LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Poacher's Net.

SIR,—The anglers of Prince Edward Island are becoming disgusted beyond measure with the lamentable lethargy shown by those who have our river fisheries in charge.

From the highest to the lowest official, all seem entirely indifferent to the scandalous netting of trout that is being carried on year after year, and, if anything, more extensively this year than ever before. When one finds by actual investigation that in places where, only a few years ago, splendid fishing could be obtained, now not a single fish can get a resting place, he is apt to express an opinion of warden's general in forcible if not complimentary language.

I am well assured that there will be found none of our anglers to contradict anything I am stating, and that, on the contrary, any of them will endorse what I am agitating about.

All our rivers are pretty much alike, viz, plenty water, gravelly bottom, overhanging alders, and splendid feeding grounds—but no trout. Winter River, a beautiful spot and an excellent breeding ground, is practically useless for fishing. It is netted, of course, at the head of the tide, and not a respectable trout can get past those nets. The warden of this river as far as patent a set of humbugs, as far as protection of the river is concerned, as it is possible to get anywhere. Wheelley River is much in the same way, and so I might mention all the different streams of our Island. Sherry's Creek, I am informed, has a net run through nearly every day, although in full sight of the owner's house. May I ask who is the industrious warden for this water?

On the Morell and Midgell the netting is notorious; and lately I have heard that considerable netting was being practiced at the head of North River, and that although our city warden knew something at least of it, nothing was likely to be done in the matter.

In fact, it is now nearly impossible to get any angling sport with hook or fly, and the only spot where decent trout can be got within thirty miles of Charlottetown is at Trout Point, opposite the Blockhouse, where it is impossible to net them, and where, therefore, some may be had in the early summer months, before they proceed up our rivers to meet their fate in some poacher's net.

In many of these cases, I am aware that some of our city sportsmen, so-called, have been guilty parties; and that, though the country people are generally blamed, they are in a good many instances merely the tools of some scoundrels who, for the sake of filling their own baskets, will deliberately destroy the sport and pleasure of their fellow-citizens—of better men than themselves.

In conclusion, may I say that there is only one course to pursue. If the warden, individually and collectively, do not intend to do their duty, there must be formed a vigilance committee of anglers solely who will force them to it, and who will, without any distinction, bring to justice these contemptible poachers of both town and country. Why should we help to pay salaries for some steps were taken to arouse those who have some influence to those facts. Who will move in the matter?

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,
CREEK.

Notes from Sturgeon.

The crops look well here this season. Wheat, oats and potatoes, and also hay promises to be above the average. The farmers have commenced cutting hay this week.

Our Tea Party was a great success, although the morning was very cloudy, which prevented a great number of people from attending until very late in the afternoon. There was a great quantity of cakes, and a large number of them were sent to the tea by our Protestant lady friends of Sturgeon and vicinity, for which we return thanks to them.

A. C. McDonald, Esq., acted as auctioneer for a while; but having an engagement to meet Professor Saunders, of the Experimental Farm, at Montague Bridge, he was obliged to leave before the cakes were half sold. But our talented friend, A. J. McInnis, took his place as auctioneer, and I can assure you that he made things lively and funny for awhile; for when the people began to scatter he would take the fiddle and play them a tune, and they would swarm around him like bees, and they stayed round him until every cake was disposed of at a very fair price. After paying all expenses there will be about $400, which, I think, is very good.

I am well pleased with THE EXAMINER. It contains a lot of news from all parts of the world.

Professor Saunders' lectures, which you published in the last number, are highly appreciated. There is in them quite a lot of information for farmers who cannot have the opportunity of listening to the Professor personally.

The leading Conservatives are busy here getting their friends' names on the voters' list. We don't want to miss one Conservative, but get every one of them on the list, so that we will be able, at the next Dominion Election, to turn the scale in our favor.

Maakel are very scarce here just now, but the fishermen are in good hopes of getting a haul yet, and are attending their regular net and line. The lobster factories are all closed, after doing a very good summer's work.

I have not heard anything about the potato bug, and I don't want to hear anything of him.

Parnell Commission.

WITHDRAWAL OF THE IRISH MEMBERS FROM THE CASE, PRIOR TO THE TESTIMONY OF A MEMBER OF THE CLAN-NA-GAEL.

LONDON, July 16.—Upon the opening of the Parnell commission this morning, Sir Charles Russell, Counsel for the Parnellites, arose and addressing the court stated that Parnell had instructed him and Mr. Asquith, also of counsel, to no longer represent him before the commission. In reply to Sir Charles' statement, which virtually was a notification that Parnell declined to make any further presentation of his case before the commission, President Justice Hannen said: "Parnell will of course remain subject to the jurisdiction of the court." Messrs. Reid and Lockwood, Counsel for the other Members of Parliament against whom charges were made by the Times, then withdrew from the case.

