Standing Up For a Principle.
"How much does it cost to send a letter from here to San Francisco?" asked a tall, angular woman with a masculine voice and a somewhat hairy chin as she stepped up to one of the stamp windows at the postoffice.
"Two cents, ma'am."
"And how much to send a letter to Bethany, Missouri?"
"Two cents."
"I won't pay it."
"Very well, ma'am."
"I didn't suppose you'd throw off anything on account of the shorter distance, but I thought I'd ask you, anyhow. When you carry a letter to San Francisco for 2 cents, you ought to carry four to Bethany for 1 cent. It's a shame. I don't have to send my letter through this postoffice, and I won't. There's a neighbor of mine going to Bethany next week, and she'll take it for me and be glad to do it. I don't care for the 2 cents, mind you, but I'm not going to be swindled. I've been reading up on these things, and I'm—"
"That's all right, ma'am, but I'm very much occupied, and—"
"You ain't occupied any harder than I am, young man, but I've got time to tell you that this government's a cheat and a swindle and it's founded on wrong principles and I'm agin it from the word go and it's never going to get any money out of me when I can help it, and I generally can. You don't get any 2 cents out of me for taking a letter to Missouri. Under stand?"
With a look of lofty scorn she turned away from the stamp window and went out of the office.—Chicago Tribune.

A Lesson In Frugality.
Guy, the founder of Guy's hospital in London, was as parsimonious in private life as he was munificent in public. John Hopkins, one of his contemporaries, who was nicknamed Vulture Hopkins on account of his rapacious mode of acquiring his immense wealth, on one occasion paid a visit to Guy, who, on Hopkins entering the room, lighted a farthing candle. Hopkins, being asked the reason of his visit, said: "I have been told that you, sir, are better versed in the prudent and necessary art of saving than any man living, and I therefore wait on you for a lesson in frugality. I have always regarded myself as an adept in this matter, but I am told you excel me." "Oh," replied Guy, "if that is all you come to talk about, we can discuss the matter in the dark," and thereupon he blew out the candle. Hopkins acknowledged that he had met his superior in thrift.—San Francisco Argonaut.

How Tommy Helped.
Minister—Ah, Tommy, is that you? I trust you are always a good boy, Tommy?
Tommy—Yes, sir.
Minister—That's right. I am sure you are always kind to your good mother.
Tommy—Yes, sir. I was helping her yesterday.
Minister—Very glad to hear it, Tommy. What did you do for her yesterday?
Tommy—I helped her with the washing, sir. She said she couldn't get on with the washing if we didn't take our dinner an hour sooner, and I took it as soon as she had it ready.—Exchange.

Bits of Wisdom.
Bear in mind these bits of homely wisdom: Pure water, pure air, sunshine and wholesome food are the best preventives against disease. Cultivate exquisite cleanliness. Make daily use of baths. Try to always get eight hours' sleep.
An unpleasant odor for 24 hours may mean a fever for 24 days. Digestion is assisted by cheerfulness.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

In the manufacture of knives the division of labor has been carried to such an extent that one knife is handled by 70 different artisans from the moment the blade is forged until the instrument is finished and ready for the market.
