The Birthday Murder

By Lange Lewis

CHAPTER FOUR—Part Two
Bernice took three steps forward and then said: "I don't know what to do!"

Victoria led her into the narrow hall where the many bottles of an improvised bar stood in a deep window embrasure opposite the telephone niche.

"I'm going to get you a drink," she said.

"Walter's found out everything!" Bernice shrieked in her tiny voice. "There was a letter two months ago that I lost and Stan's letters were always so affectionate and Walter found it, but I didn't know that. And then he began to notice things, and today he made a scene and he is going to divorce me."

Victoria held out a small glass of whiskey. Bernice looked down at it and said, "You know I can't stand straight whiskey!" So Victoria added seltzer and then went to the kitchen. Bernice talking at her heels, where she washed her hands from her. Bernice took the glass from her. Moisture on its side wet her suede glove but she did not notice that, and she drank thirstily, making little sucking noises like a child.

"Let's go into the living room," Victoria said.

The ice tinkled in Bernice's glass as she followed, and her high heels clicked on the floor. She was silent for long enough to sit down on the sofa and finish her drink. She stared at the silver tea things, still on the low table. Then she burst out: "Walter was dreadful, cold and icy, as though I was in the witness box. And he means it, Victoria! He means it! He'll do it! I'll have all the disgrace of his getting the divorce and not a cent of alimony!"

"Some husbands are like that." "The things he said to me! Oh, no name calling, but it was worse than that! And the slyness of it, suspecting it for so long and just biding his time!"

"I imagine that the fact it was Stan annoyed him as much as anything else. Stan's so obviously a bouncer, to use the term Walter probably used in speaking of him."

"Vicky! How did you know?"

"Well, try to figure it as the world well lost for love."

"But I can't. What would I live on?"

"It's not your fault," said Victoria. "It's your upbringing that's to blame."

"My mother was a good woman!"

"Yes. She was. She raised you to believe that your beauty should command the highest price in order to justify its existence. You married a man of 38 when you were 20. You didn't love him. Remember what she said when you got cold feet and told her you didn't want to go through with the wedding?"

"She said, 'But the invitations are all out,' recalled Bernice.

"Yes. So you divorced him when you were 27. I don't particularly blame you for that. But what she was about to say congealed in her mouth. She couldn't say it.

Creating Light Through Recreation

An important element in the rehabilitation programme of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is the special adaptation of games and appliances for the use of sightless men and women. In the above picture are two blind men who are playing cards using what appears at a glance to be ordinary playing cards, but these cards have in addition to the ordinary printed markings, small Braille dots and by touching these dots the player is able to read the number and suit of each card.

Since the cards are marked both in Braille and print, the blind person can enjoy the game with another sightless person or with sighted friends.

Checker boards and chess games are also specially adapted, with square hollows on the wooden board taking the place of the black squares, and the checkers are made in two sizes so that the blind participant can tell his men by size rather than by color. Even the game of bingo has been made available by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind by metal cards manufactured in place of ink print paper cards. The metal cards have a hollow circle for each number and the number is written in the hollow by means of raised Braille dots, so that when a called number is found on the card it can be covered by a small metal washer instead of small objects used by sighted bingo players. Interlocking dominos with Braille markings, and other popular games have been made available through the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and when sold to sightless people the price tag is usually considerably less than the cost of the article to the Institute.

Besides the adaptation of recreational games which are so important in helping the adult blind to pass what would otherwise be long and tedious hours, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind makes available Braille pocket and wrist watches, alarm clocks, self-threading needles, white canes, and many other appliances which help in the practical day to day living of the blind housewife, the sightless canteen operator and blind Canadians generally. These appliances, like the playing cards and games, are available to the blind at cost or less.

Concurrent with Canadian National Institute for the Blind's constant striving to improve its employment service, Home Teaching, Braille and Talking Book Library service, and social services, the continuous search for a better and wider range of specially adapted games and appliances goes on. Only through the foresight and energetic activity of the C. N. I. B. can the work of improved recreation, rehabilitation, and education of the adult Canadian Blind continue to be the light in the darkness which will make life more liveable for those who have lost their sight.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of
AMELIA BEATRICE JENKINS
October 19th, 1940.

Thoughts drift back to days gone past
Life moves on, but memories last.
Deep in our hearts her memory is kept
We who loved her will never forget.

Sadly Missed by Mother and Dad,
Mae and Erwin.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our Mother,
Mrs. Ella MacVittie who passed away
October 18th, 1948.

To think of the evening you left us,
Will always bring regret,
But the hearts that always loved you,
Are the ones that can't forget.

God gave us strength to bear our grief,
Courage to face the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.

Ever Remembered by Alice and Jeanette.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear
Wife Mrs. Cyriac Gallant, who departed this life October 19th, 1950.

Sweet are the memories that never fade,
Of one we loved but could not save.
Always so true, unselfish and kind,
Few in the world her equal you'll find.
Beautiful life that came to an end,
She died as she lived, everyone's friend.

Inserted by Her Husband and Grandmother Marjorie.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of Mrs. Cyriac Gallant, Mayfield, who passed away October 19th, 1951.

Gone but not forgotten
The one we love so dear,
We tried so hard to keep her with us,
But the day came when God called her away
And left us here, in flood of tears.

Fondly Remembered by Her
Daughter Ida and Son-in-Law
Aubin.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Walton T. Toombs who passed away October 18th, 1948.

Deep in our hearts lies a picture,
More precious than silver or gold,
'Tis a picture of a dear Husband and Father,
Whose memory will never grow old.

God only knows how we miss him,
In a home that is lonely yet,
But the hearts that always loved him,
Are the ones that never forget.

Ever Remembered by His Wife and Family.
