Griesbach Asks Publicity Drive to "Sell" Youth Service

OTTAWA, September 16—(CP) — Voluntary recruiting for active service already shows signs of falling off and the Government should immediately institute a publicity campaign to "sell military service to the young men of Canada," Senator W. A. Griesbach (Con. Alberta) told the Senate.

The western Senator also said the Government should abandon the policy, which he was given to understand it had adopted, of giving all senior commands to officers of the permanent force.

The non-permanent force was the real army of Canada, General Griesbach submitted, and it should be officered by non-professional soldiers. The permanent force provided such essential services as instruction and police work as well as providing staff material.

He pointed out that there were at present from five to seven major-generals and from 12 to 14 brigadiers in Canada, all from the permanent force, while non-permanent force members held no rank higher than colonel.

If this policy had been followed in the first Great War, he said, the Dominion would never have heard of such men as Sir Arthur Currie, Sir David Watson and other brilliant commanders developed from non-professional ranks.

Non-permanent force officers in New Zealand, Australia and South Africa enjoyed complete parity with permanent force officers, as experience had proved that the best practice, Senator Griesbach said.

He did not intend to minimize the ability of the permanent force officers in Canada, he said, because he believed they are far better officers today than there were in 1914.

"There is no doubt at all that our contribution must be an expeditionary force in the present struggle," the western Senator declared. "It is necessary to make a clear declaration to say so and then to proceed with the organization of such a force. The only question is when to despatch it. This question hinges on two points: its organization and training and its equipment."

A Canadian expeditionary force should be trained and equipped in Canada and sent overseas staffed and maintained by Canadians, keeping its identity.

He protested against Canadian airmen being "swallowed up" in the British air force. When Canada had an air force ready for action it should be sent over under Canadian officers.

"In the last war we dominated the British air force. We had thousands of men in that force leading in every action. They were serving the British air force, the name of Canada was not heard.

"To send individuals to join the British air force is inconsistent with our national dignity."

Speaking of mobilization in Canada, General Griesbach recalled that in 1914 there had been much publicity and propaganda.

Thousands of physically unfit men had joined up, "which is reflected in about one-half of our present pensions bills," he said.

The present enlistment system of a rigid physical inspection was producing more physically fit men, but the trouble was that once the unemployed young men and the excitement seekers had all signed up there would be a falling off in recruiting, as indeed had already begun in various parts of the country.

"The successful working out of the present plan of mobilization is predicated on conscription," he said.

Publicity would mend the situation, he suggested, through a public relations branch of the defence department.

Senator J. H. G. Lacasse (Lib., Ontario) urged a clear general understanding that present enlistment of troops was primarily for the defence of Canada. Public opinion had to be taken into account if that most vital element in confederation, the feeling of national unity, was to be preserved.

In some quarters it was suggested that the feeling against conscription was limited to the Province of Quebec, he said, but he disagreed. There were 800,000 French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec and many English-speaking Canadians living in Quebec who were equally opposed to it. He insisted that "unity must precede action."

He objected, too, to street talk about "those fellows on the (Parliament) Hill with soft jobs, saying they are ready to send our youth away to be mowed down."

If Parliament was acting rapidly, it was not because members forgot their responsibilities but because the emergency required fast action.

Noted Island Authoress Interviewed

Whatever immediate effect the Russian intervention in Poland may have, the cause of the democracies is eventually bound to be victorious is the firmly expressed conviction of Mrs. Ewan MacDonald O. B. E., ("L. M. Montgomery"), noted Island authoress, who was interviewed by a Guardian representative yesterday.

A keen student of European affairs, Mrs. MacDonald reviewed the existing situation in Europe and emphasized particularly the distrust which all the smaller nations have for both Germany and Russia. "They realize," she said, "that victory for the totalitarian powers means slavery and subjection for them. Their sympathies must necessarily be with Great Britain and France. In the end, that factor—coupled with the naval supremacy of the Allies—is bound to prove decisive. It may be a long and bitter struggle, but I do not think there is any doubt whatever as to the outcome."

