

W. Prince Celebrations Here To Be Marched Cosely

By GEORGE CONDON
"In 1864, Charlottetown wrote the first chapter in Canadian unity," says Charlottetown's historical role—to write the first chapter in the history of how much the nation has grown." John Fisher, commissioner of the National Centennial Administration, told the graduating class of Prince of Wales College in an address yesterday.

"The Centennial of 1964 is the grand premiere for the nation-wide events of 1967, the whole nation will be watching to see how Charlottetown plans to honor the event. The Fathers of Confederation Memorial Building will be the focal point around which we gather for retrospect and reedification," he said.

"Canada is not a country. The Fathers of Confederation envisaged. They had different ideas, but I am sure that if they could sit in judgement they would say in view of changing world conditions we had done very well. If they could talk to the world, they would find that we are rated as one of the stars of national development."

"The centennials of '64 and '67 are the centennials of pride what we have accomplished and a firm resolve to strengthen the ties of the country as a primary purpose of the centennial—a more wholesome Canada for all."

DEVELOPMENT "SLOW"
Mr. Fisher also told the graduates that although the development of the country was a little slow, it was now taking its proper place. "It was a late start, but the progress has been made to be proud of," he said.

He felt that the present leaders of the country should make every effort to take big strides and to leave something of note behind them. "If you do not accomplish the

S'side School, UIC Office Receive 'Bomb' Threats

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
A telephoned bomb threat made to the Summer Street Elementary School yesterday afternoon, was the second reported bomb call made in Summerside in the past three days.

The first was received at the National Employment Office, Wednesday.

Yesterday afternoon when school principal, Norman Macdonald answered a phone call at two minutes past two, a male voice said "there's a bomb planted in your school and will go off at seven minutes past two."

Mr. Macdonald, while reporting the call to the janitor and other teachers, concluded that the threat was without foundation.

He pointed out last evening however, that the irresponsibility of the party calling, could possibly have triggered an alarm that would have led to panic among the small children, and could have resulted in injury to some of the youngsters attending classes.

The National Employment office received a call late Wednesday afternoon also made in a male voice, stating that a bomb would explode within the building in a few minutes.

Principal Presents PWC Report

The 12th convocation in at Prince of Wales College took place yesterday, with one of the largest classes in history being graduated.

The principal of the institution, Dr. Frank MacKinnon, told the gathering that the year had been a most successful one. The enrollment was a record high and most of the students did excellent work.

The college had a record year of attendance, he explained, and it was by a large margin the highest enrolment in its history. In the university years, alone, there were three times the number of students from only five years before.

For the students who had some trouble during the year he offered encouragement. "We would like to see them back for another year," he said. "Academic work is just like sports; if you don't make the bar in the high jump, or plays are difficult in hockey, or football, if you can't cast a light fly in trout fishing, you do the same as you should do in English or mathematics—patiently practice until you master it."

Sister S. Eileen, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and correspondence from A. MacLeod, principal, Charlottetown concerning citizens who are laying plans for 1964. I certainly found no doubt here yesterday among those citizens well. The Fathers of Confederation came here in 1864, there were some doubters but I am sure that if they could sit in judgement they would say in view of changing world conditions we had done very well. If they could talk to the world, they would find that we are rated as one of the stars of national development."
