SEEK YOUNG MAN.—On Thursday morning about an hour after a young man from North Carleton was accepted as a boarder at a home on Harvard Street in Summerside he had disappeared from the house, leaving his shirt and trousers behind. Later in the day Robert Adams, a boarder at the house, discovered the young man's suit, a white shirt, a pair of shoes, and an electric razor belonging to him had also disappeared. Police were notified and a warrant was issued for the arrest of the missing man. Investigation revealed that the young man had taken the boat to the mainland before the theft had been discovered, and that he had sold an electric razor reportedly for $1 while crossing on the car ferry. Police are awaiting his return.—S

Let's Talk It Over

Discussing the relative merits of present day students and those of the little red school-house is a pretty unsatisfactory business. It's like discussing the relative abilities of Joe Louis and Jack Dempsey. You can't ever get them in the same ring. We wish there was some method of direct comparison to be made. It is generally true that present day students would not come off second best. We hasten to add that our opinion, unsupported as it is by evidence, is like the opinions of a lot of other people airing their views on the education question, not worth much. The opponents of old-time endeavours of any kind, are busy giving us description of what they see through glasses which become more and more rose-colored as the yesterdays pile up.

In comparing the two generations, however, there are a few factors which must not be forgotten. One of these is that present-day students are subject to many more counter-attractions as they try to concentrate on their studies. They are living in a hectic age, and this condition can hardly be laid at the door of our modern educators. The other factor is that, here in Canada, due to family allowances and a general improvement in economic standards, many pupils continue to go to school and compete for positions in the commercial world, who would in the earlier days drop out of the race.

The institution of family allowances has been beneficial in many ways, but there seems little doubt that it has created a new crop of scholastic misfits who are content to go through the motions of getting an education for the sake of it. Their financial considerations depending on their attendance at school. In making a fair comparison, then, one would have to compare the upper two-thirds of today's pupils with all of yesterday's.

Wheat Exports Drop Sharply.—OTTAWA, (CP)—Canada's wheat exports dropped almost by one-third to 233,900 bushels in the first 11 months of the last crop year.

With Argentina bounding back as an exporter and world buyers showing less interest in purchases, Canadian sales declined by 107,500 bushels from 341,400,000 shipped in 1952-53, the bureau of statistics estimated Friday.

Exports by the United States, Canada's chief competitor, dropped to 191,200,000 bushels from 296,800,000, and those of Australia 57,200,000 from 94,800,000. Argentina, however, recovering from a crop failure, quadrupled shipments to 101,200,000 from 29,300,000.

The first 11 months of the last crop year ran from August, 1953, to the end of June, 1954.

SURPLUS AT HOME.—This drop in Canadian sales occurred during a period of continuing heavy surpluses at home. The unsold surplus at home. The unsold surplus on July 1 totalled 589,300,000 bushels, up 43 per cent from 413,300,000 on July 1 last year.

There have been unofficial estimates that Canada's unsold surplus at the end of the crop year July 31 totalled somewhere between 550,000,000 and 570,000,000 bushels, second only to the peak 595,000,000 bushels in 1944. The official estimate will be made Tuesday.

While world markets appeared to be shrinking, a surplus of surplus were heavy among all the top world exporters.

Miscouche, St. Eleanor's Streets To Be Paved By Provincial Gov't.

The streets of the villages of Miscouche and St. Eleanor are to be paved by the Provincial Government, it was announced yesterday by the Hon. E. P. Foley, Minister without portfolio and member for the Fifth District which includes these two centres. The work is to be done in the near future and will be done by the firm of Curran and Briggs Ltd.

In each place the length of road to be paved is about one mile. In St. Eleanor this will take in a section of the road towards Sherbrooke and a section towards North St. Eleanor.

Mr. Foley stated that he was very pleased at the decision to do this work which would mean much to the people living in these villages, particularly in the spring of the year.

It was also said that Curran and Briggs Ltd. have been instructed to pave the section of the main highway at Coleman corner, where a new bridge was built several years ago, also the section of the highway through the former Mount Pleasant Airport that is not now hard surfaced.—S

Red Cross Meeting Held At Alberton.—On Thursday evening Lt.-Col. Leo F. MacDonald, president of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and Miss Iphigene Arsenault, Red Cross commissioner, both of Charlottetown, met with a group of citizens of the Alberton district for a "know your Red Cross" meeting.