Arriving here last week from Toronto after three years' absence, Mrs. MacDonald plans remaining in the Province for the next four weeks, during which time she hopes to visit many of her friends throughout the country. While in Charlottetown, she is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Mutch, Euston Street.

Is Optimistic

Discussing the trend of Canadian literature, Mrs. MacDonald said there was no reason, in her opinion, for the attitude of pessimism adopted in recent Canadian reviews. It takes centuries, she pointed out, to build up a great literary tradition. We cannot expect to compete with England and the United States, in the matter of literary output. Quite a number of younger Canadian writers are doing highly competent work, both in prose and verse. If the past few years have produced no outstanding classic, they have demonstrated the versatility and sincerity of Canadian writers. The best critics Mrs. MacDonald emphasized, are those who have the capacity for recognizing merit. Unfortunately there are difficulties in the way of young and unknown writers placing their work before the public; but this applies to other countries as well as Canada. In the long run, talent and persistence overcome every barrier.

Mrs. MacDonald disclaimed any critical familiarity with ultra-modern verse, which she frankly confessed left her quite unmoved. Among poets she preferred the Victorians. A recent re-reading of Kipling confirmed her earlier favorable impression of that author. Asked as to her favorite among living American poets, she at once mentioned Edna St. Vincent Millay - -- and stopped there.

"Modern American novels," Mrs. MacDonald continued, "are cleverly written, but brittle. I feel, in reading them, as though I were sitting down at a table where there was beautiful linen, and sparkling glass, but nothing much to eat." It was a relief, after such literary fare, to go back to Scott and Dickens. "And Trollope," she added. "I have a great admiration for Trollope. I read and re-read him, each time with increased pleasure."

"And Jane Austen?" asked the interviewer.

"Of course!" said Mrs. MacDonald. "That goes without saying. Jane is indispensible."

ISLAND MEMORIES

Asked whether her Island memories were growing fainter as a result of prolonged residence in Ontario, the creator of "Anne of Green Gables" and a dozen other delightful books of Prince Edward Island school-days promptly replied in the negative. On the contrary, she said, her early recollections stood out more clearly than ever against the background of her later life. "Green Gables" was an imaginative haven to which she could return at will, however far away she might be in body from her native shore.

The "Anne" stories have been translated into many languages including Polish, which Mrs. MacDonald confessed was made up of so many consonants as to leave her marvelling at the genius of the people who could pronounce the words she had come across in the Polish version of her works.

A recent book which delighted Mrs. MacDonald was Miss Compton's "Over On The Island," which she praised both for its style and subject matter. She expressed the hope that this book, which gathers together so much of the history, folklore and traditions of Prince Edward Island, would have an extensive sale, both in Canada and the United States.

Her own invaluable contribution to the publicity given Prince Edward Island abroad, through stories which have captivated generations of readers on both sides of the Atlantic, Mrs. MacDonald declined modestly to discuss. All she could be induced to say on that score was that she enjoyed having given pleasure to so many children.

A few years ago a very successful screen version of "Anne of Green Gables" was produced at Hollywood. "Anne of Windy Poplars" is now being filmed, and will no doubt prove equally popular with the public.

The pall-bearers were five sons and a son-in-law of the deceased: Frank, Henry, Leo, Eugene and Wilfred Doucette and Augustine Peters. Service at the grave was conducted by Rev. C. F. McKenna, C.SS.R.

TURNIPS 25 CENTS— Prince Edward Island turnips were quoted at 25 cents to the growers yesterday. Dealers here said only small quantities were moving. The crop was expected to be below average due to lack of moisture during the growing season. Produce dealers were quoting 60 cents per bushel for table stock potatoes, an advance of five cents since last week. Only a few tubers were dug and very small quantities were moving. Farmers seemed to have little desire to hurry their crop to market, it was said.

WILL BE FERTILIZER —Commercial fertilizer would probably be available to Prince Edward Island Farmers next Spring at only slightly advanced prices despite the new European War, it was learned unofficially last night from dealers here. Fear had been expressed by farmers, especially potato growers that commercial fertilizers, some of which is imported from European countries would not be available for next year's crops in the event of war continuing until then. Lack of commercial fertilizers would greatly curtail the annual crop of potatoes, it was said. Dealers anticipated the United States would supply what had been shipped formerly from European countries.

