

NEW APARTMENT HOUSE NEARS COMPLETION IN CITY

This new 15-unit apartment building at 73 Euston Street and is named "The Enright House" consists of eight bachelor apartments, four one-bedroom apartments and three two-bedroom apartments. Construction consists of solid concrete floors and solid concrete walls between apartments, to give every possibility of safety against fire and noise to tenants. Exterior walls are of concrete block and brick for two and a half stories and concrete block and cedar shingles on the top floor. The building is being entirely built within a protective plastic enclosure which permitted no loss of working days throughout winter and it is in the final phase of construction and expected completion date is the latter half of March. The building is constructed jointly by W.G. Barbour and Alfred J. Hennessey. Contractor is Williams, Murphy and MacLeod Ltd.

STEP FURTHER THAN COMMISSION

10-Man Study Group Proposal Urges Full PWC-SDU Merger

The suggestion that P.E.I. university was suggested to the provincial government in a brief presented to Dr. George Dewar, minister of education, late last week by a 10-man study group. It was further suggested that the new university, tentatively called the University of Prince Edward Island, should include Prince of Wales College and St. Dunstan's University merging their identities in the new institution.

The group's proposal differs from the recommendation of the recent Royal Commission on Higher Education which suggested a university of Prince Edward Island with the two present institutions as components with each retaining its identity. Under the commission suggestions the University of Prince Edward Island would have its own chancellor, president and board of governors and Prince of Wales and St. Dunstan's would retain their respective organizations.

A member of the three-man royal commission, Dr. J. A. MacMillan, Charlottetown, declined to comment yesterday on the proposal of a provincial university in which Prince of Wales and St. Dunstan's would be merged.

Dr. MacMillan said "the commission expressed its ideas in its report to the government and the commission feels it cannot make comments until the government makes a decision." He added that he has not seen officially the proposal of the study group.

CONCEPTS TOO VAGUE

In its recent presentation the 10-man group said "we have concluded that to continue with two universities is but to commit ourselves to a system in which it will be virtually impossible for either institution to reach beyond academic mediocrity. We have also concluded that the various concepts of co-operation and federation which have been advanced are too vague, too easily misinterpreted, and too easily prostituted to ward the maintenance of division and the creation of new barriers producing further division, to merit consideration."

"Various concepts of co-operation and federation have been proposed and all of these are not only most difficult to implement and administer, but also have within them factors which could eventuate in conflict between the universities involved. Competition for the limited available funds could cause a hardening of divisions and exaggerate existing tensions."

"We are convinced that very few years will be necessary to demonstrate the absurdity on practical grounds of operating two universities on Prince Edward Island. This being so, money spent on interim facilities or physical plant could well be money wasted."

COME "TOO LATE"

It is understood that Dr. Dewar has told the group that the presentation has come "too late," and that proclamation of the 1964 Prince of Wales College Act will come within the next two weeks. Proclamation of the act is one of the first steps leading to the implementation of the recommendations of the Royal Commission in creating a University of Prince Edward Island with Prince of Wales and St. Dunstan's as federated components.

The new proposal was the result of about six months' study by a group composed of Dr. Malcolm Beck, Charlottetown; Rev. Louis Elias, rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Charlottetown; Dr. John Gillis, Eldon; John E. Green, part-time professor at Saint Dunstan's; Rev. James R. Kelly, St. Dunstan's; Rev. David MacDonald, Alberton; Dr. John Maloney, Charlottetown; K. T. Norris, Charlottetown; Rev. E. J. Roche, St. Dunstan's; and Rev. J. H. Tye, pastor of Park Royal United Church.

In its brief, the group set out seven principles which led to the belief that a single university should be established.

The first principle is that "the facilities for university education (at the undergraduate level) of the young people of Prince Edward Island should be present in Prince Edward Island."

Some of the reasons for this are "the presence of enough university students in Prince Edward Island to insure a first-rate university, if we have but one university; the reduction in costs of university education attendant upon the student being able to remain at home; the presence of a university is necessary to the full development of the economic potential of this province."

MUST BE COMPARABLE

The second principle is that "the facilities for university education in the province must be comparable to the best in Canada in their academic excellence."

The third principle is that "this level of academic excellence can be attained only by having a single university." Another principle is that "the financial resources of this province make mandatory the most efficient use of available funds."

The fifth principle is that "no intermediate phase between our present situation (assuming the proclamation of the Prince of Wales College University Act) and the establishment of a single university should be contemplated."

The sixth principle is "the existence of two universities on Prince Edward Island has been determined solely by our attitudes towards our religious differences and the resultant inability to arrive at an effective compromise."

The last principle set forth was "frank admission and open acceptance of religious differences which makes possible a single university of Prince Edward Island."

In making its suggestion of a single university, the group set out methods for its establishment.

DISCUSSIONS SUGGESTED

Suggested is "immediately following the appointment of a new board of governors of Prince of Wales University, discussions between this new board and the board of governors of St. Dunstan's University be undertaken as to the methodology of merger."

That a new corporate entity should be established at an early date, preferably early enough to make possible the realization of this goal of a single university of Prince Edward Island as a 1967 Centennial project.

"That the appropriate assets of both Prince of Wales College and St. Dunstan's University be acquired and vested in the new University of Prince Edward Island."

"That the most appropriate site for the future development of the new university would be the property adjacent to and including the present campus of St. Dunstan's."

"That with the establishment of the new university, it would become possible to use the present Prince of Wales building and vocational high school as the senior high school for the city of Charlottetown."

NO NEW FUNDS

"That no new public funds be granted for capital purposes to either St. Dunstan's or Prince of Wales College, but that whatever such additional funds might be found be allocated to the development of the new university."

To The Electors Of the Centre Ward

J. E. MORRISON

Having decided to again offer as a candidate in the forthcoming Civic Election, Tuesday, Feb. 23, I wish to solicit your vote.

I feel that with past experience, both as Councillor and, for two years, Mayor, I can be an asset to the present Council in the operation of the town affairs. You know my record in the past and I promise the same effort in the future.

For transportation to the Poll or for the services of a sifter phone 2213 or 2214.

Some of the accomplishments of my past record included chairman of the Summerside and Rural Development Commission under which we instituted the Summerside Industrial Park.

Also as Mayor my council was responsible for the two engineering surveys regarding the Summerside harbour pollution and sewage problem.

Polls Open Today For Town Civics

SUMMERSIDE — Today's civic election here is a battle of rookies against veterans.

Two newcomers in the political field, Eric Johnston and Peter Pope, are running against two seasoned campaigners, Leo Wood and J. Ernest Morrison, for seats on the town council.

Mr. Johnston, 34, is seeking a victory over Councillor Wood in the West Ward Councillor Wood has represented this ward since first elected to the council eight years ago.

Mr. Pope, 31, is running against Mr. Morrison for the Centre Ward seat vacated by Coun. Garnet Ross.

Mr. Morrison served three years as councillor and two years as mayor before being defeated by the present mayor, W. E. Jenkins last year.

Herbert Schurman last Tuesday took the East Ward seat vacated by D. Alex MacDonald, by acclamation. Councillor elect Schurman is also a veteran of civic affairs.

Councillor Ross was forced to retire from civic politics "as a result of being given a new position with the CNR. Pressure of business was Councillor MacDonald's reason for leaving the political scene."

The polls open at 9 o'clock this morning and close at 5 p.m.

For the voters, the Centre Ward polling station will be located in the armouries building on Summer Street, and the Knights of Columbus building on First Street is the site of the West Ward polling station.
