MUNICIPAL REFORM!

The Morning Guardian.

APRIL 9, 1891.

To the Polls.

The respectable portion of the community have a duty devolving upon them to-day which they must not shirk. If any of them should stay away from the polls and allow Coun. Douse to be elected, they will be responsible for his return. The liquor party, too, will be jubilant and take it as a great victory for their cause. If the Reformers win this fight the city will be redeemed.

Electors Remember.

—That the issue to-day is Representation by Population or government by a clique and a minority.

—That the Anti-reformers want to perpetuate the present unjust system by dividing Ward Five, and adding two new Councillers, but leaving half of Ward Four practically disfranchised.

—That the Reformers ask only fair play at the hands of the electors. Whatever system they adopt will never become law till ratified by the citizens at the polls.

—That while this contest brings a measure and not a man prominently before the electors, the character of Mr. Henry C. Douse, as a legislator, cannot possibly be forgotten. Advices from different parts of the country, where "the extraordinary man's" fame has spread, are to the effect that nobody outside the city can believe for a moment that Charlottetown would so forget herself as to place such a man in the Legislature.

Afraid of the Citizens.

The Anti-Reformers have been trying to throw dust in the eyes of the people by designating the Reformers as "a few fanatics," "a clique," etc. It looks like it, doesn't it! While the Reformers are asking for equal rights and representation by population, the justice of which no one has dared to deny, while to secure this they are ready to have their measure placed fairly and squarely before the electors before it becomes law, for them to say whether or not their rights shall be granted, our opponents propose to divide Ward Five in two and add two new members to the Council without so much as asking "by your leave" of the citizens. If these people were not a clique themselves why are they afraid to have their scheme submitted to the electors for approval?

A Noxious Sewer.

A memorial was presented to the City Council at its last meeting by Messrs. Duchemin & Co., M. P. Hogan and others, praying that a drain or sewer discharging filth and noxious gases in close proximity to their places of business, receive due attention from the Council, and that steps be taken at once to have it put in proper repair. The Council after some careful deliberation upon the matter, in the absence of the proper sanitary official, ordered that the City Marshal visit the place and make a report. This no doubt the Marshal did, but the only action taken so far has been to have a basket or two of lime scattered about the outlet of the sewer.

This matter has been repeatedly brought to the notice of the Council and yet it has been allowed to drift along, nothing whatever of a permanent nature being done to remove the nuisance and to preserve the health and lives of the residents in that part of the city. To leave this sewer in its present condition, now that the ice which nature provided as a covering for the past four months is broken up, would be to imperil the public health to a degree to which no other Sanitary Board or Civic Council would feel like being responsible.

As it exists at present, this sewer is a very cesspool and a hot bed of disease and death, and we trust that at the Council meeting next Monday night measures will be adopted to remove the nuisance.

The movement of Russian troops on the German and Austrian frontier and the alliance between Russia and France are causing much alarm to the members of the Dreibund, and while the official press of Germany has been warned not to take any notice of the war rumors, the feeling of uneasiness in the European capitals is very intense

Sunday at the Fair.

It is fairly well established that the Chicago World's fair will be open on Sundays. The press of the city is all but unanimous for the proposal, and it it apparent that the mass of the people are with the press. In the West the Sabbath is made for the money maker.—Gazette

Big Pay.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 5.—The Australian Federation convention has adopted the provisions of the constitution regulating the powers of Pa liament, and fixing the payment of members at £500 yearly, and the provision that all appropriations and taxation bills must originate in the House of Representatives.

Warrior Monks.

PARIS, April 4.—Cardinal Lavigerie's band of warrior monks will take vows for a crusade against slavery at Biskara, Algeria, on Monday. Vicomte Bressee, who has abandoned the world of sport, has been appointed Superior of the band. All will start for various points in Africa on Tuesday.

A Peculiar Shaped Horse.

At a late sheriff's sale of James Royle's personal property, in Maitland, N. S., Thomas Simpton bought for a moderate sum a very peculiar shaped horse. The foremost parts are much higher than the hind, with an immense projection of the left shoulder blade and contigous ribs which makes it somewhat resemble a giraffe; notwithstanding its uncomely appearance, it goes long journeys with ease, and trots admirably.—Times.

A Church Difficulty.