Awards were presented to young men of Alberton who have recently completed a Red Cross first air course. Certificates were presented by Dr. G. E. Robinson, chief instructor during the course, and pins by Lt.-Col. MacDonald. Those who successfully completed the course are Messrs. Clayton Travers, Reginald Travers, Thomas Phillips, Albert Clarke, Erskine Campbell, Kenneth Quigley, Herbert Leavitt, Byron Weeks and Heath Profit.

During an address in which he gave much information about Red Cross work, Lt.-Col. MacDonald spoke of the spirit of service which brought the organization into being and which is still evident in Red Cross work, which is carried on mainly by volunteers. He said the Red Cross is one of the greatest democratic forces in our nation and made reference to the high reputation of Canadian Red Cross in the international field.

Sport Echoes From Prince County

The 12-3 seven-inning victory of the Amherst Bluejays over Curran & Briggs Juniors probably didn't give an accurate indication of the relative strength of the two clubs, but it satisfied yours truly that Amherst has the better team. Of course if you take away that nightmare first inning when Amherst scored eleven runs, you have left a pretty close game.

The boys behind Lefurgey first stabbed him in the back with as juvenile a display of juggling as you'll see on any vacant lot. Then his wildness and the Amherst shillelagns completed the rout, which for a while looked as if it might go on and on like Tennyson's brook. For a desperate moment or two we prayed for rain. A despicable act, we admit, which made us a traitor to society at large, and especially those living in cabins by the seashore. But there was no rain, though the Amherst bats kept thundering out our downfall.

Coke Grady relieved the beleaguered Lefurgey, struck out the first batter to face him, and the side was retired. The Bluejays got five hits, and four of them walked in that hectic inning. Their total of bases for the game was nine. The Curranites got four scattered hits, and none after the fourth inning.

Amherst Intermediates, tied with Lewisville Cubs for leadership in their league, and then Lewisville put them out in the play-offs. Just add two and two and figure where that places us in Maritime junior competition. Of course, Sunday at the Summerside airport is another day, and Lefurgey will probably be out for revenge when, and if, he faces the Amherst batters again. The Amherst boys are big strapping fellows. We'd say they average about 180 pounds. Perhaps the smallest fellow on the team would be MacLellan from Springhill, and that boy has long been known as one of the best in the Maritimes.

Lefurgey has been having it rough lately, but so has Vic Raschi. The best of them occasionally get their bumps, and we predict that De will come back with flying colors to show everyone and his Aunt Susie he is still the promising prospect we said he was.

Garland Harris allowed the Amherst Midgets (their classification admits players one year older than ours) and just two hits as Summerside and Amherst tied one-all in a seven-inning affair. Harris was well on the way to a no-hitter but Martin pushed one through the hole in centre in the sixth. Their second single was a rather cheap one as the C & B shortstop and left fielder stepped politely back to allow the other fellow to catch an easy pop fly which dropped in between them. Then two serious errors in the infield allowed the flying run to score in that last inning, depriving Harris of a well-earned victory and shut-out. C & B got three hits off Gouthrou. They had scored their tally in the second frame.

The Summerside Legionnaires minus Armstrong are like Roger Bannister minus a leg. Their record this summer when their ace hurler was not toying the slab is pretty dismal. This does not mean that the Legion boys are not a good ball club in the other positions. Rather, it means they have virtually no 3-D on the mound itself. Tanton McNeill was a pretty good softball pitcher in his day, but the old lampighter is starting to make his rounds now. If Ross and Handy are facing each other this afternoon at Queen Elizabeth Park, it should be a dilly.

Grand Champion Boar

Three-year-old "Meek Laddie" (above) is the grand champion boar of this year's exhibition and his owner, Mr. Roland W. Payne, of French River, has entered the grand champion sow for the past four years. Mr. Payne's entries also took a junior championship, four firsts, three seconds and four thirds. In previous years, his entries in Maritime Winter Fairs in Amherst placed two grand championships.

getting underway. No doubt many of the cash customers who have been giving their time and attention and enthusiasm, not to mention their silver shekels, to other forms of entertainment will not doubt get back to the games with the three bases to see who the Island champions will be in the various divisions. Interest is always stepped-up considerably in the late August and early September play-offs. Just to finish this rather pessimistic collection of echoes on a brighter note, let us say that we are not downhearted about this year's Curran & Briggs Juniors.

They may not dazzle N.S. and N.B. fans with their brilliance, but they are in the middle of a rebuilding job, and going about it the right way. Just now they have a lot of boys on their Midget team who are improving with every game and all the Junior boys are home brew. They are being led by Johnny Carroll, one of the best leaders of boys in the business, and if they don't pick up any marbles this year, we still won't sell them short for the future.