Parnell made a personal application to court, asking if there was any design to further examine him such examination being proceeded with without delay. He complained of Attorney General Webster's action in postponing for three months his re-examination on the subject of the checks drawn by Parnell. The court, Parnell declared, ought to appoint a day for re-examination, or else discharge him from further attendance.

LONDON, July 16.—James O'Kelly, member of the House of Commons for North Roscommon, was called as a witness today. He declared he had no statement to make, but on cross-examination he admitted he was a member of the Irish republican brotherhood from 1866 to 1870. In 1871 an attempt to arrest him was made while he was leaving Ireland under the name of John Smith. A letter was found in his luggage from an agent shipping arms to Ireland.

Sir Henry James, counsel for the Times, produced several letters written by O'Kelly, partly in invisible ink, in which reference was made to the shipment of arms and the doings of the Fenians. One letter, referring to a remittance of $21,500 from America, contained this passage: "We are ready to take the field when the proper orders are issued to regimental commanders."

The witness admitted that the letters were authentic. While witness was in America he joined the Cl-na-Gael, and this organization sent him to Ireland as a military officer to reorganize the men. He received $9,000 toward expenses. He did not effect the object of his mission. Finding that the agents in Ireland declined to co-operate with him he considered his mission ended; went to France, sent his resignation to America and returned $8,000. Since that time he had no connection with the Cl-na-Gael or Fenians. During his career in Parliament he had received no money from America. He denied spending $10,000 entrusted to him for election purposes.

Matthew Harris, member of the House of Commons for East Galway, testified that he joined the Fenians in 1865. The death penalty to traitors was not an essential feature of the Fenian constitution. Harris instanced the case of informer Kickham, and said the society, after discussion, decided he should not be shot.

Presiding Justice Hannen—"The fact that there was such discussion implies much."

Continuing, the witness said that at the Fenian council in 1881, held in Paris, for the sake of security, he admitted saying in a speech he did not go about extorting over the death of Lord Cavendish. His language was used in the heat of the controversy, and was not meant to justify the murder. He had qualified the speech made by him in which he said that he "should not mind seeing the landlords shot down like partridges."

Tobacco Chewers Among Women.

A well known physician, while walking down the street with a friend, remarked, a patient of mine lives in that house who is dying—an idolized wife—beyond all help, and tobacco chewing has killed her. Why, Doctor! what do you mean? I mean this: her husband is literally steeped in tobacco juice, and the insensible perspiration from his body has become so saturated with nicotine as to be a deadly poison. His wife, before I was called, had absorbed enough of the poison so that no human power can save her; and even he will, I believe, end his days in torture from some kind of skin disease. The skin is really the most wonderful and important organ of the human body. Night and day, every hour of our lives, it is filtering out from the blood useless or poisonous debris. If it stopped work even for twenty-four hours in this or any case, death would ensue. You can imagine, then, what it means for a delicate, sensitive-skinned woman to sleep in a warm bed night after night with an inveterate tobacco chewer. The skin and mucous membrane of some persons is much more sensitive than others. A person who in summer is subject to hay fever, tanned or burned skin, in winter to colds, bronchitis, chapped hands, or chilblains, ought always (whether at home or travelling) to keep a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Lintment near at hand. Dilute the lintment with water and gently bathe, or moisten a cloth with it and lay upon the irritated skin if very sensitive; then wash it clean in the morning with Castile soap and water. If a person who takes cold quickly, or is predisposed to bronchitis or catarrh, or exposed to any poison, irritating to the skin or mucous surfaces, which might tend to cause consumption will every night, before retiring, bathe the chest and throat with Johnson's Anodyne Lintment and, before dressing in the morning, rub the whole body smartly with a coarse towel, slightly dampened, and then wiped dry, we believe they never would have pulmonary troubles, or disease from defective working of the skin. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., will send a pamphlet, free, describing other uses for this old household remedy, now eighty years old.

Respectfully Dedicated to the Editor.

Who fills our hearts with fearful dread;
Who makes us quake e'en in our bed,
And madly long to punch his head;
The Editor.

Who scans our verses with a smile,
O'er which we've spent the midnight oil,
Whose horrid grin a Saint would frown;
The Editor.

Who calmly blasts our hopes, just when
We soared above all other men,
And called him "brother of the pen";
The Editor.

Who cuts up tales with fiendish glee,
And fault-finds till we're feigning to flee
Far, far from that sarcastic "we";
The Editor.

Who's cursed and prayed for every day,
According to his "yea" or "nay,"
Who gets all his own wicked way;
The Editor.

Who makes us yell and gaily sing,
Or madly dance the "Highland Fling,"
When "in" we've got a little thing;
The Editor.

Yet let us wish him happiness,
Though of our lines he makes a mess;
Long life to him, and great success—
The Editor.
