Canada Career Week is being celebrated this year Nov. 4-10. This week has been set aside to impress upon you the need for an organized approach to career planning, and to highlight the services available to you to assist you with your plan.

Student Services at U.P.E.I. have people who are willing to help you make decisions, find out more information, and assist you in determining what careers would best suit you.

In view of the fact that Career Week is being celebrated we want to invite you to participate in some of the following events:

- on-going video tapes on various aspects of job hunting shown at the Barn, Monday-Wednesday, and Student Services Thursday-Friday.

— Interview CIMN Tuesday, November 6, with Dave Dickie and Marion Basha.

— Information meeting in the Career Information Center, Student Services, Main Building, on Wednesday, November 7 at 7:30 p.m.

WHAT CAN I DO WITH AN ARTS DEGREE? insofar as the job market is concerned? This session, open to any interested student, will address the issue of what options are available for students who major in Modern Languages, Music, Philosophy, Political Studies, Religious Studies, Psychology, Sociology and Anthropology. It will be held at 2:30 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. in Room 01 Main Building, on Thursday, November 8th.

Students interest in part-time employment should register with the Canada Employment Centre on Campus. We are located in Main Building on the first floor, and are open from 8:00 - 4:30 Monday to Friday.

Following are recruiting interview dates for graduating students to keep in mind:

Nov. 1 — GENERAL FOODS — Pre-Screen deadline.

Nov. 7 — ZELLERS — Interviews.

Nov. 14/15 — PROVINCIAL AUDITOR — Interviews.

Nov. 19 — PROCTOR AND GAMBLE — Interviews in Moncton for selected candidates.

CUSO INFORMATION MEETING will be held at 7:00 p.m. in Faculty Lounge, Main Building on Thursday, November 1st.

Another week, another column. Did you make out OK in those mind-grinding mid-terms?

I can't believe the response to this column; there is no question in people's minds that it is a great idea. There have been some useful criticisms, though.

One girl told me that I didn't do the staff at Myron's justice; another girl told me that I didn't half sing the praises of the salads at Pat's Rose and Grey Room.

A prominent American exchange student, who shall remain clueless (except to say he shares the name of a famous prince who is married to an even more famous princess named Diana) — OOPS! — I mean nameless says that there hasn't been any beneficial information in the column since the review of Myron's.

So, I guess I haven't satisfied everyone. Maybe I should rephrase that ... naw, there's nothing leading about that statement.

This week's column is devoted to Sunday, that wonderful day when we are supposed to rest but more often than not end up studying our poor little brains out.

Fear not, though, Student Union and your Lifestyles reporter are coming to the rescue.

Movies from Friday Afternoon's Film Fest are being shown again Sunday evenings, starting at 7 p.m. There is no liquor sold on Sunday evening, but there is a bartender on hand to serve non-alcoholic beverages. The crowd this Sunday past for the Monty-Python Extravaganza was excellent; it looks like the new idea is going over well.

However, what if you want to get off the campus? Trust me, you're not quite sh_____ out of luck.

You can always take in a flick at one of the two established theatres in Charlottetown. Or, you can take my suggestion: go Coffee Shop Hopping!

Don't laugh. It's important to know where you can get the best cups of coffee in any metropolitan area, especially in Charlottetown, where the boredom meter is always way into the red.

Are you taking this seriously? I sure hope so.

Alright already. Here's a list of the best cups of coffee in town.

1) delicious coffee at Pat's;

also, there is the added incentive of carrot cake or breadsticks. Restaurant closes at 10 p.m.

2) Linda's coffee shop on Queen Street, two blocks down from Pat's. Eye-opening brew. Open 24 hours.

3) Little Christo's Cafe, also on Queen Street. Nice little place; they also serve pizza, subs, whatever your pleasure.

4) Myron's Place. Both the coffee and tea are good here. Open until 10 or 10:30 p.m.

5) try the old standbys, Tim Horton's, Mister Donut, or Golden Donuts. The coffee's always good, and you can stuff your face with donuts if you so desire.

Now, I wouldn't recommend that you go to all of these places in one evening, it is hazardous to the health. I have to admit, it was fun trying, but even I failed.

You know, I can imagine the collective gasp when this paper hits the streets — people will be darting here and there, utterly unable to believe that I have reached a limit on just how much coffee I can drink. Golly!

I guess I've fixed some wagons this week, so I'll stuff a sock in it. See you next week, same time, same place.

Arteau wins Watchman

By Brian MacLeod

Jocelyne Arteau won a Sony Watchman from Saga Foods and Coke last week by buying a large Coke and entering the promotional contest in the Cafeteria.

The Watchman, which was valued at a retail price of $250, was given away in a campaign to increase sales of large-sized Cokes.

According to Saga Food Services Manager Andy Dean, the first contest did not draw a lot of response from students.

The next one will feature as a prize a ghetto blaster. A date hasn't been given for the start of the contest.