Military Wedding At St. James' Church Yesterday

An interesting military wedding took place yesterday morning at St. James Presbyterian Church, Charlottetown when Miss Effie Margaret Brehaut, daughter of William M. Brehaut and Mrs. Brehaut, became the bride of Lieut. Stewart Gordon Ives, of the Royal Canadian Artillery, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Ives. Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, D. D., minister of St. James Church performed the ceremony which was witnessed by a great many guests and friends.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was most attractive in her wedding gown of Elizabeth blue with japonica accessories and hat to match. Her bouquet was a nosegay. Her sister, Miss Mary Brehaut who was bridesmaid wore a French rose colored dress and also carried a nosegay bouquet. Mr. Ernest Lord was the groomsman and Lieut. David Mathieson of the R. C. A and Lieut. Dr. Loyola Duffy of the R. C. A. M. C. were the ushers.

The church was beautifully decorated with autumnal flowers.

During the ceremony Mrs. Bertram Patterson gave a beautiful rendition of "Because", assisted by Miss Lillian McKenzie at the organ.

Following the church ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Euston Street. The house was decorated with snap-dragons. In the dining room the table was most attractive, a bride's cake beautifully decorated forming the centre and flowers being in holders at different points. Mrs. W. E. Bentley and Mrs. P. S. Fielding poured coffee. Those serving were Miss Mary Lowther, Miss Ena Clark, Miss Ena McLeod, Miss Lillian McKenzie and Mrs. B. Patterson.

Later Lieut. and Mrs. Ives left on a wedding trip after which they will reside in Charlottetown until the groom is called away for military duty. For travelling the bride donned a blue dress with mulberry accessories and a grey coat.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold watch.

A very impressive sight at the wedding was the arch formed outside the church door by a guard of honor composed of officers of the Royal Canadian Artillery. The groom is an officer of the unit.

Roosevelt 'Deeply Shocked' By Bombings

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—President Roosevelt told the President of Poland tonight that he was "deeply shocked" at reports that Germany bombed open towns and villages in Poland.

He called again upon belligerent nations to renew their orders prohibiting the bombing of civilians from the air.

In a telegram to President Moscicki, Mr. Rooseveit acknowledged receipt of a message from the Polish President stating that "for some days past German aircraft have deliberately and methodically been bombing Polish towns and villages which contain no conceivable military objectives."

Mr. Roosevelt said, "I have been deeply shocked. . . by the statements contained in your telegram as well as by reports received from other sources including officials of this Government in Poland at the scene of hostilities."

Mr. Roosevelt referred to telegrams from Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, United States Ambassador. One of these communications said:—

"Although they are ostensibly appearing to follow the principle of limiting bombardments from the air to objectives of a military character, in my opinion the German forces are taking advantage of every opportunity, without regard to the danger to the civilian population which may be involved.

"It is also evident that the German bombers are releasing the bombs they carry even when they are in doubt as to the identity of their objectives."

President Roosevelt said in his telegram, "It has been my hope following the receipt from the several belligerent powers of the replies to my appeal of Sept. 1, in which they stated their intentions to limit the operations of their air forces to military objectives, that the world would be spared the horror of witnessing during this war the bombing of open towns and villages and the slaughtering of thousands of innocent and defenceless men, women and children."

The President added, "in view of the hundreds of thousands of lives which may be at stake, it is my earnest hope that the governments of the belligerent countries will renew their orders prohibiting the practice of bombing the civilians in unfortified centres of population from the air, and that they will take measures to assure themselves that their respective air forces are showing that regard for the lives of non-combatants which their replies to my appeal of Sept. 1 have led the world to expect."

On Sept. 1 President Roosevelt appealed to Germany, Poland, Great Britain, France and Italy to refrain from bombing civilian populations and received acceptances from the four belligerents.

Canadian Legion Seeks Best Aid To Dominion

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 —(CP) — Leaders in the Canadian Legion today deliberated on how best to aid the nation's war effort through their war-time experience and the facilities of their organization.