The Dominion church Methodist congregation Ottawa some time ago gave Rev. J. A. Rogers, the eloquent clergyman of Halifax Conference, a call. Stationing Committee, consisting of the general superintendent and the president of the eight conferences, met at Toronto and refused to sanction the call. The Quarterly Board and Board of Trustees of the church are inclined to resent this ignoring of their wishes. They will meet next week and take action.

Fish Out of Water.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Charlottetown is charged with having interfered in the recent election. It appears that his Lordship addressed his friends in Prince county in these words: "He (the Bishop) came, he said, as an old friend, as one deeply interested in their material welfare, to advise them to vote for the chief promoter of the proposed tunnel across the Strait." Of course a bishop has as much right to canvass as any other citizen. But an ecclesiastic on the stump when no religious question is involved ought to be as uncomfortable as a fish out of water.—Toronto Mail.

Self-Lacing Shoes.

"The man who invented hooks for laced shoes made a fortune," says a shoe-dealer. "But if he is alive now he must feel inclined to kick himself for leaving his invention half complete. Another genius has now patented a hook with little raised eyelets in them, through which the laces can be slipped. Instead of unlacing a shoe it will be possible now to untie the laces and then pull the shoe open, the laces running freely through the eyelets; but, as they remain in position, they simply have to be pulled to tighten and fix the shoe on as firmly as can be desired The patent is all right, but the invention is not thoroughly on the market yet. When it is I suppose we shall hear of 'self-lacing shoes,' for that is practically the claim of the ingenious inventor."—New York Tribune.

"Carroty Nell's" Murderer.

LONDON, March 31.—A man giving his name as French appeared at the headquarters of the police at Maidstone, Kent, to-day and declared his ability and willingness to give ample evidence to convict George Smith, a professional burglar, of the murder of "Carrotty Nell," the latest of the Whitechapel victims. French declares that Smith robbed the house in front of which the woman was found while she kept watch to avoid detection. When Smith emerged from the house with his plunder the woman demanded a larger share of the booty than he was willing to give up, and in the consequent quarrel she threatened to expose him to the police, whereupon he murdered her and fled, leaving her to be found by the police and added to the list of victims of "Jack the Ripper." The Scotland Yard authorities are following up the clues furnished by French, in whose statements they seem to place great confidence.

Farmers vs. Editors.

ST. PAUL, April 3.—The Minnesota Alliance Legislature, smarting under the attacks of the old party press, is seeking to get on the statute books one of the most remarkable measures of the age. The proposed law seeks to compel editors to place at the conclusion of each article the name of its writer. In committee of the whole yesterday the Senate reported favorably on the extraordinary bill, and this morning passed it. It provides that all articles, editorial items and written accounts, published in any pamphlet, newspaper etc., which shall therein purport to relate, state, describe or give an account of or give intelligence of any political, official, personal or social act written or speech of any human being, living or dead, reflecting in any way upon such person's character shall be subscribed by the full name of the person or persons who shall have written, edited or prepared it for publication.

It also provides that all persons who shall violate any of the provisions of the act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $20 or more than $100, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days or more than three months.

AN enjoyable time may be expected at the Pie Social to be held in McLeod's Hall on Thursday evening, 9th inst., under the auspices of the Bethany Band of the Second Methodist Church. Admission 10 cents. Ladies with pies free.

The Dominion Dairymen's Association, which has twice assembled at Ottawa, will hold no convention this season. This organization is national in its character, having to do with the commercial and more general relations of Canadian Dairying. The sessions are likely to be biennial. The same, we may add, is true of the Dominion Fruit Growers' Association.

For the first time they meet, to part either when death or divorce shall separate them. Plurality of wives is probably an argument with the Arab for frequency of divorce—for divorce is frequent. Mohammed allows four wives, but many husbands may be found revelling in the luxury of six or seven more.

Mohammed Chewfick, Khedive of Egypt has but one wife by whom he has two sons and two daughters; the eldest son is heir to the vice-royalty of Egypt. Despite the fact that H. H. the Khedive has but one wife, his singularity is in his supporting a large Harem and many concubines; the charge of these is committed to long-boned swarthy eunuchs.

The father of the present Khedive, Tsmail Pasha, had three wives and about three hundred concubines.

