Ottawa Correspondence.

(Special to The Examiner.)
SATURDAY, Feb. 7.

The estimates contain no appropriation for Revision of Voters' Lists, which may be taken to mean that there is to be no revision this year. The omission may be supplied, however, in the Supplementary Estimates.

Four petitions have been presented to the Senate for divorces.

Owing to Lady Stanley's health, some of the Rideau Hall festivities have been postponed and others abandoned.

Ontario supporters of the Government are urging the propriety of increasing the duty on fresh beef, mess pork, etc., imported from the United States; and boot and shoe manufacturers ask for an increase of duty from 25 to 35 per cent.

Among the names of the parties asking incorporation as the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, are those of Elijah F. Purdy, of Charlottetown, and M. McLeod, Milton Station.

The House went into Committee of Supply yesterday afternoon, and made some progress, but the Budget Speech will not be delivered for a fortnight, probably.

Mr. McCarthy's bill for the abolition of the French language in the Northwest has been made the order of the day for 12th of February. Then will come the tug-of-war. The discussion is looked forward to as the hottest that has taken place since Confederation.

Mr. Charlton has introduced a bill making it a corrupt practice under the Election Act for any candidate supporting the Government to make a promise in an election contest that his return will be followed by the presentation of some public work.

Mr. Blake is frequently in his seat, looking big and hearty, but it is reported that the Opposition caucus was informed that it is not his intention to take any prominent part in the discussion of business this session.

Wedded After Many Years.

A ST. LOUIS MARRIAGE REVEALS A ROMANCE THAT OUTDOES TALES OF FICTION.

According to a late St. Louis despatch, forty-three years ago North Benton, daughter of a well-to-do merchant of Gardiner, Mo., and James Corbett, a young sailor, were lovers. Benton forbade marriage, and the young sailor becoming persistent he ordered him from the house. There were secret meetings between the young people, and finally Corbett induced the girl to consent to secret marriage. Then he bent his energies to get her to go abroad with him, but failed. She said duty dictated obedience to her father, and refused to go with her husband. Finally he sailed for South America without anyone knowing of the secret marriage. He remained away so long that his wife mourned him as dead, and 13 years afterwards married Thomas B. Dunn. They came West and settled in St. Louis, where he died, leaving her childless, but with a comfortable property. She returned to her girlhood home, and there finding Corbett married and the father of a family, she returned to St. Louis. Two weeks ago Corbett put in an appearance, and there were mutual explanations. His wife had died, leaving two children. Her husband was dead. In view of this very peculiar position it was decided to have a quiet wedding, and this took place on Wednesday evening. He is 65 years old, but looks 50. She is 60.

The Racing Season in '89.

INTERESTING FIGURES AND FACTS FROM OFFICIAL SOURCES.

The figures from official sources which deal with the success or non-success of the various running meetings held throughout the country during the season of 1889 are as usual, very interesting to the lovers of the turf. The total number of races run on the flat, it appears, was 4,848, and 91 over the jumps. The figures in 1888 were 4,291 and 130, so that there was 557 more races run on the flat last year than ever before in a single year, while the jumping races showed a decrease. Of the flat races, 3,119 were run at distances under a mile, of which 1,090 were at six furlongs, 1,017 at five furlongs, and 529 at seven furlongs. To compare these with the English figures there were 1,623 races run under Jockey Club rules in England in 1889, of which 1,049 were at distances less than a mile, so that the proportion is not much different, and shows that both countries are passing through similar experiences. As for the purses given, the figures show that $2,379,192 was given away in this country in 1889, as compared with $1,837,275 in 1888, the next highest year. These figures include, of course, all money paid for entrance to purses, amounts now in matches and surpluses in selling races. Of this whole sum, West Side, Chicago, added the greatest amount, $219,100, for 112 days' racing; Clifton, $201,150; Gravesend, $195,425; Monmouth, $184,250; Sheephead, $176,550; Morris Park, $164,750; Jerome Park, $164,300; Guttenberg, $108,050; Elizabeth, $108,050; Brighton Beach, $78,000; Linder, $17,500; Rockaway, $8,000, and Yonkers, $6,125. Monmouth Park averaged $9,212 for 20 days' racing, and Sheephead was second highest, with an average of $8,270.50 for 20 days.

