Grain

WINNIPEG, July 10 (CP)-

Coarse grains for the most part displayed an easier tone in dull trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The lower trend reflected an expansion in local selling and lack of commercial support. Limited shipper demand appeared in the July contracts, while some American buying was noted in the deferred months of oats. Good rains in the grain belt prompted the selling. Rye also lost ground early in the session, but made recoveries near the close as American houses came in on the buying side. Flax was inactive. In the export business reported, 115,000 bushels of Canadian wheat went to the United Kingdom, while Belgium took 85,000 bushels. John Doe's Gall Bladder Is a Medical Hit Show on Video

OPERATION VIDEO: Medical and radio experts view Hospital and televised to the screen they're watching a surgical operation being performed at Bellevue watching at the UN building, 20 blocks away.

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK - (NEA) - John Doe's gall bladder, complete with four stones, is famous. To test a system of televising operations, two cameras took in every detail of the removal of a diseased gall bladder from an unnamed patient. John Doe, under an anesthetic, slept peacefully through the whole thing, as two surgeons neatly removed the organ at Bellevue Hospital. About 20 blocks away, in the United Nations building, a gathering of medical and radio experts watched the demonstration. For two hours and 15 minutes, a sober-voiced commentator delivered a slice-by-slice account of what was going on. The witnesses who knew what they were watching said that everything came over clearly. Technically, the demonstration was a success. Don't look up your video program, expecting to choose between an appendectomy on channel three and a tonsillectomy on channel six. Not even as summer replacements will operations be televised to the general public. They're purely educational in nature. They're designed to give medical students and interested students and interested surgeons an incision-side seat at the operating table. The same equipment used to snoop on John Doe's gall bladder will be loaded into airplanes in a few weeks, on the first leg of a South American tour. About five tons - $80,000 worth - of sound and picture gadgets, accompanied by nine experts, will visit Puerto Rico, Brazil, Argentina, Venezuela and Mexico. The tour is co-sponsored by E. R. Squibb and Sons International Corp. and the International General Electric Co. Inc. They'll televise operations in the five Latin and South American nations, with 20 TV receivers all lined in. The receivers will be set up in hotels where medical conventions are going on, for the doctors to study up on the latest surgical techniques. Two cameras are used in the system. One, directly above the patient, is constantly focused on the incision. Viewers can watch the surgeon's hands at work, the forceps holding back the skin. Occasionally, the second camera goes into action. It is set on a movable dolly, and is used by a nurse in the surgeon's face or the oxygen tanks as they're turned on by nurses taking the patient's blood pressure. The second camera also focused on the chief surgeon as he held up, one by one, marble-sized gall stones. The surgeon is also equipped with a chest microphone, so he may add comments from time to time. The regular commentator, in a room "off stage", did most of the talking, but every once in a while the surgeon put in a few sentences. "These knots," he said, as his colleague began tying up John Doe's wound, "are tied with square knots secured over a double hitch." Medical students in hospital galleries could only catch a flash of the actual operation. Mostly, they got a good view of the surgeon's back. But this new television method gives them a clear picture. They can see everything from the initial incision to the final stitches. John Doe, incidentally, was reported in "very satisfactory condition after his surgery. He'll be up and around, the doctor said, in a few days. Some of the viewers will take longer to recover.
