35, without dependents. Following my husband's death almost four years ago, I did not marry for a full year, not only because of mourning but also because it felt impossible to fall in love again. I have since had five marriages and my husband had become everything to me: so I married him again, or even took for a replacement. But after a year, a bachelor, five years my junior, was transferred here from my former home town.

A mutual good friend had written to me about this, asking me to introduce him to suitable men, chiefly because, as I wouldn't be interested in his type, even if I weren't bereaved.

Well, I lined up some girls, who he refused even to meet. He preferred me and was willing to wait. I had had other admirers since being widowed, but he would not be interested in my rampant rush act. Yet I fell gradually in love with this man, chiefly because of his subtle persistence and patience.

Now we have been engaged for two years. I am completely reconciled to marrying him and see no reason for further delay. He keeps talking of our wedding, but never pinpoints an actual date. He is very faithful and on the surface seems to love me a great deal. I have a good job.

Each member is to complete a cross-clash sampler for display at the local convention. Membership in the Musical Festival is $1.00, and a $2.00 fee paid and $2 to be sent to the TB League. The cultural letter is to be completed by the convener Mrs. Inez Dixon.

The program consisted of a discussion on Christmas customs and a contest on the lines of favorite Christmas songs was held. Mr. and Mrs. James McCorkin and also in Seattle where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Chaisson.

MR. AND MRS. MAURICE KELLY Young Couple Plight Troth At Ceremony In Fort Augustus

St. Patrick's Church, Fort Augustus, was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Mary Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kelly, became the bride of Maurice Alfred Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly, Blooming Point.

Rev. T. P. Butler performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial mass. The altar boys were Lorne Hughes and Gary Hughes, cousins of the bride.

During the nuptial mass and the signing of the register appropriate hymns were rendered by Mr. George MacDonnell, accompanied by Sister M. Winifred.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length white silk organza over taffeta, enriched with lace appliques and carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations. Her four-tier shoulder length veil of white illusion was held in place by a crown of iridescent sequins and seeded pearls. She carried a bouquet of red sweetest roses.

She was attended by Helen Power and Ruth Hughes, bridesmaids of the bride. They wore identical gowns of mini green chiffon over taffeta with matching head dress and carried nosegays of white mums.

The groom was attended by his brother, George Kelly. The guests were ushered to their seats by Mr. Paul Hughes and Mr. Lawrence Corrigan.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kelly chose a royal blue

ELLEN'S DIARY Clear White Winter Days Are January's Treasure

January gives them now: the clean white of the wintry days. So they were in our memory, so they remain: mostly white and frosted - and lengthened as the moon grows. Only a little, it is true, but definitely the short dark days of the Fall are now no more. The year is at a new beginning.

1963, we write. And reflecting, find it, in the light of the advances of Science as it seeks to disclose mysteries of long years, at times somewhat of a prospect. Yet we are confident that adorning as of old, the months ahead, many a daisy, the blossoms of earth there will be: planings and flowerings, robins dew-peaked, ever, washed in a lingering afterglow, morning suns, thrushes' notes. Yes, no matter the progress and the anxieties of a world kept more or less near fearsome a root of men's fashioning, the farmlands, and for "All God's children," these things will remain.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS St. Pius CWL Members Discuss Coming Activities

The St. Pius parish council of the CWL held their January meeting on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. M. J. Kelly, chair. Four new members were welcomed to the organization at the beginning of the meeting.

The correspondence and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. M. J. Kelly. Mrs. E. Daley reported having contacted Miss Frances MacDougall, teacher at Parkdale Junior High School, regarding the public speaking courses and the minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Guy Gammeter. A number of articles were passed in for the ISC layout and some Red Cross sewing was given out.

It was decided that the Institute would hold a penny auction on Wednesday, January 16 and all members were asked to send donations of small articles suitable for this event. Mrs. MacEwen reported that she had obtained the glass and picture that is to be presented to the Catholic Children at St. Beaton reported that the material for the study period at the regular meetings had not arrived but that she hoped to have it for the February meeting. A discussion on various ways of fund raising followed and several good ideas were brought out by the members.

At the close of the meeting Father Andrew MacDonnell in the absence of Mrs. MacEwen, spoke briefly to the ladies and stressed the importance of good reading in the home.

GREENVALE V.I. The December meeting of the Greenvale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Mary MacPherson recently with nine members attending. The meeting opened in the usual manner.
