SOME NEWSPAPER ERRORS

STRANGE TRICKS UNWITTINGLY PLAYED BY COMPOSITORS

A Fruitful Source of Profanity—Misprints and How They Occur—Instances Where the Misplacing of Commas Have Made Most Singular Reading—Corrections That Do Not Correct.

Erasmus is said to have once declared, when taxed with some errors which had crept into his version of the Greek Testament, that he believed typography to be presided over by the devil. Many writers and readers have since that time felt themselves in cordial sympathy with the sentiment, and there is probably no set of tradesmen who have done so much to extend the language of profanity as compositors. But it would be unjust to lay all the blame on their shoulders, for typographical errors can too frequently be traced to sources other than the composing-room. How often, for example, is not "copy" written in the most hideous and hopeless of caligraphy? Nowadays, indeed, it is decidedly fashionable to affect this weakness, and no one seems to be quite au fait unless he has taken to himself a signature which would baffle the ingenuity of three-fourths of the compositors and bank-clerks of the generation. Such an absurd custom has necessarily resulted in increased labor for the printers, and it is to be feared that "curses not loud but deep" are the order of the day in most of the printing houses throughout the world. In this country, for example one must feel deep sympathy with the unfortunate compositors into whose hands the manuscripts of Mr. Labouchere may chance to fall; and yet his writing is as copper-plate when compared with many equally prolix journalists, politicians and authors. The script of the Marquis of Salisbury and that of Mr. Sexton are in noteworthy contrast, but these instances are rather the exceptions which prove the rule; and many contemporary writers might consider themselves in similar circumstances to the gentleman who, being an indifferent penman, wrote to a friend: "Out of respect to you, I write with my own hand; but to facilitate reading, I have asked my secretary to send you a copy of my letter."

A FURTHER FRUITFUL SOURCE.

of misprints is the fact that many authors persist in employing the most extraordinary contractions and symbols, and trust to the intelligence of the printer for their accurate solution. If he see and read everything through the same spectacle as the author, well and good; but if not, he is reviled (and generally unjustly) as impenetrably stupid. It is not any part of his province to either elucidate or play havoc with the manuscripts which are entrusted to him; but there are people who seem to entertain the entirely mistaken idea that he should rectify all the blunders in grammar and orthography which may come in his way. The clergyman, therefore, who supplied to the local press the manuscript of his sermon on Temperance, could not reasonably blame the compositor, who in "setting up" the copy faithfully adhered to the original; but it must have considerably surprised the readers of the journal to discover the following recorded amongst the reverend gentleman's personal experiences: "Only last Sabbath, dear brethren, a young woman in the parish died very suddenly whilst I was preaching the gospel in a state of beastly intoxication." It would, too, be gross presumption in a compositor to interfere with an editorial comment; and hence—although it doubtless appears somewhat startling—no correction was attempted in the note which was prefixed to a contribution in the "Poets' Corner" of a Cumberland journal: "These lines were written nearly fifty years ago, by a gentleman who has for several years lain in the grave for his own amusement." The clergyman who penned it, and not the printer, was responsible for the advertisement: "Wanted, a young man to take charge of a span of horses of a religious turn of mind;" and we must lay at the door of the reporter the blame for this curious statement in the account which a Glasgow newspaper gave of a shipwreck on the coast of Ayr: "The captain swam ashore, and succeeded in also saving the life of his wife. She was insured in the Northern Marine Insurance Company for five thousand pounds, and carried

A FULL CARGO OF CEMENT."

But it is impossible to acquit the proof-readers of a large share of the blame attaching to such blunders. True it is, we owe to their vigilance the fact that innumerable atrocities are rescued from the publicity that would otherwise attach to them, and their work is so monotonous and wearisome that we must look with a forgiving eye on many of their lapses. Announcements of births, marriages and deaths, market intelligence, betting news, stock and share reports, etc., do not form for them very attractive reading; and it is but natural that the overworked reader should hasten as much as possible over that portion of the work allotted to him. But the promoter of a company who reads that his venture will be issued in "six thousand snares of five pounds each" might be pardoned the ebullition of a little indignation, especially if the error was unconsciously appropriate; and we should not feel surprised if the Conservative subscribers to a Liberal journal attributed to political venom the unfortunate announcement in the report of an election meeting that "the Tories in the audience received their candidate with welcoming snouts." A few years ago a proof-reader on one of the leading journals of Belfast was asked to explain how he had passed over an advertisement which ran thus: "For Sale, a handsome mahogany table by a lady who is going to America with three carved legs;" but the censure was not entirely undeserved, for the same young man had a short time previously allowed to escape his observation a humorous paragraph which had been sent in by a local wag. It contained an announcement of a ballot; and an amused public was informed that "the prizes included a beautiful lady's gold watch, and a handsome silver-mounted gentleman's umbrella." But was it anything worse than the Leicester advertisement about

"PATENT LEATHER WOMEN'S BOOTS?"

