GRANT'S NAME.

How He Came to Adopt "U. S." as His Initials.

Up to the start for West Point, Grant had been Hiram Ulysses, or H. Ulysses Grant. The young traveler required a trunk, and Thomas Walker, a local "genius," was the man to make it. He did so, and, to finish it off, he traced on the cover in big brass tacks the initials "H. U. G." James Marshall, Ulysses' cousin, went to help him carry the new trunk home. Ulysses looked at the big, glaring letters. "I won't have that so," he said. "It spells 'hug.' The boys would plague me about it." And he thereupon shifted his middle name and became Ulysses H. Grant, and so he went forth into the world.

He registered at Roe's hotel, West Point, on the 29th of May, as "U. H. Grant," and the same day reported to the adjutant, George G. Waggaman, deposited $48 and signed his name Ulysses Hiram Grant. His name as reported from Washington, however, was U. S. Grant, and the error arose in this way: The Hon. Thomas Hamer received the letter of Jesse Grant only the day before the close of his term, and, being much hurried, sat down at once and wrote to Secretary of War Pointsett, asking for the appointment of his neighbor's son. He knew the boy's name to be Ulysses, and, inferring that his middle name was Simpson, so filled in the application, and thus it stood when Ulysses faced the adjutant.

He asked to have it changed, but was told it was impossible without the consent of the secretary of war.

"Very well," he said. "I came here to enter the military academy, and enter I shall. An initial more or less does not matter." He was known to the government thereafter as U. S. Grant—Hamlin Garland in McClure's.

Prince and Peasant.

Prince Christian of Denmark, had been only a king instead of a prince, would certainly outlive the story of Alfred of old and the cakes. One day he had to review some troops at Bierre, a country town of small dimensions. Riding home, tired and thirsty, he stopped at a farmhouse to beg a drink. The old farmer's wife bade him welcome and enter. As she was at the moment pan-cake making, she asked him if he would like some. "Very much, indeed," replied the prince, and soon he was comfortably seated, enjoying his humble fare at the kitchen table.

Having finished his meal, he asked the old dame how much he owed her. "Nothing at all," was the answer. On his persisting that he would prefer paying, she patted his shoulder affectionately, saying: "You are a soldier, my son, and soldiers are always 'hard up.' I never take anything from them." He suggested he was not quite so "hard up" as the generality of them. "Oh, I know better!" and with a knowing wink and a nod she turned to her pan-cake making. "It is quite true, good mother," said the prince, laughing heartily, "for, you see, my grandfather happens to be the king." "What?" cried his astonished hostess, dropping her whisk and nearly upsetting the frying pan in her fright. A second or two she gazed at him speechlessly, then remarked naively, "I should have asked you into the parlor, shouldn't I?"

She Had Had Experience.

Landlady—The price of this room is 80 marks. Will that suit you?
Student—Perfectly.

Landlady—Then you can't have it. A man who meekly accepts such an exorbitant price obviously does not intend to pay his bill.—Fliegende Blätter.

Lincoln's Berth.

In the early days of sleeping cars two men slept in one berth. One day a tall, lanky man engaged a berth from Pullman. Pullman handed him the check and said, "I shall sell the other check to that berth to another man, of course." The lanky man wound himself up to his full height, then unwound himself again. "Young man," he said, "the person who can get into one of your berths when I am wound up in it is welcome to the accommodation." This man was Abraham Lincoln.—New York Tribune.

Outdoor Exercise.

Muldoon, the trainer and athlete, advises the same physical exercise for women as for men. "Outdoor exercise," he says, "will preserve their beauty, bring health and improve the temper." He suggests good, long, brisk walks, work with the dumbbells, jumping rope and playing ball. Of course all these exercises must be taken in proper costume, which should consist of loose fitting garments that will not interfere with any part of the body and will allow free action of all the muscles.

Literary Continuity.

"Write more connected stories," snarled the city editor to his new reporter. And the next day the reporter handed in his copy all pasted together.—Detroit Free Press.

Cyclometers are in use in cabs in Berlin, Leipzig and Dresden. They record the exact amount of miles traveled and the legal fare of the occupants.

A Wonderful Scheme.

"They say that Hendricks has been suffering from insomnia."

"He has been, but he's all right now. He has discovered a wonderful cure."

"What is it?"

"He hires a boy to stay out in the hall all night, rap on the door every little while and yell that it's time to get up."—Cleveland Leader.