The burial of a Musselman is not without interest. The orifices of the body of the corpse are plugged with cotton, the corpse is laid on an ordinary stretcher, quite naked only covered with a single cloth. Standard bearers follow the deceased; after these follow the weepers, who are enlisted among the female friends or strange women paid by the family of the deceased; weeping is uttered in a shrill tone. On arrival at the cemetery the corpse is deposited in the grave without coffin, the head turned in the direction of Mecca.

The native of Egypt is unsociable in the extreme; the Europeans are regarded by him as inferior beings to be hated and despised. To live among them one must embrace the Mohammedan creed and speak their language fluently. It must be remembered that from the days of Alexander the Great and of the Romans, the native of Egypt has had good cause to hate the Europeans. Nevertheless the influence of the French since 1799, and that of England since 1882, coupled with the more enlightened rule of Mohammed Ali and his successors have done much towards eradicating this distrust and hatred.

As a Frenchman who prefers to be an advanced Anglophil I have pleasure in recording that the land of the stately Nile progresses under the benign influence of the Most Gracious Queen Victoria slowly but surely, like the mighty stream itself, toward a more civilized, a more enlightened, and a more prosperous future.

The most common Arab names are for women Echa, Bamba, Nefisah, Laida, Eidan, Amna, Mahieh, Femah, Saima, Hadonga, Lelah, Lettontah, Nehem, Moubarka, Hilanah, (Helena) Maddoule, (Magdalen) Refka, (Rebecca) Oirdas, (Rose) Saada, Soussane, (Suzannah) and Sariah (Sarah). For men: Mohammed, Ali, Hrahim, Rhalil, (Charles) Tsmail, Moustapha, Abdallah, (father of Allah) Salem, Omar, Hussein, Daivvich, Selim.

Sound an Alarm.

SIR:—The following incident, with the accompanying lines, have been used to some purpose in connection with the cause of Temperance, and at the present crisis in the history of our civic affairs, reform or otherwise, I take the present opportunity of placing them at your disposal, entertaining the hope that some faltering, doubting one may be aroused to a sense of duty at the approaching contest for Civic Reform. Will Patriot and Examiner please copy.

Your's, etc,
A REFORMER.

Charlottetown, April 7. '91.

This from the Montreal Herald and Weekly Star, March 8th. 1877.

"Last Saturday night while Gough, at the Academy of Music, Minneapolis, was portraying the death scene of an inebriate, there lay at the station house, dying, an other victim of the bowl. Crazy drunk, he had deliberately lain across the railway track with suicidal intent, almost in the heart of Minneapolis, and very soon an outgoing train finished the work which the saloon keeper had well nigh completed in the name of the people and by their sanction. During the very same hours the licensed saloon in which the poor inebriate had spent his last dollar, was dispensing a "free lunch" to entrap more victims, while most of the members of the City Council that issued the saloon license were applauding Gough, and to all appearance lamenting the great evils of Intemperance.

Gough, you need not tell that old story any more; if you wish to portray more vividly the horrors of the liquor traffic, tell your hearers about the death of the penniless inebriate, Ebenezer Haszard, of the legal man-trap set with "free lunch" bait for more victims, of the license giving City Council, and the license endorsing audience madly applauding your anti-liquor sentiments—all of those scenes occurring within the radius of one block in the highly moral city of Minneapolis. They will applaud you everywhere just the same, and then vote to protect the sale of the damnable stuff."

The following lines were received by Canon Wilberforce several years ago after preaching his temperance sermon in St. Paul's Cathedral.

SOUND AN ALARM.

"Sound an alarm, let it echo and rattle,
Through cloister and corridor, transept and aisle,
Sound an alarm which shall call to the battle
Friends of the fallen, the helpless, the vile.
Sound an alarm which shall summon in numbers
Troops to enlist in our fast swelling host,
Sound an alarm which shall rouse from their slumbers,
Watchmen who idly have slept at their post.
Sound an alarm which more loudly still urging,
Shall reach to the alley, the street, and the square
And come like an angel of mercy that's bringing
A message of hope to the sons of despair.
Sound an alarm, at which brewers shall tremble,
And feel that the conflict's in earnest begun
At the voice of the canon let true men assemble,
To fight for the right till the victory's won."
