Head Gardiner Was Disappointed

(By The Canadian Press)
CHARLOTTETOWN, June 14—Wilfred Smith is a broken-hearted man. Wilfred who is Lieut.-Governor DeBolt's head gardener had been working for months beautifying the allowed formal English garden which is part of the grounds of Government House. But King George and Queen Elizabeth didn't see it. Rain poured down in torrents when the ladies came to lunch and it was decided not to hold the Garden Party that was scheduled as a part of the reception of the Royal Couple. Presentation of Prince Edward Island dignitaries to the sovereigns was to be held there too. The presentation was held in the House and a lone, decorated figure stood among the flowers. It was Wilfred Smith. Flowers which are Governor DeBolt's hobby were to highlight the function Wilfred had beautified. He laid out in which Tulips were predominant. Foxgloves and delphiniums were there too, all bright and brave for Their Majesties. Graciful trees, birch, elm and yew were completely complete. Wilfred was to have thrilled King George.

Europe Ships Make Sea-Ports Of Lake Points

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 15—(CP)—Norwegian and Dutch skipper aren't waiting for the proposed $543,429,000 Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterways project to extend America's seacoast to mid-west granaries and industrial centres. They are reaching the Great Lakes now by existing waterways. Direct-from-Europe service has grown steadily since 1930, and this season the 25-odd ships of the Norwegian, Dutch and Canadian lines are expected to double their 1938 tonnage. They're bringing to Great Lakes ports newsprint from Sweden, canned fish and cod liver oil from Scandinavian ports, and general cargo from London, Antwerp, Oslo, Rotterdam and Liverpool. The ships complete the 40-day round trip with automobiles from Detroit, pig iron and structural steel from Chicago, Cleveland and the Canadian Sault Ste. Marie, and occasionally, with wheat from as far inland as Duluth, Minn., and the Canadian head-of-steam port of Port Arthur and Fort William. These vessels are able to negotiate the 1,680-mile inland journey from the mouth of the St. Lawrence because they are small. They traverse some canals larger ships could not navigate. The vessel run about 260 feet in length—about that of the average lake freighter—and 41 feet in beam. They draw only 14 feet of water and carry a crew of about 20 men. In winter, when ice keeps them off the lakes, they ply in the Mediterranean fruit trade.

Royalty Met With Variety Of Weather

(By MURIEL ADAMS, Canadian Press Staff Writer)
ABOARD ROYAL YACHT TRAIN. June 14—(CP)—Rain fell today but the King and Queen took it in their stride as they have sun and wind. The boats of the accumulated drops and went on their way cheerfully. Although there had been smatterings of wet weather in Ottawa, more in Winnipeg and tinzel-like showers in Regina and Victoria. Their Majesties met their first Canadian downpour today. Perhaps they considered it a welcome downfall after the intense heat of the United States and the bright sun of the Prairies and in western Ontario for their faces were flushed with sun and the King's nose was on the verge of peeling. During the four-weeks' tour of Canada and the United States, the weather man has played his part well, showing the Royal pair varied climates from east to west, and their Majesties have approved. When ever was practicable they weathered the atmosphere. The Queen let the sun shine on her face across Canada, until Victoria, when she brought out a parasol, which she used frequently the rest of the trip to shade her, and until today both the King and Queen preferred to get a little wet by driving in an open car. But in the heavy wind and rain today, because they were not in the public eye on their short motor drive from the train along the pier to the dock at Cape Tormentine, N. B., the hood of the car remained up. The car top was down for the first stage of the Charlottetown procession but later a driving rain caused it to be raised for the journey to the embarkation pier. Banff was, perhaps, the windiest episode on the Canadian tour. When their Majesties first came from their suite to pose for photographers on the terrace of their hotel, the wind would not allow the Queen's hair to stay in place. She returned quickly to her room and put on a hat to ensure the cameraman a good view of her face. Use Minard's for bites.

WOOL WOOL WOOL

The Prince Edward Island Sheep Breeders' Association, on account of the excellent sales made of Island wool through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Limited, are able to pay last year's shippers who patronize the Association during the present season an additional two cents per pound on last year's shipments. This is an evidence of the fine work of the Co-operative organization and demonstrates the value of marketing through the farmers' own organization whereby the full market value of the wool is received.

This year's clip will be sold on the same basis and any increase in the value of the wool secured through good marketing services will be rebated to the shippers at the end of the year.

Shippers last year will thus receive twelve cents per pound for their wool. This year's price is twelve cents at the present time with whatever increase may be secured after the sales have been completed.

Ship your wool at once to the Sheep Breeders' Association, Charlottetown, or contact our representative in the field, as follows:

"HOPPER" EXPERT PLANS PEST CURB

SYDNEY, Australia, June 15—(CP)—T. McCarthy, entomologist in the News South Wales department of agriculture, is visiting Canada and the United States to investigate modern methods of combating the grasshopper pest. After Mr. McCarthy has visited these two countries he will move to London and then to South Africa. In London he will discuss the problem with officers of the International Commission for Grasshopper Control. He will be away about six months. Grasshopper plagues have, in the past, caused great damage amounting to thousands of pounds in Australia, and many fields have been eaten out by the pest. Why Be Penny Wise and Pound Foolish in Feeding Fox & Mink?

When you feed so little cereal and Ross-Miller food costs only a few cents more per 100 lbs., why risk poor breeders and poor pets with cheap feeds?

The richer vitamin content of R-M Vita Crumble is the biggest factor in bringing better pet prices. You'll make more money feeding R-M Foods. Write for new feeding schedule. Ross Miller Meats Co. Limited, Yarmouth, Ontario.
