MAY 3, 1897.

—Some idea of the enormous quantity of corn raised in the United States may be gathered from the fact that 69,000,000 bushels have been exported since the first of January. Besides what is exported to Canada the balance is shipped to Europe. Now that corn comes into Canada free for grinding and stock feeding purposes, the market should be materially increased.

—Mail and Empire: A man who has a little back yard garden in which to work at this season of the year is one of the fortunates of fate. Man is naturally an agriculturist, and the old instinct for working in the soil reasserts itself with the return of every spring. If a man has a little soil to work in, no matter if it is no more than twenty feet square, it serves to satisfy, to some degree at least, the demand of his nature. These are happy days for the back yard farmers.

Montreal Gazette: Mr. Fielding's coal oil achievement is the greatest of them all. For twenty years, the Liberals have told us, the farmers have groaned under the iniquitous coal oil duty. Mr. Fielding reduced it a cent a gallon. The farmer is relieved. Never did greater effect follow smaller cause.

Montreal Gazette: The men who work in the rice mills must have been very offensive partisans during the election. The increase of the duty on their raw material would not have been the rate of 150 per cent., while that on finished products was unchanged, had they been friends of the powers that be.

Montreal Star: Mr. Perry is an old timer, and the Tignish breakwater will again have a friend at court. It may be, of course, that as the crossing of the House has destroyed Mr. McMullen's taste for the music of the rustling leaves of the Auditor General's report, so Mr. Perry, seated as a supporter of the Government, will no longer care for the beating of the surf on the gray old breakwater of Tignish. But power spoils not all men, and the House may again listen to the woes of the seaway of Mr. Perry's constituency.

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abscesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or whenever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering.

"I had a dreadful carbuncle abscess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abscess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine."

A COYOTE PARTNERSHIP.

It Means Death to the Antelope and a Meal For the Wolves.

The prong horned antelope is the swiftest animal on the plains, and yet the coyotes catch a good many of them just by running them down. This sounds like a paradox, yet it is quite true and is explained by the cunning of the wolves and the habits of the antelope.

A single coyote that undertook to run down a single antelope would get tired and hungry before he accomplished much, but when two or three coyotes are together it is quite a different thing. The coyotes do not all run after the antelope together; they take turns, and while one runs the others rest, and so at last they tire the antelope out.

If when it was started the antelope ran straight away, it would of course leave all the wolves behind, those that were resting even more than the one that was chasing it, but the antelope does not run straight away. Instead it runs in large circles, and this enables the wolves to take turns when chasing it.

When three or four prairie wolves decide that they want antelope meat for breakfast, one of them creeps as close as possible to the one they have selected and then makes a rush for it, running as fast as he possibly can so as to push the antelope to his best speed and to tire it out. Meantime his companions spread out on either side of the runner and get upon little hills or knolls so as to keep the chase in sight. They trot from point to point, and pretty soon, when the antelope turns and begins to work back toward one of them, this one tries to get as nearly as possible in its path, and as it flies by the wolf dashes out at it and runs after it at the top of its speed, while the one that had been chasing the antelope stops running and trots off to some nearby hill, where, while the water drips off his killing tongue, he watches the race and gets his breath again. After a little the antelope passes near another coyote, which in turn takes up the pursuit. And so the chase is kept up until the poor antelope is exhausted, when it is overtaken and pulled down by one or more of the hungry brutes. Of course the coyotes do not catch every antelope they start. Sometimes the game runs such a course that it does not pass near any of the waiting wolves, and only the one that starts it has any running to do. In such a case the pursuit is at once abandoned. Sometimes the antelope is so stout and strong that it tires out all its pursuers.

It is a common thing for a coyote to chase an old doe, with her kids, just after the little ones have begun to run about. At that time they are very swift for short distances, but have not the strength to stand a long chase. In such a case a mother will often stay behind her young and will try to fight off the coyote, butting him with her head and striking him with her fore feet. He pays little attention to her, except to snap at her, and keeps on after the kids. Several times I have seen a mother antelope lead her little ones into the midst of a bed of cactus, where the wolf could not go without getting his feet full of thorns. If the bed is small, the wolf will make ferocious dashes up to its border, trying to frighten the little ones so that they will run out on the other side and he can start after them again, but usually the mother has no trouble in holding them.—George Bird Grinnell in Forest and Stream.

Attention to the Feet.