More remarkable was the negligence which resulted in the reference, in the course of an obituary notice in a leading "daily," to a deceased General as "a battle-scared soldier." Obvious as was the meaning, the blunder was in all conscience bad enough; but a thousand times worse was the correction which, as the story runs, appeared in the succeeding issue. "We regret that in our notice of the lamented General yesterday," ran the explanation, "a typographical error appeared; but it was of course manifest to our readers that the phrase 'battle-scared soldier' should have read 'bottle-scarred soldier.' We unhesitatingly tender to his relatives the expression of our deep regret at any pain the blunder may have caused them."

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

NEWS NOTES.

The London Standard says that there is little hope of united action by the powers in response to China's appeal to them to intervene to bring about a peace between her and Japan. Russia and France are willing, but Germany's reluctance will prevent action.

GENERALLY PRESCRIBED

The Idea that Bright's Disease cannot be cured Proven to be a Fallacy.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5—Local physicians are much gratified over the letter of Dr. A. G. McCormick, of Bichmond, this province, testifying to his cure of Bright's Disease, by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since the introduction of the remedy in this city, many physicians have not hesitated to prescribe the pills, and numerous cures have been the result. This latest testimony, coming from so well known a medical man, proves that the local men were right in changing the old-time remedies for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Hence their jubilation.

Use whiting and a chamois skin to clean delicate paints, much as you do for silver ware.

Cause and effect; constipation is the cause of a host of diseases. Hawker's liver pills cure constipation, thereby preventing its consequent ills,

Salt is both cleansing and stimulating. It is, therefore, quite as valuable as soap for the daily bath. It may be bought in many forms. Table salt, toilet salt and rock are all good, and the cheapest is no less effective, though, perhaps, less dainty, than the most expensive, which comes perfumed.

The oil of the Norwegian Cod Liver is nature's grand restorative, and is only found in its entirety and purity in Miller's Emulsion, "the kind that cures" colds, coughs, bronchitis and all affections of the throat and lungs. Every bottle warranted. No oily taste like others. In big bottles, 50c. and $1.00, at druggists.

Use a cloth dipped in weak ammonia water with which to lightly wipe off the carpets. It brightens them wonderfully.

A Graduate of Toronto University Says:

"My children have been treated with Scott's Emulsion from their earliest years! Our physician first recommended it and now whenever a child takes cold my wife immediately resorts to this remedy, which always effects a cure."

To steam potatoes, peel them, and when very clean put them in a colander over boiling water. Cover tightly with a lid and leave them until done.

THINGS TO REMEMBER.

A cold in the head is the first cause of cattarrh.

Catarrh is an unhealthy disease and is often followed by consumption.

Hawker's cattarh cure positively cures catarrh, cold in the head and all catarrhal troubles.

Fried bread, cut in small squares, should be served with tomato soup. It will also go well with consomme or ox-tail.

I am not sure I ever told you what a safe and excellent, as well as palatable cure for Coughs, Colds, Consumption add all Wasting Diseases is made in Halifax, Nova Scotia. If not, let me now say that there is no other Remedy quite as good for these ailments as PUTTNER'S EMULSION. I need not enlarge—a word to the wise is sufficient—remember it is PUTTNER'S EMULSION—for sale in your town by all the first-class Druggists, in large eight ounce bottles for 50c.

Use a little ammonia in the water in which you wash window lights and mirrors. Then polish quickly with chamois skin or tissue paper.

IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE?

"Thou source of all my bliss, and all my woe,
That found'st me poor at first, and keep'st me so."—Goldsmith.
Curs't is the wretch who learns his life to rue,
And blest the man whose better half is true.

MORAL.

Use PRUSSIAN OIL, instead of drugs and pills,
'Twill keep you healthy, save you doctor's bills,
Relieve your pains and aches, keep you from debt,
Add to your wealth and happiness, you bet.
Then use it, prove it, and you'll say,
There's nothing like it in our day.

Food should never be allowed to cool in copper cooking utensils. When fruit is removed hot from the vessels, the acids from the fruit do not combine with the copper to make a poisonous compound.

How to Get a Sunlight Picture.

This is an easy way to decorate your home. The soap is the best in the market and it will only cost 1 c. postage to send in the wrappers, if you leave the ends open. Write your address carefully.

Try frying potatoes with a teaspoonful of flour sprinkled over them.
