

Motherhood.

A child may come into the world perfect or blemished, pretty or plain; it matters little or nothing to this all-indulgent heavenly passion of motherhood. She is there to be to it the love of heaven incarnated; the visible spirit of supreme and exquisite acceptance which exists elsewhere invisibly behind all the troubles of the world to make the best of our merits and the least of our faults and failings. It is her child—that is enough. It will be lapped from its first breath in the royal purple of passionate affection; it will be fed from a bosom which can lull it to slumber with sweeter music than kings could command—it is actually, as Emerson said, a prince or princess of the royal blood. If blood be royal which runs rich with the oldest instincts of creation, and is descended, we may reverently say, from the Maker's own word.

There can be little surprise, when we reflect upon this beautiful inspiration of maternal attachment, that Raphael should have painted as he did his famous picture of the "Madonna della seggiola," which forms one of the greatest glories of the Florentine Gallery.

The grand patrons of art in the Italian capital had commissioned their chief artist to execute for them a "capo d'opera," a work of glory and majesty which should worthily represent the Holy Virgin, and be the boast of the most splendid church in Florence. What Raphael did was to wander in the market place until he saw a comely Tuscan mother suckling her infant; and then and there, upon the bottom of a wine cask, he swiftly sketched the beautiful figure, since known to all the world, wherein the glad and tender wife broods over the baby boy, pressing him to her breast, folding her arms like shields of love about him, and bending half downward to the nestling little one, half outward to the world, the thoughtful, proud, and lovely countenance which is to her child as the azure face of the sky is to us—as much as can be seen of heaven, as much as can be present glory and love of God.—London Telegraph.

His First Case.

"How are you getting along?" asked an old judge of a young lawyer. "Very well, thank you," was the reply. "I got my first case to-day." "Indeed! and what was it?" "A book case."

Ignorance and superstition have rendered very difficult the task of fighting the cholera in Italy. Last month, in Percino, a small village in Calabria, shots were fired from the windows of some of the houses in order to keep off the supposed distributors of the cholera poison. A small body of carabinieri was consequently sent there, but they were received with volleys of stones and shots, so that the men were obliged to use their firearms in selfdefence.

SOMETHING NEW.—There has always been great difficulty in getting water-proof coats to fit satisfactorily about the neck and shoulders, for stout and round-shouldered men. You can avoid this and have a perfect fit by leaving your measure with us. We have made arrangements with an English firm to have these coats made on our own patterns, so that we are in a position to warrant a good fit. We can show over 100 samples of the goods from which the coats will be made, ranging in price from $8 to $24. Every coat warranted to come the same as sample of goods shown. You can have better material and cheaper than buying ready-made goods.—John McLeod & Co., Merchant Tailors. [aug 27

THE SCOTT Act is now in force in Charlottetown and will remain so until the majority of electors decide otherwise. For the purpose of discontinuing the Act in Charlottetown a petition was presented to the Governor-General praying that the Act should be repealed so far as this city is concerned. The present election is therefore held for the purpose of taking the vote of electors for and against this petition.

The voting will be by ballot, and the following is the form to be used, viz:

OCTOBER 16, 1884. Voting on the petition for the revocation of the order in Council bringing into force of the second part of "The Canada Temperance Act, 1878," in the City of Charlottetown.

FOR THE PETITION: If the voter is in favor of repealing the Scott Act in Charlottetown he will place a X in the upper space alongside of the words, "For the Petition." If in favor of continuing the Scott Act in Charlottetown the voter will place a in the lower space alongside of the words, "Against the Petition."

AGAINST THE PETITION: If the voter places on the ballot paper more than one mark his vote will not be counted. This election is for the City of Charlottetown only, and we understand that the residents of the Royalty have no votes. It is even doubtful whether non-residents, owning property or paying rent in the city, are entitled to vote. The better opinion seems to be that actual residence in Charlottetown or Common is necessary to entitle a person (otherwise qualified) to vote.
