WELL, I DON'T KNOW

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, wearing a Texas-style hat, looks quizzically at a wooden caricature presented to him at a press conference in Dallas Monday. The Vice President came to Dallas to give a briefing on U.S. foreign policy to regional supporters of the Democratic party who have contributed $1,000 or more to the party's funds. Humphrey was presented with the hat and carving at a press conference at Dallas' Love Field on his arrival.

Heavy TB Survey Program Forecast

Hon. H.B. MacNeill, Minister of Health recently announced that as a joint project of the Provincial Health Department and the P.E.I. Tuberculosis League, tuberculin testing clinics were initiated for the 1965 season at Afton, on the afternoon and evening of May 15.

Keen interest in the health of their communities was reflected by a full turn-out of voluntary workers at pre-clinical organizational meetings at the Afton and Vernon Centres.

Walter Coulson, President of the P.E.I. TB league, indicated that the Christmas Seal mobile x-ray unit would continue to be used this year in the screening of high incidence groups of people, such as persons who show positive reaction to tuberculin skin tests, food handlers and other special groups.

Mr. Coulson stated that the chief role of the voluntary tuberculosis association, the TB league, is to promote sustained co-operation by individuals and communities, to aid in the diagnosis of lung tuberculosis and other chest diseases and to support governmental efforts in controlling the disease, tuberculosis.

Dr. E.M. Found, executive-advisor of the league, has stated that the incidence of new active cases of tuberculosis on Prince Edward Island during the past nine years is decreasing, but has more or less reached a plateau since 1956.

HARBOR GERMS

He added that in the vicinity of 60 per cent of our population over the age of 40 years harbor tuberculosis germs as revealed by a positive tuberculin Heaf test. There are presently 883 known cases on the provincial tuberculosis register, all of these are checked not less than once a year.

"Now is the time to continue", Dr. Found said, "with more vigor than ever, the search among our so-called healthy citizens for new active or reactivated cases lest this contagious disease be spread to our more vulnerable school age population." (93 per cent of school agers are negative tuberculin reactors, therefore, have no natural immunity to tuberculosis.)

The combined facilities of the Provincial Health Department and the P.E.I. Tuberculosis League have been instrumental in detecting 40 cases of tuberculosis requiring treatment as well as 100 non-tuberculosis chest conditions since the initiation of tuberculin testing and x-ray surveys on a community-wide basis, nine years ago. Each unknown case of tuberculosis if not segregated and treated, usually infects five others, therefore, it appears that through the media of tuberculin testing and the Christmas Seal mobile unit 200 Islanders have been spared contracting the disrupting, socioeconomic disease, tuberculosis, during the past nine years.

LETTERS SENT

Letters containing the above facts have been sent out to doctors and clergymen in the Prince County area, where the x-ray unit will be travelling this spring, asking them to inform and encourage their patients and parishioners to take advantage of the clinics.

A total of 17 centres, comprising 145 school districts, are to be visited by the mobile unit this summer.

During the period 1960-63 there were eight minor TB epidemics in P.E.I. which involved 53 persons, 48 of whom had to be treated in hospital, 27 of these were children. Epidemics also occured in Manitoba and the North West Territories during the past two years.

In the N.W.T. active tuberculosis had been all but eradicated when epidemics of viral diseases, most notably measles, broke out. TB became rampant. Within the year 82 active new cases were diagnosed in a community whose permanent population is just over 300.

Dr. Found has compared TB to a fire. If the firemen stay on guard, the fire can be kept under control, but if they should take just one coffee break the fire will rage out of control destroying what might have been saved. So it is with TB — the fight must be a continuing one.

court. Gordon Tweedy, counsel for the accused objected and he moved that the charges be withdrawn and the person who laid them be assessed costs.

Children's Mission Concluded In City

Roger Green, Missioner to children concluded his mission at the First Baptist Church, Charlottetown on Friday after inspiring sessions which had a total attendance of upwards of 2,500 and an average of 425, with children representative of 27 churches.

From the opening day the interest and excitement ran high as Mr. Green in his imitable manner instructed and entertained the boys and girls with Bible stories and choruses. For lack of space in the church hall it was necessary on Tuesday to move to the main auditorium where the balance of the meetings were held.

A feature of the mission was the puppet theatre which realistically portrayed in serial form the life of the prophet Daniel culminating in the climatic story of "Daniel in the Lions' Den".

Thursday was Parent's Night when many of the children brought their parents to share in the mission. The parents were amazed at display of Bible knowledge acquired by the children under the instruction of Mr. Green.

Anglican Curriculum Subject Of Workshop

SUMMERSIDE — A continuing program of teacher and leader training in connection with the introduction of a new Christian education curriculum by the Anglican Church of Canada began Sunday with a well-attended workshop at St. Mary's Church, Summerside. Directors of the workshop were the rector of Kensington, Rev. E.J. Fiander, and the rector of Summerside, Rev. R.C. Tuck.

Following an outline of changes in society and in educational methods which had made the new curriculum necessary, those present discussed in groups the purposes of Christian education. Their suggestions, which ranged from opposition to communism to the imparting of knowledge about God, the Bible, and the church, were then compared with what Christian educators say about the purpose of Christian education: "to help persons grow in their relationship with God" rather than simply to pass on information about him.

Evensong was sung at 7 p.m. The service was unusual in that lessons were read by a layman and a lay woman — Eric Jones of Summerside, and Mrs. Tuck. The sermon was delivered by Mr. Fiander, and it closed with a dialogue between him and Mr. Tuck sitting in the congregation. The preacher's theme was, the creative activity of God, and the share in this activity of the christian teacher who labors as God's agent in the creation of persons who are children of God, members of Christ, and inheritors of the Kingdom.

Later, in the parish hall, discussion groups made lists of discipline problems which were then considered in a "role play" consultation between a teacher and a superintendant. Those present were taught how to observe this, not only for possible answers to questions about dicipline, but also for basic principles of the teaching-learning process, which holds true for all encounters between teachers and learners.

Interest was shown in copies of new curriculum manuals and pupils books. Mr. Tuck described how the manuals are designed and how they are to be used, and promised that in a future workshop teachers would prepare lessons and teach them to children specially invited for the occasion.

Of the 60 persons present more than half were from New London parish. There were 12 from Summerside, eight from Alberton and O'Leary, one from St. Eleanors. Subsequent sessions will be held at O'Leary from Alberton and Port Hill, and in the Summerside - Kensington area.
