Montague Notes.

There are several strangers in the village taking a vacation. A summer hotel is much needed here. Who will be the first to move in the matter?

The funeral of the late Mrs. Peter Stewart was attended by a very large number of people. Over seventy carriages followed her remains to Lower Montague cemetery. Much sympathy is manifested towards the family for their sudden bereavement.

The eldest son of James M. Aitken, Esq., met with an accident a few days ago. A young lad was pitching hay to him on a wagon, when the fork accidentally pierced the side of young Aitken, but its coming against a bone stopped its progress and prevented what might otherwise have been a sad and fatal accident.

Montague is still progressing. New buildings are being erected and old ones are being repaired and improved. The sound of the mechanics tools can be heard in all directions. Employment is plenty and wages good.

Mr. John Beaton is putting up a dwelling house on the Gaul property, as well as some others.

The Presbyterian congregation here have, with commendable zeal, commenced to build a manse for their pastor. The site chosen is a good one, and the building when finished will be a comfortable and handsome structure, reflecting much credit on that large and influential body of people.

Owing to the large increase of business in the Montague carriage factory, the enterprising proprietor, Mr. John McLean, has been under the necessity of building an addition to his factory. When completed it will be double as large as before, and it will also be one of the largest, if not the largest, establishments of the kind on the Island. As Mr. McLean is about taking his son, Harry, one of the finest young men of Montague, into business with him, the new firm will have ample scope to supply the increasing demands of the public by turning out work equal, if not superior, to that of any other firm on the Island.

The Pocket-Book Flirtation.

A SILLY "FAD" WHICH IS FOLLOWED BY FOOLISH GIRLS.

"Have you heard the latest flirtation 'fad'?" asked his best girl of one of the Call men the other day. "No," was the reply. "Well, it's the pocketbook flirtation. You, of course, know all about the fan and handkerchief flirtations, but the pocketbook signs from young ladies to the opposite sex are much more subtle, harder to understand, and are less indelicate than those made with either the fan or the handkerchief.

"Explain it to you? Of course; but I must first be sure that you have noticed the long pocketbook which the ladies carry nowadays. Of course you have. Walking along the street and desiring to attract a gentleman's attention, we gently rub the left cheek with the book. 'Follow me' is communicated by holding the book in the right hand delicately pointed to the rear. 'Would like to make your acquaintance,' carried at arm's length at the right side pointed downwards. 'Consider us introduced, the same position only on the left side. 'Admiration Loted and returned,' in the left hand near the heart. 'We are observed,' shifting it nervously from hand to hand.

"Of course," she continued, "these are only the principal movements. In fact the others have not yet been decided upon. I'll keep you posted."—Philadelphia Call.

In Brief, And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy. Remember: No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

FINAL NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.—All persons who have not paid their city tax on real estate, personal property and poll, for this year (1887), are requested to pay the same on or before the 31st August, inst. All defaulters after that date will be advertised, and exceptions will be issued; and all horses and carriage tax and dog tax for this year (1887), unpaid by the 20th of August inst., will be sued for without respect of persons.—F. S. Chandler, City Collector. aug 3—tl 20th

The official reports state that during the twelve months ending June 30th, 1887, the number of emigrants who landed in the United States was 484,116. Of these 106,559 came from Germany, 74,020 from England and Wales, and 64,130 from Ireland. It is now said that very many of the emigrants must, from one cause or another, become a burden to the State, although there was probably very little difference on the whole between the emigrants of last year and those of any year for the last dozen or twenty years. The number of emigrants in 1836 was 328,895.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. mar 17 eod & wky

Sir Lyon Playfair will sail for America next Wednesday.

Sea Bathing.

ITS STIMULATING EFFECT UPON THE HUMAN SYSTEM.

Sea-bathing, on account of its stimulative and penetrating powers, may be placed at the head of those means that regard the care of the skin, and which certainly supplies one of the first wants of the present generation, by opening the pores and thereby reinvigorating the whole nervous system. This bathing is attended with two important advantages. The first is, that besides its great healing power in case of disease, it may be employed by those who are perfectly well, as the means most agreeable to nature for strengthening and preserving health. In this respect it may be compared to bodily exercise, which can remove diseases otherwise incurable, and which may be used also by those who are sound, in order to preserve themselves in that state. The other advantage is the noble, grand and indescribable prospect of the sea connected with it, and which, on those not acquainted with it, has an effect capable of bracing up the nervous system and producing a beneficial exaltation of the whole frame.

