SOMETHING ABOUT SILK.

Some naturalists say that no insects except the silk worm feed upon the leaves of the mulberry.

The rearing of worms and manufacture of silk were completely broken up in America by the Revolution.

As long ago as 1878 the silk industry in Italy employed 16,000 men and 129,000 women and 75,000 children.

The first exportation of American silk was in 1724, when 8 pounds were sent from America to England.

From the German colony of Ebenezer, near Savannah, in the year 1740, over 4,000 pounds of silk were exported.

In the book of Ezekiel a fabric is mentioned by the name of silk as well known in Assyria and Babylon.

An effect of the Emperor Tiberias forbidding Roman citizens to wear any garments made in whole or in part of silk.

Russia is not a large silk producer. The amount of the produce in 1887 was 900,000 pounds, valued at $1,800,000.

The official executioner of the Sultan of Turkey uses a silken cord in strangling persons ordered to be put to death.

The silk worm is 3 inches long and is well provided with legs, having no less than six pairs of these valuable members.

In the year 620 the mulberry tree was first cultivated in Greece and the Levant for the benefit of the silk worms.

Leaves and mulberry trees were sent to Georgia by the British Government shortly after the settlement of the colony.

The silk insect is a moth, 1 inch long by 3/16ths, with wings of a bright yellow color and having crescent-shaped spots.

Silk is the strongest of all vegetable or animal threads. It is three times as strong as a flaxen thread of the same size.

The business of producing silk may be prosecuted with success all over the world, and is being carried on in the Middle and Southern States of this country.

Superstitious persons say that a wart cut off by tying a silken thread round it and drawing the ends tightly will never return.

The silk from cocoons containing male insects is said to be stronger and better than that from cocoons made by females.

In the early machines, electricity was generated by turning a large glass wheel which rubbed against a silken band or cloth.

The cup of Mohammed's tomb at Mecca is made of the heaviest variety of black silk manufactured especially for this purpose.

During the reign of Justinian, the Emperor of the East, the leading European centers for the manufacture of silk.

HE WAS PESTERED. His Daughter's Lover Came in Too Rapidly to Suit Him.

A traveling man, who makes monthly trips through West Virginia, told this story of a courtship of his.

"There is one of the prettiest girls in the country living in a little West Virginia town. Her name is Mary."

"One night I concluded to try my fate, and managing to see her alone, I proposed to her. 'I was not at all surprised when she said yes, and I was not at all surprised when she said yes, and I was not at all surprised when she said yes.'

"When I reached the town again, I called at once to see her, and she told me to ask her father the momentous question at once. Approaching the old man, he said to me: 'Young man, you act as if you were going to ask me if you could marry my daughter. It is just as if I had just said that I was pestered enough by her lover.'

"I did not say a word, and skip that town now—the girl married the lawyer.—Washington Star.

A CASE OF TELEPATHY. The Old Lady Appeared in a Vision at the Time of Her Death.

A gentleman took a house in Ireland for six months, and was accompanied thither by his wife and daughters. The house was furnished, and had plenty of bedrooms. Therefore, it was decided not to use a certain large, long room, with cupboards along one side (which had been locked, and sealed up with tape), in which things belonging to the owners of the house had been put away.

After Napoleon was crowned Emperor his imperial toilet became so tender that he could wear only new silken stockings. He never wore a pair but three days, then put on another, the discarded stockings becoming the parasite of his valet.

As early as 1844 an English convocation decreed that the higher clergy during the solemn ceremonies of the church should wear silken gowns.

TO THINK ABOUT. Much doing is not so important as well doing.

A blind man's world can be measured with a cane. There is more life in one grain of wheat than in a bushel of chaff.

Put an angel anywhere and he will soon find something to remind him of heaven. Building on a rock is an investment that pays dividends with every thunder clap.

It is the man who is least willing to practise who finds the most fault with the preaching. Give some men a drum, and they won't strike a lick unless they can use it to lead the band.

Make a man laugh, and he will be your friend. Make him weep, and he will be your brother.

Many a man who goes to church, with a long face, sells goods with a measure that is too short.—Ram's Horn.

FACTS FROM ALL LANDS. Altogether about 100,000 islands, large and small, are scattered over the ocean.

The average life of a locomotive is said to be about fifteen years and the earning capacity $30,000.

When the English sparrow-hawk is flying toward its dinner it cleaves space at the rate of 150 miles an hour.

THOUGHTS FROM DUMAS.

To make friends with a man requires time; with a woman, only occasion. Experience and philosophy that do not result in forbearance and charity are two acquisitions that are not worth their cost.

A well-bred woman does not fall in love a second time without allowing a considerable interval to elapse. There are never two accidents in close succession on the same railroad.

It is with science and philosophy in their search after truth as with railway trains passing through a tunnel in broad daylight—darkness in the middle, but day at both ends. Whichever side we go on it is in the same light in which we entered. The same God is at the beginning of faith and at the end of science.

A woman has no power to efface radically by the sole effort of the will an image that has long filled the mind. She must replace it by another. She does not destroy, she supersedes. When the second image is finer or larger than the first, so that the first is seen no more, all goes well; this is forgiveness. When it is smaller, so that the edges of the other can be seen, things go badly; that is remorse.

MENTAL GEOGRAPHY.

The largest river is Time. The deepest ocean is Death. The region where no living thing hath habitation is called Yesterday.

The highest mountain is called Success. Few reach the top save those who watch sharply for the passing of the spirit of the mountain Opportunity, who carries upward all those that seize hold upon him.

The greatest desert is called Life, and it hath many oases. These are called Hope and Ambition, and Love, and Charity, and Home. And of them all home is the most beautiful. Besides there are many others smaller in extent, whence the traveller obtaineth refreshment during the weary journey through Life.

Care of Turquoise Rings.

A well-known lapidary cautions those who own turquoise rings to remove them when washing the hands, lest the color be injured. The explanation of the change from blue to green that sometimes takes place in the stones is that they are affected by acid emanations from the skin as well as by certain elements in some kinds of cologne and other perfumes. The change in the color of the topaz is believed to be due to light and heat, as experiments with the stones show that strong sunlight will bleach them.

Mr. James Fain, the London writer, tells a sensible story. He says a young man was paying his attentions to a "beloved object," contrary to the wishes of her father, "a man of thows and sinews," and one day the latter kicked the young man out of the street. In a day or two (after recovery) the rejected suitor, apparently not one whit discouraged, called at the house once more.

"What again?" exclaimed the father, putting on his well-soled boots for action. "No, no, cried the young man, 'I have given up all hope of winning your daughter; but in consequence of that astounding kick you gave me I other day, I have been requested, on the strength of my earnest recommendation to the committee, to ask you to join our football club.'

Whoa, There! Talking of photographs, an old farmer the other day had just driven into town with his mules to sell a load of pumpkins and stopped in front of the photographer's. "What are those with apouts in their ears he asked."

"Those are talking machines, answered a man in the doorway. The farmer was a little incredulous, but he finally left his mules and went into the store. The tubes were placed in his ears, he dropped the nickel in the slot and a brass ball began to play.

"Whoa, there!" shouted the rustic, darting out of the store, "them mules of mine won't stand no brass band."—N. Y. Victor.

Trusting in the Shadows. Shall we trust our Father only when he is giving us pleasant things, and shall we not also trust him when he gives us our hearts? Do you think God is good only when things please you? Is he not just as good when pain or loss is to be borne? It is the will of God that our home-sorrow shall make our home-life sweeter, purer, kinder, Christian.—(Seal.)
