

The Language of Umbrellas.

One of the "funny writers" of the day has said that there is a language of umbrellas as well as of flowers.

In the Wrong Place.

A stranger entered the office of an ocean steamer agent on Griswold street, yesterday, and asked:

"Can a man come from Ireland by your line?" "He can, sir."

"Will you bring over my oldest brother?" "We will that."

"For how much?" "In first-rate shape for $30."

"I think I'll pay the money," said the stranger, but, as he was pulling out his wallet, the agent asked:

"In what part of Ireland is your brother?"

"In the Dublin jail, sir, as a suspect. He was out he would be plenty able to take care of himself, he would."

"But we can't get him out of jail you know?" "Neither can I, you know though I've written seven letters to the jailer to do a decent deed, and let Barney go."

—Detroit Free Press.

Good Enough.

A wagon, containing a calf in a cage, was on the market yesterday morning, with a farmer's wife in charge, and a butcher with an eye to veal, stepped up and enquired:

"Madam, is that calf for sale?" "Yes, sir."

"Is he a Durham?" "He may be."

"Isn't an Ayrshire, is he?" "Like enough."

"Don't you know his breed?" he asked in a surprise voice.

"No, I don't."

"Then, how do you expect to sell him?" "All I know about that calf, is that his father hooked a Justice of the Peace to death, and his mother chased a female lecturer two miles, and if that ain't breed enough to ask $4 on, you needn't take him!"

The butcher said the breed was all right.—Detroit Free Press.

"This is a mighty obligin' country," said a Texan. "You can get anything you want and plenty of it."

So it appears from recent events. New York had the Vanderbilt ball and Leadville has had a ball. The former considered unique and the latter had piquant flavor peculiarly its own.