I am fully convinced that the physical effects of sea bathing must be greatly increased by this impression on the mind, and that a hypochondriac or nervous person may be half cured by residing on the sea coast for a short time and enjoying a view of the grand scenes of nature which will there present themselves.

Seafaring men are peculiarly exempt from dyspepsia, from their great simplicity of living united with exercise, good air and a comparative freedom from the embarrassing cares of city life. All active trades are more favorable to the soundness of the stomach than sedentary employments. The fewer the articles of food we eat and the greater the uniformity we observe in eating them the greater will be our chance of escaping dyspepsia.

The constant murmur of the waves of the sea tends to soothe the brain and promote profound sleep. The nervous headache, to which most weakly persons are subject from indigestion, bad blood, or defective circulation, is frequently entirely removed by the refreshing air of the ocean. Walking along the shore of a morning and evening, breathing the pure, fresh air, and bathing in its healthful waters, together with the bright and glittering light reflected from its bosom is peculiarly calculated to promote cheerfulness, and is very favorable to the action of the heart and nerves of persons in delicate health. The elevating thoughts, the pure air, all assist and are more beneficial in producing sound health than all the medicines that can be administered. When the curative powers of nature fail, all medicines are useless.—Housenife.

Seventeen Centuries in an Oven.

In the exhumation of Pompeii one house was discovered which was evidently in a state of repair when the volcanic storm buried it. Painters, decorators and cleaners were masters of the situation. The household goods were all in disorder, and the family, if not out of town, must have been undergoing that condition of misery which spring cleanings and other like afflictions entail. Painters' pots and brushes and workmen's tools were scattered all over the house. Tell tale spots of whitewash starred wall and floor. Such domestic implements as pots and kettles had been banded up in a corner all by themselves, and the cook was not east. Dinner, however, had not been forgotten. A solitary pot stood simmering, if it ever did simmer, on the stove. There was a bronze dish in waiting before the oven, and on the dish a sucking-pig, all ready to be baked; but the oven was already engaged with its full complement of bread. So the pig had to wait, and it never entered the oven, and the loaves were never taken out till after a lapse of 1,700 years. They had been baking since August 24, A. D. 79. There were 21 of them—rather crusty, of course, and rather dark-colored, but perfectly preserved.

Courtship in China.

In China love making follows marriage, and lasts only about three days after the ceremony. There is no "spooning" previous to marriage. For this reason a man seldom weds a girl of his own town. They are likewise prevented from marrying kins or namesakes. Joneses are not allowed to marry Joneses nor Smiths marry Smiths. Old women, instead of young, are belles of society. The highest recommendation a man can have is in the fact of his having a wife. A bachelor is likened to a counter-feit coin; he is looked upon with suspicion even by members of his own household. A girl is never considered anything else in her father's house than an honored guest. She is neither responsible for the family's debts nor enjoys a share in its fortunes, as in the case of the sons. Daughters depend upon their husbands for fame and fortune, while sons depend upon their parents and themselves.

That there will be an abundant harvest in the Northwest is now beyond a peradventure. The wheat crop is by this time almost, if not altogether, beyond the danger of frost. A telegram from Shoal Lake, Manitoba, dated the 28th ult., says: "Wheat is beginning to turn a golden color, indicating the approach of harvest, which will doubtless commence about the 10th prox. It will be observed that the season is considerably further advanced in the Northwest than it is in the eastern parts of the Dominion. The road to one settler's house, the correspondent of a Winnipeg paper says, is through a 110 acre field of wheat which will, from its present appearance, turn out forty bushels per acre. The same settler has nearly 200 acres of grain to harvest. Turnips, potatoes and roots of all kinds, he says, are looking splendid.

W. H. PATTEE, salesman for Easterbrook & Eaton, Boston, writes: "It gives me pleasure to say that Adamson's Botanic Balsam cured me of a severe cold, to which I had been subject, especially during the winter months, and I have in many instances recommended it to my friends, and they have all been benefited by its use. I think it has no equal as a cough mixture." Trial bottles 10 cents.
