Island-born Nurse's Fine Record Of Service Recognized

*Miss Jessie Matheson, superintendent of nurses at the Goddard Hospital at Brookton, Mass., was guest of honour on Wednesday afternoon last week at a tea given by the hospital in special recognition of her 40 years of nursing service to that institution. More than 200 guests were present to offer congratulations to Miss Matheson, who spends her summer vacation at her old home in Glen William as guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Matheson.

Miss Matheson has been 49 years in the Massachusetts hospital, and has given much to the service of the hospital. In making the presentation of a gift to Miss Matheson from the hospital staff and employees and Nurses Alumnae, Dr. Samuel W. Goddard recalled his first meeting with Miss Matheson. It was May 13, 1913, the little Goddard Hospital of less than 20 beds was having an over busy spell, and the founder, Dr. Henry Goddard instructed his son to go to Boston to secure additional help. Thus Miss Matheson came to Goddard.

In addition to the special gift from her hospital associates, Miss Matheson received flowers, gifts, cards, and telegrams of good wishes.

Through her years of nursing service Miss Matheson has become well known, loved and respected by many Brookton and the surrounding towns.

Her many friends on P. E. I. will be happy to learn of the recognition offered Miss Matheson for her many years of excellent service, and trust that she may be granted the privilege in which to offer her comfort and help to the afflicted.