At a meeting of the national executive council here today, Brig. Gen. Alex Ross of Yorkton, Sask., former president, submitted a proposed memorandum on legion action during the war which may form the basis of a submission by the executive to Prime Minister MacKenzie King tomorrow.

"Canada today is full of armchair prime ministers, foreign secretaries, field marshals and admirals who think they know all about running this war," said General Ross.

Although the war began only two weeks ago, some people were criticizing Prime Minister Chamberlain and the British naval and military authorities for lack of initiative and aggressive spirit.

"These people," he said, "are doing a great deal of harm by affecting the morale and esprit-de-corps of their fellow-Canadians, and it is time attention was called to this menace."

In his opinion, anything which disturbed national unity and lessened public confidence played into the hands of the enemy. The legion should deprecate extravagant and inflamatory statements and seek to develop unity.

Discussion of the Ross memorandum turned on a suggestion that members and branches refrain from public criticism detrimental to the military authority, but that any complaints be investigated by committees set up by the provincial and dominion commands which would make any representations considered proper.

It was suggested that the organization and training of troops was bound to be accompanied by situations which might require adjustment, but the legion should not make the task of the military authorities more difficult by irresponsible or hasty criticism.

Represents Calgary West In R. B's Stead

CALGARY, Sept. 18 —(CP)—Col. D. G. L. Cunnington, M. C., Calgary alderman, today became a Conservative Member of Parliament when awarded the Calgary West by-election seat by acclamation. The by-election, scheduled for Sept. 25, was necessitated by retirement of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former national Conservative Leader.

Col. Cunnington, Brigade Commander in the non-permanent militia, won the seat when the only other candidate, Manley J. Edwards, Liberal, withdraw. The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and Social Credit Parties did not nominate candidates.

Born in England in 1885, the son of a schoolmaster, Col. Cunnington came to Canada in 1910 from British Guiana. He has lived in Calgary since 1911 except during the Great War years.

He joined the 191st Battalion, C. E. F., in 1915 as a private and soon was awarded a Lieutenant's Commission.

On Aug. 10, 1918, he won the Military Cross for gallantry when he led his platoon in the capture of a machine gun nest, but the next day he was left on no man's land, his comrades reporting him killed in action.

A German ambulance crew took him to a German hospital. Later he was invalided to England and returned to Canada in 1919.

Archbishop Pronounced Blessing at Exhibition Closing

The following is from a Toronto exchange:

His Excellency Most Rev. J. C. McGuigan, D. D., Archbishop of Toronto, pronounced the benediction at the closing ceremonies of the Canadian National Exhibition here on Saturday night last. This is the first time in the history of the Exhibition that a Catholic prelate has officiated at this ceremony. The President of the Canadian National Exhibition, George Brigden, tendered the invitation and His Excellency graciously accepted. The following is the prayer recited by the Archbishop:

"Almighty and Eternal God, we lift our minds and hearts unto Thee, our Heavenly Father, at the close of this National Exhibition. We adore Thy Supreme Majesty and thank Thee for all Thy gracious goodness. We thank Thee for the material blessings bestowed upon our beloved country as shown by the fruits of the earth, the agricultural and industrial development and all the varied works of art, of science and of industry of our Canadian people as displayed during this great fair.

We pledge our constant fidelity to Thy sacred commandments and laws. We vow eternal and unflinching loyalty and love for our beloved Canadian Nation; her honor shall be our honor; her welfare our glory.

Bless, O Lord, our country. Keep it in righteousness, in order and in prosperity. Banish from the hearts of all men the spirit of hatred and discord and give peace to all the world. To the solemn and trying hours through which we are passing, we beg the Guidance of Thy Holy Spirit upon His Majesty, our beloved Sovereign, King George, his Gracious Consort, Queen Elizabeth and the Royal Family and upon the rulers of our country. Give us the grace to love with all our hearts the blessed, God-given freedom which, with the other nations of the British Commonwealth, our country will ever cherish and defend. May Thy sustaining power, O Lord, quicken us with a still greater love for Canada and inspire us to guard its shores and homes from all dangers, and at the same time to work and pray for that Christian peace and tranquility of order which is characteristic of true children of God.

In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."
