Very Pretty Wedding Solemnized At Hope River

St. Ann's Church, Hope River, was the scene of a very pretty summer wedding on Wednesday, August 12th., 1959, when Norma Mary Gallant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gallant, Hope River, became the bride of Clifford James Callaghan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Callaghan, Tyrone, Ont.

The altar of the Church was beautifully decorated, with summer flowers and vial lights. White satin bows marked the guest seats.

The marriage ceremony and Nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. Louis P. Callaghan uncle of the groom.

Present in the Sanctuary were Rev. Charles McCarthy, Rev. Fr. Dalton and Rev. Fr. McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford James Callaghan were married at Hope River, Ont. on Wednesday, August 12th., 1959. The bride wore a dress of blue lace over satin. Her corsage was pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception for approximately fifty guests was held at the Queen Hotel. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Mr. Jas. P. Callaghan uncle of the groom capably acted as toast master, and called on Rev. Fr. McCarthy to propose a toast to the bride which was responded to by the groom.

From The Hilltops One May See Autumn's Face

From a hilltop these days one may catch a glimpse of Autumn's face. Or at Alderlea when one looks out upon the valley below. Or nearer. In the sunny stillness of a September day one may see an ambered leaf loosen its grasp from its fellows, and drift slowly down to the green sward below; a winged or tufted seed of September's ripening floats by on a current of air; far horizons lie dreaming in a mellow haze; and "far over upland and lowland" is "the charm of the goldenrod," and the bright shades of the scarletting, crimsoning maples.

"It seems," James reflected at breakfast, "It was only the other day I sowed the very field we're harvesting". . . It was there we came with him and the children one gentle Spring evening to enjoy once more, at first hand, something of the thrill of the seedtime and also be of some assistance to him at the sowing.

We talked there of olden times with the Spring loveliness all about us. A frog piped signal notes of the evening down by the stream, which when the mantle of dusk veiled the far hilltops, turned into a many toned melody, and nostalgic. And the voices of Granddaughter and Mack came up to us from a spring whither they had gone to drink. And later from the road which turned them to Rob's to visit—young happy voices they were, reflecting those of generations of children all down the years. And the team in the old seeder waited patiently while James poured in grain at a round's end to the larger hopper of the seeder with every hope of increase, while we were allowed to replenish the smaller one with the intriguing seeds of the grass. Silken was the feel of them. And once James wondered "Am I sowing too much? or maybe too little? Perhaps I should increase it a bit." And the bloom was beautiful on the old orchard there, and the even-song of the robins very sweet. Now apples redder there and golden is the field we sowed.

"Yes, only the other day," James commented. "What's to a Summer? Nothing these years! They come . . . and soon slip away. "Is there a good crop?"
