Souris Meeting Discusses New Lobster Size Limit

A half-way endorsement of the fishermen in the carapace measurement of the lobster was favored last night by the majority of speakers who took part in discussions at a well attended meeting of the P. E. I. Fishermen's Association at Souris.

The majority of those who spoke favored some change in the size limit but they felt that the carapace increase should be one-sixteenth of an inch in size instead of the one-eighth as called for in the new Dominion regulations.

They added that the size could be further increased by one-sixteenth next year. This would bring about a period of two years and in this way it was felt that the fishermen would drop less poundage in their catches this year.

A smaller number of speakers favored the new regulations which calls for an increase from 2 3/8 inches to 2 1/2 inches this year. This regulation will go into effect in May.

Another smaller group were against any change in the present measurements.

Dr. D. G. Wilder of the Atlantic Biological Station in St. Andrews, New Brunswick gave an interesting talk on lobster conservation and in his remarks he stated that there might possibly be a fifteen per cent poundage drop in the catch around Souris this year due to the change in measurement. However, he did not predict that this would occur because of the numerous other factors which enter in the lobster industry.

Dealing with the army, he said the reserve force is in "a sorry plight" and needs to be thoroughly reorganized. The regular mobile defence against ground attacks had been broken up to send men to Korea and Europe and no longer could be considered a trained formation ready to fight.

The navy program had slipped badly. After two years, only 56 of the promised 100 warships were available and the Kingpin of them all, the aircraft carrier Magnificent was obsolescent and badly in need of a major overhaul. The production of the new escort vessels was behind schedule. The major harbors were defenceless.

Summing up, the chancellor said: "The path of restriction has been so firmly fixed in peoples' minds that it now tends to be regarded as the inevitable line of conduct. But we now look to a more hopeful way. We can lighten our load and liberate our energies."

"The fact that we have not been getting the best out of our productive capacity springs in part from our terrible burden of taxation. Even after this budget, we shall not have let up to a level which can be called even moderate."

For the first occasion since the war, and Butler said it was about time, the budget proposed "no new taxes at all." And in an unexpected stroke, it was announced that sugar rationing would end "soon."

The feeling seems to be that this is a popular budget. But one possible point of political controversy involved the abolition of the excess profits levy. The Labour opposition will likely ask why the chancellor has chosen to go back on a tax he felt was necessary only 13 months ago.

Butler budgeted for total government expenditure for the current fiscal year totalling $4,259,000,000, an increase of $108,000,000 over the figure for the year ended March 31. Despite the tax cuts, he estimated ordinary revenue would be $2,788,000,000 bigger than expenditure.

The equivalent dollar figures for expenditure and ordinary revenue are $1,925,200,000 and $1,273,600,000. The pound sterling is valued at $2.80 in international exchange dealings but this does not indicate its buying power in the United Kingdom.

This is what the income-tax cuts will mean to the average British wage earner: A worker who earns £500 $1,400 a year, with a wife and one child, will pay £11 14s 3d a year instead of £14 39s 4d. A man earning £2,000 $5,600—the income of an ordinary British physician—with a wife and one child will pay £489 14s $1,371.20 a year instead of £521 4s $1,459.50.

But the biggest tax handouts of all went to private industry, which Butler said bears the chief responsibility in speeding the export. Britain needs to keep paying her way in the world.

"I do not think I am exaggerating in the least if I say that in effect Canada has no air defence to direct attack at present, nor is she likely to have for many months to come. Our fighters are non-existent."

Regular Monthly Meeting of B.I.S. Held Last Night

The members of the Benevolent Irish Society held their April meeting in the Whalen Building last night with a fairly large number of members present.

The chairman of the following gave their annual reports for the year 1952-53: Social Evening, L. E. Gormley; Ladies' Auxiliary, C. Carroll; Shamrocks, J. E. Coady.

President E. W. Hogan congratulated the above chairmen on the way in which they had handled their respective committees during the year and wished them every success in whatever future office in the Society they might hold.

The annual meeting of the Society will take place Friday evening, April 24th in the Whalen Building and the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place at this meeting.

The committee in charge of presentation of the MacNulty Family Entertainment Troupe in Prince Edward Island gave its first report. The first concert will be given in Charlottetown on July 3rd.

Routine business was then discussed by the members.

The meeting then adjourned.

P. E. I. Red Cross Making Up 5,000 Towels For Overseas

Members of the Provincial Red Cross Women's Work Committee held a special meeting at Red Cross Headquarters in Charlottetown on Monday afternoon to plan for the distribution of over 5,000 towels which are to be made up by the first of May for shipment overseas for the victims of the recent European Floods.

This is part of the rehabilitation programme made possible by the National European Flood Relief Fund which is being administered by the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Mrs. E. A. Foster, Provincial chairman of this committee, presided at the meeting which was attended by almost 100 percent of its membership including representatives of the Summerside Branch.

There was a ready response to Mrs. Foster's appeal for workers and the different members present each volunteered to look after the placing of hundreds of these towels. The Summerside ladies started the ball rolling by offering to get 1,000 made up!

As the result of the meeting the towels are being given out to many different women through various organizations as quickly as they can be cut from the webs. Prince Edward Islanders have always been noted for their co-operation in emergencies of this kind, and are once again coming through with flying colours.

ALEXANDRA W. I.

The April meeting of the Alexandra W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Vernon MacLennan with an attendance of seven members.

In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. Clifford Sherren, presided.

The meeting opened by repeating the Creed, followed by roll call which was answered by each member passing in a sympathy card. Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The sick committee reported two cards sent, also a gift sent to a sick member. Correspondence was read by the secretary. Collection amounted to $1.10. It was moved and seconded to have a 26 cent collection at the next meeting, which will be at the home of Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Glendon Brehaut. The lunch committee will be Mrs. Clifford Sherren, Mrs. Vernon MacLennan and Mrs. Harold Beaton. Roll call is to be responded to with an exchange of noted flower slips.

The meeting adjourned after which a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and committee in charge.