It is utterly impossible to get well or keep well unless the feet are kept dry and warm all the time. If they are for the most part cold, there is cough, or sore throat, or hoarseness, or sick headache, or some other annoyance. If cold and dry, the feet should be soaked in hot water for ten minutes every night, and when wiped and dried rub into them well 10 or 15 drops of sweet oil. Do this patiently with the hands, rubbing the oil into the soles of the feet particularly. On getting up in the morning dip both feet at once into water as cold as the air in the room, half ankle deep, for a minute in summer, half a minute or less in winter, rubbing one foot with the other, then wipe dry, and if convenient hold them to the fire, rubbing them with the hands until perfectly dry and warm in every part. If the feet are damp and cold, attend only to the morning washings, but always at night remove the stockings and hold the feet to the fire, rubbing them with the hands for 15 minutes, and get immediately into bed. Under any circumstances, as often as the feet are cold enough to attract attention, draw off the stockings and hold them to the fire. If the feet are much inclined to dampness, put on a pair of dry stockings. Some persons' feet are more comfortable even in winter in cotton, others in woolen stockings. Each must be guided by his own feelings. Sometimes two pairs of thin stockings keep the feet warmer than one pair which is thicker than both. The thin pair may be of the same or of different materials, and that which is best next the feet should be determined by the feelings of the person. Persons who walk a great deal during the day should on coming home for the night remove their shoes and stockings, hold the feet to the fire until perfectly dry, put on a dry pair of stockings and wear different shoes for the remainder of the evening. To change to slippers is dangerous, as one is likely to catch cold.—New York Ledger.

Message to Men.

Proving that True Honesty and True Philanthropy Still Exist.

If any man who is weak, nervous and debilitated, or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from youthful follies, excesses or overwork, will take heart and write to me, I will send him confidentially and free of charge the plan pursued by which I was completely restored to perfect health and manhood, after years of suffering from Nervous Debility, Loss of Vigor and Organic Weakness.

I have nothing to sell, and therefore want no money, but as I know through my own experience how to sympathize with such sufferers, I am glad to be able to assist any fellow-beings to a cure. I am well aware of the prevalence of quackery, for I myself was deceived and imposed upon until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but I rejoice to say that I am now perfectly well and happy once more and am desirous therefore to make this certain means of cure known to all. If you will write to me you can rely upon being cured and the proud satisfaction of having been of great service to one in need will be sufficient reward for my trouble. Absolute secrecy assured. Send 5c silver to cover postage and address Mr. Geo. G. Strong, North Rockwood, Mich. 135p&w.

The Human Body's Tireless Organs.

Man has within him a stationary engine called his heart, which, with its veins and arteries, constitutes a perfect system of hydraulics, compared with which man's best work is clumsy, intricate and wasteful. The lungs are a working bellows, the most perfect method of sanitary ventilation. The stomach is a working vat of marvellous perfection. The brain is a wondrous condenser, and the skin is a great working evaporator, with reserve automatic appliances, ready for extra work in moments of need. All these are in action at all times, day and night, tireless, unceasing, self winding and repairing, for 70 years or more.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THACKERAY'S BIRTHPLACE.

Failure of Efforts to Find the Exact House in India.

Sir William Hunter's book on "The Thackerays in India" calls out in The Athenaeum from W. F. Prideau an interesting letter relative to the house in which the novelist was born and his ineffectual efforts to find it.

"The publication of Sir William Hunter's delightful book reminds me that about ten years ago, being then resident in Calcutta, I made a vigorous effort to discover the house which had been honored by the birth of the greatest writer who has shed lustre on the Anglo-Indian body, in view to a commemorative tablet being placed upon the building by public subscription. In this effort I was warmly seconded by the late Mr. Robert Knight, the editor of The Statesman, who in the issue of that paper for Sept. 2, 1887, devoted a leader to the subject, and by several other friends.

"Notwithstanding our exertions we failed to discover the house in question, the records neither of the secretariat nor of the municipality affording any clew. I ascertained that the assessment papers of the house tax did not extend further back than 1836, while the first Calcutta daily, the Calcutta Journal, was not established by J. Silk Buckingham till four years after Richmond Thackeray's death. My researches, however, enabled me to collect some interesting information in connection with the novelist and his father, and among my notes I find an exact record of the dates on which Richmond Thackeray entered on his various public employments.

"Thackeray was christened in St. John's church, the old cathedral, and I give below a copy of the baptismal register, which has not, I think, hitherto appeared in print:

"Date of Baptisms.—1812, January 3d.

"Name and Age of the Baptized.—N. B. S. Son, D. Daughter.—William Makepeace, born 18th July, 1811. S.

"Name and Situation of Parents.—Richmond Thackeray, Esq., of the Civil Service, and Anne his wife.

"By Whom and Where Baptized.—The Revd. J. Ward, D. D.

"Seeing that Richmond Thackeray apparently held the appointment of judge of Midnapore at the date of his son's birth, and that a period of nearly six months elapsed between that date and the baptism, we are almost led to the conclusion that the boy was born not at Calcutta, but at Midnapore, and that his baptism was deferred until his father received his Allipore appointment. Tradition has, however, so persistently declared that the birth took place in Calcutta that I do not feel venturesome enough to dispute it. It is quite possible that the records do not give the date on which the father's deputation to Midnapore ended."
