HONEST PRAISE.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa Does Good Work in Maine.

Earnest Endorsement of Kickapoo Remedies from the Extreme North Eastern Section of the United States. Merit Alone Could Have Made These Remedies so Widely known and Universally Indorsed by the People.

MONTICELLO, Aroostook Co., Me. Oct. 16, 1892.

John S. White.

I wish to tell you what your great medicine Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, has done for me and my family.

My wife was very sick and had been failing for a long time, and her old family physician said she could not live. We tried another doctor, and he told the same story, said she could not live three months. She had been confined to her bed for almost two years and was now almost bedfast. The doctor said she had Consumption complicated with Heart Disease and Liver Trouble, and we were about discouraged.

I then heard of your remedy and told my wife about it.

She decided to try it, and before she had taken half a bottle she felt better. When she had taken two bottles she was gaining fast, and before the third bottle was finished she completely recovered her health, and has been a well woman ever since, and her cure is a wonder to all.

Some time after this I was taken sick and my trouble was pronounced Dyspepsia by a physician who relieved me some, but did not cure me. My wife advised me to try Sagwa. I did so and was cured. Soon after that I was attacked with the Grippe and could not get rid of it. Every time I had a cold I was completely used up. At my wife's suggestion I tried Kickapoo Indian Sagwa again, and after using less than two bottles I considered myself entirely well and have remained well ever since. I think I can say that Sagwa is the best remedy that a family can have. In case of Colds there is nothing better that I know of than taking a good dose before going to bed, and my wife says she would not think of keeping house without a bottle of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. She says it saved her life with the help of Providence, and I can say that under the hand of Almighty God I owe my life to the wonderful medicine of all medicines the great gift of nature, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, and all the world should know of its intrinsic worth. Its value as a family remedy is beyond comparison.

JOHN S. WHITE.

THE VENICE OF THE EAST.

Bangkok, the City of Smells, Where the Death Rate is Appalling.

Bangkok, the capital of Siam, has been termed very unhappily the Venice of the east. The New York Tribune thinks that perhaps as regards smells (in which alone there is any comparison between them) it would have been juster to call Venice the Bangkok of the west. But even then an outrageous affront would have been offered to Venice. It is useless even to attempt a description of the smells of Bangkok. To do so would require a quarto volume, to catalogue them would require the services of an analytical chemist, and to read the account of them would leave the reader in blissful ignorance of his subject. The streets are the repository of every form of refuse and are never swept or cleaned by hand of man. It is appaling to contemplate what must be the death rate in a city inhabited by 350,000 to 600,000 persons, especially in periods of great cholera epidemics, such as attend the failure in the wet seasons. Eastern droughts are frightful calamities. A weak monsoon means insufficient rainfall for the rice crop. The cool season, November to January, is followed by the terrible hot season, during which never a drop of rain can be looked for. The River Menam—"Mother of Water"—polluted by every conceivable and inconceivable abomination of animal and vegetable matter, the rotten corpses of men and carcasses of beasts, is very low; it is, moreover, tidal at Bangkok, and its pestilential waters, with their hideous flotsam, are driven back every high tide by the waters of the sea and rendered dangerously brackish The stream is the color of pea soup. Fill the jar and stir the water with a piece of alum, and in ten minutes it will be as clear as the purest spring water; all its suspended matter will have sunk to the bottom into a thick gray stratum. But woe to the stranger mad enough to taste the glassy poison! Let him first say his prayers and then "good-by." If it be considered that the natives drink this fetid liquid without any such precautions as even the clearing alum it may be imagined what a cholera outbreak means. The vultures and parians cannot devour the bodies fast enough; the river cannot carry them down against the tide. A truly terrifying picture is that of an eastern city in a cholera epidemic. As a matter of fact, cholera is always an endemic, and so loses its terrors for the apathetic native until it be upon him.

A Summer Moon.

Queen moon of this enchanted summer night,
One virgin slave companioning thee—I lie
Vacant to thy possession as this sky
Conquered and calm by thy rejoicing might,
Swing down through my heart's deep, thou dewy bright
Wanderer of heaven, till thought must faint and die,
And I am made all thine inseparably,
Resolved into the dream of thy delight.
Ah, no! the place is common for her feet,
Not here, not here—beyond the amber mist,
And breaths of dusky pine and shining lawn,
And untirred lake, and gleaming belts of wheat,
She comes upon her Latmos, and has kissed
The sidelong face of blind Endymion.

The Telephote.

A new apparatus termed the telephote and intended for signaling at sea by night has been brought out by an engineer resident at Vienna. There is an aluminum mast from ten to thirty feet high, a battery or dynamo, a cable of electric wire, and a transmitter keyboard of thirty-seven keys. On the mast are arranged 106 incandescent lamps, which can be manipulated to form the signs of the Morse alphabet. Seventy-two letters a minute, it is stated, can be shown on the telephote, clearly visible three miles in daylight and ten miles at night.

NEVER LOSES HIS UMBRELLA.

But It Takes Shrewd Planning to Get His Packages Home All Right.

