Pleasure at Pekin - British Stock Going Up - Unconfirmed Rumor.
PEKIN, April 11.—The effect of Great Britain's action at Wei Hai Wei is already apparent here. The Chinese thoroughly comprehend now the disinterestedness of England, and her prestige is now higher than ever. The Chinese regard Great Britain's action as a step which has saved the empire from dismemberment. Numerous indications are reported of a growing Chinese distrust of Russia.
YOKOHAMA, April 11.—Despatches from Naga-saki report that a collision has taken place between the English and the Russians at Ta Lien Wan. These rumors are as yet unconfirmed.

SIXTY NINE DEAD.
Terrible Result of an Avalanche in Alaska.
SEATTLE, Washington, April 11.—Details received yesterday from Alaska increase the horrors of the avalanche in the Chilkoot Pass. Sixty-nine dead bodies have thus far been recovered and the names of 150 missing have been reported as unaccounted for. It is barely possible that some of these had succeeded in crossing the pass before the avalanche occurred. A conservative estimate is that between 75 and 100 persons were killed.

HEALTH ON THE FARM.
The following extract from an address by Mr. G. C. Creelman we clip from Farming for March:
Being now engaged in the insurance business, I come across printed proceedings of meetings of insurance inspectors and medical men who are interested in the work of insurance. In a list of what they considered the best risks for life insurance, I was very much surprised to find that they placed the farmer very low on the list. We hear at all times the claim made that his profession is the most independent of all and the healthiest. I have heard that since I was large enough to hear. Entering into discussion with a physician, he explained why he considered farmers not as good risks as others. He said:
1. That the farmer paid too little attention to the sanitary condition of the house. They had low rooms without half enough air.
2. Their rooms are very poorly ventilated; the windows are low and small, and often placed directly opposite the door; when open there was a draught; when closed no good means of ventilation could be had.
3. In many cases the farm buildings were situated close to the house. Nearly all cases of fever, especially of typhoid fever, could be traced to the influence of streams coming from the stables. In case of sickness the patient was frequently put into the smallest room, and the room off the kitchen where it was supposed to be the warmest. In this way they select the poorest room in the house. It would be better to go upstairs. By putting the patient in the little room off the kitchen the disease would have the very best chance of killing the farmer. The house is often too small. There are sometimes two or three in the same room, and frequently in the same bed. People that live in the city or town, although they have rent to pay, never think of crowding.
Farmers should have some sort of enjoyment to change the routine of life, and break the monotony. Monotony was one of the conditions under which even healthy people did not thrive well. There should be enjoyment on the farm in the evening. Especially those who have been at the college where they have seen things as they should be, should look into the sanitary conditions of their homes very carefully. We know how to tile-drain our land and how to ventilate our buildings properly. The outer buildings should be a good distance from the house. Some farmers in the Southern States are going to the trouble of putting up a covered roof from the barn to the house before they will put up with the unhealthy condition of the farmhouse by its being situated close to the stable.
It will be a surprise to many to learn that the farmer is very low on the list of those who are considered to be the best risks for life insurance. This condition of things is largely due to themselves. They have, in many instances, completely ignored the laws relating to sanitary conditions, with the result that today the farmer, instead of being classed among the best life insurance risks, is down low in the scale. This is something that every farmer should consider, not because it is necessary to secure a better position among insurance risks, but because he owes it to himself and to his family to provide such conditions on the farm as will be conducive to good health and freedom from disease.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.
On the afternoon of March 31st, Mr J A McLellan severed his connection with the St. Margaret's school and the teaching profession, and on that date the rate payers met in the schoolroom and presented him with an affectionate address and a beautiful meerschaum pipe. The following is the address and Mr. McLellan's reply:
ADDRESS.
MR. J. A. McLELLAN, Teacher.—
DEAR SIR.—We the undersigned rate-payers of St. Margaret's School District have learnt with regret that it is your intention to sever your connection with our school at the expiration of the present quarter. We deem it our duty on this occasion to give public expression to the high opinion in which you have been held by us both as a gentleman and a teacher. The very efficient and impartial manner in which you have conducted our school during the last four years has been fully appreciated by us.
Your general conduct outside the school-room, and the active part you always took matters of interest to St. Margaret's parish, have received our warmest commendation. Rest assured, dear sir, that you will always be remembered by us as a faithful teacher and a gentleman of unblemished character. Although we regret your departure from our midst yet we are pleased to know that you go to prosecute your studies that you may qualify yourself for a higher position in life. In bidding you a kind adieu we trust that your future career may be crowned with every measure of success.
Please accept the accompanying gift as a souvenir of your sojourn amongst us: Signed: A. P. McLellan, P. P. Archd. C. McPhee, James R. McDonald, Joseph Hanning, James McLean, Michael R. McDonald, Allan Gillis, Angus A. McPhee, Paul McPhee, Donald J. McPhee, Ronald D. McDonald, John D. J. McDonald, Leo Gillis, John D. Gillis, Joseph L. McPhee, Hugh McPhee, and others.
St Margaret's, March 31st, 1898.
REPLY.
To Rev. A. P. McLellan, Messrs Archd. C. McPhee, James R. McDonald, Joseph Hanning, James McLean, Michael R. McDonald and others.
DEAR FRIENDS.—Although the faithful performance of the work proper to any responsible office is a bounden duty and consequently merits no praise, nevertheless it is a source of great satisfaction to me to know that my humble services as teacher of your school have met with your approbation. I may say, however, that the results of my efforts, for which you are now pleased to accord me abundant and flattering praise would have been trifling indeed had it not been, that I was always aided by your sympathy and support.
I can assure you, dear friends, that it was always a pleasure for me to do all in my power towards aiding whatever tended to promote the interests of St. Margaret's parish, and although now about to cast my lot in another sphere I will always cherish a deep and lasting regard for the future welfare of those with whom I have been associated so long.
The regret you express at my departure is deeply shared by me; but "there is a tide in the affairs of men, &c," and I feel that my duty towards myself obliges me to turn away from it. I have journeyed so happily and enter upon a college career.
From my heart I thank you for the kind and considerate treatment I have invariably received at your hands, and especially for the good wishes you express for my future welfare.
I accept with pleasure this handsome and valuable token of your regard. It will indeed be a souvenir, one that will never fail to recall to my mind the kindness and worth of the givers.
With every wish for the success of your school, the prosperity and peace of your district, I now bid you, my kind friends, a most respectful farewell.
J. A. McLELLAN.
