

Labor Unions Ask Tighter Control Of Private Radio

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—Tighter regulation of Canada's private broadcasting stations was urged Wednesday by two labor unions before the royal commission on broadcasting.

Spokesmen for both had stiff criticism of various aspects of private radio operations, but in several instances commission members and counsel took exception to the attacks.

The unions were the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (ARTV), with about 1,800 members, and the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (NABET), which has 1,000 members in the CBC and scattered groups in private stations.

The two unions were agreed that there should be no basic change in Canada's broadcast setup, their representatives hitting at requests of the private stations for an independent body to regulate the CBC and themselves. The CBC board of governors now is the regulatory agency.

NEED MORE RULES
The ARTV and NABET spokesmen said that, far from getting equal standing with the CBC before a separate board, the non-government stations should be regulated more stringently by the CBC and should be fined for infractions of regulations.

E. B. Jolliffe of Toronto, counsel for NABET, accused the private stations of "not knowing their place" in calling for equal status before an independent body.

"Surely, that's a peculiar way of putting it," commented chairman R. M. Fowler.

He and other commission personnel also took issue with criticisms of service given by private radio stations made by Mr. Jolliffe and E. F. Wilcox, executive secretary of the other union.

Mr. Wilcox said private stations are not doing as much as they can, except for a few "honorable exceptions."

Mr. Fowler and commission counsel John Coyne suggested this criticism was unfair in view of evidence received across the country showing private stations do give public service.

COULD DO MORE
Mr. Wilcox said they could do a lot.

"Let's get away from broad generalizations that these people (private broadcasters) are all dirty dogs except for a few honorable exceptions," Mr. Coyne suggested.

Mr. Wilcox said the term "honorable exception" was used by the Massey commission, which had found that except in a few cases, private stations were not providing the community service they could.

Later, Mr. Fowler and commissioner James Stewart disagreed with Mr. Jolliffe's suggestion that no big city private station except radio station CKVL in Vancouver, Que., has been trying to develop live talent.

The commissioners said there has been evidence of a number of stations doing this.

SOME DISSENT
There was some dissent from the commission too, at the NABET spokesman's criticism of the fact that the private broadcasters are carrying on an aggressive campaign for a new broadcast setup.

"Surely anyone has the right to ask for a change in the law," Mr. Coyne said.

"They're not entitled to carry on the type of high-powered program they have for years," Mr. Jolliffe said. It showed "irresponsibility."

Mr. Jolliffe added that, while many private stations are carrying on a campaign for relaxation of broadcast regulations, some "systematically evade them."

"Their view of the legislation is highly inconsistent," he said.

NEEDS PARTNERSHIP
Despite his criticisms of private stations, Mr. Jolliffe said the Canadian system obviously calls for a partnership between public and private stations.

"We have no suggestion that the private stations be liquidated," he said. They could perform useful local and community service.

He called for strengthening of the Dominion network, a group of one CBC and about 30 private stations which is fed privately by the CBC from Toronto. The commission has heard evidence that the Dominion's future looks shaky because of loss of advertising support.

Mr. Jolliffe said it would be a backward step to abandon this network, since it encourages Canadian talent and provides Canadian material to stations that otherwise would have more incentive to use canned programs.

The NABET brief decried "monopoly" in broadcasting and said "chain" ownership or control of either radio or TV stations should be ended in three years. Newspapers owning broadcasting stations should be given the same time to get out of one field or the other, Mr. Jolliffe was critical of the private stations for labor relations policies. Except for a few standards of employment were disgraceful. He knew of an industry where there was so much difficulty enforcing the civil rights of workers.

Chemical May Assist In Breast Cancer Diagnosis

TORONTO (CP) — A team of Montreal doctors reported Wednesday that a chemical found in rancid fat may assist in early diagnosis and perhaps treatment of breast cancer.

Action of the drug, heptaldehyde, was described in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal by Drs. R. N. Lawson, A. L. Saunders and R. D. Cowen.

They suggested that the drug, together with skin temperature measurements, "simple, reliable clinical test" for breast cancer at an early stage. Such a test, they said, would "render at least 95 per cent of breast operations unnecessary."

The doctors said 80 per cent of a group of breast-cancer patients experienced pain or "a tight sticking feeling" in the region of the cancer within minutes after the drug was administered. In all cases, skin temperatures over the cancers were observed to drop suddenly. Heptaldehyde had no effect on skin temperature when the tumor was not cancerous.

The use of the drug in treatment has not yet been confirmed, although research by the scientists showed that breast cancer in animals could be reduced in size by the drug.

Experts Looking For Bigger Grain Market In Japan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Transport Minister Marler said Wednesday some grain trade experts believe that in the next 20 years Japan will become as large a market for Canadian grain products as Britain has been in the past.

If the belief is fulfilled, he told a luncheon of the Vancouver Board of Trade, then the port of Vancouver will benefit immensely. Some 1,000,000 tons of grain were shipped through Vancouver to Japan last year, compared with only 1,607 tons in 1946.

Recalling Russia's undertaking to buy up to 500,000 tons of Canadian grain annually for three years, Mr. Marler said this year's shipment of 400,000 tons already has been made through Vancouver.