"It seems to me," said the worried-looking man, "that memory is very much a matter of habit. Now, for instance, there's the umbrella, generally supposed to be the most elusive and easily forgotten of all things. I never forget mine, for I am accustomed to carry it daily, rain or shine, and I should miss it almost as much as I would my hat. But I am not accustomed to carry things home, and I seldom succeed when I try. I bought some collars once on my way uptown and carried them with me to the Polo grounds. I stowed them safely under my seat while I watched the game and—another wore the collars. Once, when I lived in the suburbs, I bought one day a fish to carry home. I placed it securely in the rack overhead in the cars, and—I hope the railroad folks have removed it before now. I tried yesterday to carry home a bundle containing some things that I had bought, and discovered, after I had got home, that I had left the bundle in the street car. If I am going traveling for any distance I carry my luggage in a certain number of pieces: I have, say, big bag, little bag, two overcoats, and umbrella. When I go aboard or leave the cars or boat I know that I ought to have five pieces, and I never forget them. But here again memory is a habit. On short trips, if I have anything to carry I try by one of three ways, if I think of it, to remember. If it is a bundle that I can put in my pocket, I put it there; that is obviously the safest way. Another way is to put the package on the floor of the car where I must stumble over it in going out. The other way is to carry it in my lap or to lean it up against me so that it will fall and atract my attention when I get up. If I neglect to take one of these precautionary measures the package is gone; but I never forget my umbrella."—New York Sun.

Cucumber Snakes.

Down in Miles River Neck, Talbot County, there is a spot where the average Chinese would delight to dwell. It is a place where Chinese cucumbers grew to an enormous size. This vegetable, however, assumes sometimes a shape which freightens the natives of the neighborhood, in spite of the fact that Talbot is a local option county. The cucumber grows long and slim, and at times twists itself into coils resembling a snake. A man going from Easton the other day to Miles River Ferry, in passing a little clearing in the woods, noticed a green looking object in a patch of vegetables, and he got over the fence to make a closer examination. He almost fainted. Another citizen came along soon afterward. The first man had revived and was leaving the patch at a Nancy Hanks gait. When accosted he said to his friend, "Been bit by a snake; woods full of 'em." Citizen No. 2 persuaded the frightened man to go back, and upon examination the snake proved to be a Chinese cucumber, about twenty-seven inches long, which in the course of growth had twisted itself up in the form of a snake. The cucumber was sent to The American office by express yesterday. It was grown on the farm of L. W. Trail, of Miles River Neck, and its shape is perfectly snakelike. Mr. Trail, it is said, has a quarter of an acre of them. The Chinese cucumber is not eaten to any extent in this country, except by Chinese and a few foolish cows. The former, however, import them in a dried condition from their native land, as they do stale eggs and other odorous luxuries. The Chinese like to see cucumbers grow, and they often cultivate them in their yards in the cities over here. The snakelike appearance of the vegetable does not frighten the slant-eyed foreigner, as he would eat with relish a green gartersnake if he didn't happen to have anything else handy.—Baltimore American.

Secret Thoughts.

I hold it true that thoughts are things
Endowed with bodies, breath and wings,
And that we send them forth to fill
The world with good results—or ill.

That which we call our secret thought
Speeds to the earth's remotest spot
And leaves its blessing or it woes
Like tracks behind it as it goes.

It is God's law. Remember it
In your still chamber as you sit
With thoughts you would not dare have known
And yet make comrades when alone.

These thoughts have life, and they will fly
And leave their impress by and by,
Like some march breeze, whose poisoned breath
Breathes into home its fevered breath.

And after you have quite forgot
Or all outgrown some vanished thought,
Back to your mind to make its home,
A dove or a raven, it will come.

Then let your secret thoughts be fair,
They have a vital dart and share
In shaping worlds and molding fate—
God's system is so intricate.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

In the Human Body.

An interesting exhibit at the National Museum shows the physical ingredients which go to make up the average man weighing 154 pounds. A large glass jar holds the ninety-six pounds of pure water which his body contains. In other receptacles are three pounds of white of egg, a little less than ten pounds of pure glue—without which it would be impossible to keep body and soul together—48½ pounds of fat, 8½ pounds of phosphate of lime, 1 pound of carbonate of lime, 2 ounces of sugar and starch, 7 ounces of fluoride of calcium, 6 ounces of phosphate of magnesia, and a little ordinary table salt. Divided up into his primary chemical elements the same man is found to contain 97 pounds of oxygen—enough to take up, under ordinary atmospheric pressure, the space of a room 10 feet long, 10 feet wide and 10 feet high. His body also holds 15 pounds of hydrogen, which, under the same conditions, would occupy somewhat more than two such rooms as that described. To these must be added 3 pounds and 13 ounces of nitrogen. The carbon in the corpus of the individual referred to is represented by a foot cube of coal. It ought to be a diamond of the same size, because the stone is pure carbon, but the National Museum has not such a one in its possession. A row of bottles contain the other elements going to make up the man. These are 4 ounces of chlorine, 8½ ounces of fluorine, 8 ounces of phosphorus, 3½ ounces of brimstone, 2½ ounces of sodium, 2½ ounces of potassium, one-tenth of an ounce of iron, 2 ounces of magnesium and 3 pounds and 13 ounces of calcium. Calcium, at present market rates is worth $300 an ounce, so that the amount of it contained in an ordinary human body has a money value of $18,300. Few of our fellow-citizens realize that they are worth so much intrinsically.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Mr. R. L. Allan, of Ottawa, writes: "Having been troubled with weakness of the lungs and general debility the past two years, I concluded to give Putner's Emulsion a fair trial. I have taken seven bottles, and find my health much improved, my lungs stronger, my weight increased twelve pounds."

The Best Advertisements.

Many thousands of unsolicited letters have reached the manufacturers of Scott's Emulsion from those cured through its use, of consumption and scrofulous diseases! None can speak so confidently of its merits as those who have tested it.