In 1888 there were 96 steeplechases, and in 1889 only 54, of which Chicago contributed 16, Brighton Beach 9, Washington 8, and Boston 7. In the matter of heat races there was a distinct falling off, and only 297, with 495 heats, as against 337 races and 879 heats in 1888. It looks from this as if both the public and owners and trainers are opposed to heat racing, and that the season of 1890 will see still less of it than that of 1889.

Sad Suicide.

A young farmer named McLean, living at North River Bridge, committed suicide by cutting his throat yesterday afternoon.

It appears that McLean, who has been melancholy for about a month past went out to the cow stable to feed the cattle, after doing which he committed the rash act which ended his career upon earth. His sister with whom he resided, not seeing him raving about the place when she went outside to give him some assistance with the cattle, called out his name. Not receiving any response she went inside the stable, and there found him with his throat cut from ear to ear. Life was not quite extinct when this alarming discovery was made, and word was sent to town for Dr. S. R. Jenkins. The Doctor got to the scene of the sad affair as soon as he could, but too late to be of service. McLean was dead.

A jury was empaneled and an inquest was held by Dr. Conroy, Coroner. A verdict of "Death while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity" was returned.

The Parnell "Times" Case.

SOME COMMENTS ON THE COMPROMISE.

The Pall Mall Gazette says Parnell has won a complete victory, morally and materially, and will carry the conqueror's prestige into the investigation into the charges against him which will be demanded from Parliament.

The St. James Gazette attributes Parnell's acceptance of the compromise to the desire to avoid cross-examination in the libel suit.

Mr. Somes, solicitor for the Times, says: "The Times will only pay ordinary costs to Parnell, and that Parnell will not be released from payment of interlocutory cost awarded to the Times, nor from costs of the abortive Scotch and Irish actions." He says the statement that the Times proposed the compromise is inaccurate.

The Star, T. P. O'Connor's paper, in an article on "The Victory of Parnell," says Parnell has legally reinstated his character in the face of a tribunal packed by his enemies in the treasury bench. If he had failed to establish his case he must have quitted the House of Commons. Having succeeded, he must be reinstated with appropriate honors. The Star further says that the first duty of W. H. Smith, Government leader in the House of Commons is to propose a resolution acquitting Parnell of the charges made against him, and summoning Mr. Walter, proprietor of the Times, to the bar of the House for a grave breach of privilege.

The Freeman's Journal calls the denouement in Parnell's action "The Times' Sedan." Nothing in history, it says, is more craven than the course of the Times.

A Decrease in the English Army.

England probably is the only great power which can point to a decrease in the total strength of its military establishment during the past twelve months. The British army is less numerous by about a thousand men than it was a year ago. The strength of the Infantry has decreased by half as much again, but there has been a slight increase in the artillery, engineers and army service corps, while the cavalry has remained stationary. The total diminution, however, is not serious, and it is something to know that the British army is stronger than it was four years ago by 10,000 men. The number of troops quartered in the British Isles show an increase of 4,000 over the strength recorded in December, 1888. The British army in India has been reduced by 2,500 men, owing to the cessation of hostilities in Burma; there are still about 28,000 men in Ireland and the strength of the Egyptian garrison remains steady at about 4,200, including the force at Suakin. These figures do not include the Indian armies or the colonial militia; and if they were included the British army on paper would not look quite so insignificant.

Not a Political Stew.

Politicians have been of late worked into quite a political enthusiasm, or as it is sometimes termed, "a regular stew." But as the stew I'm about referring to is of an entirely different nature, we will not, for the present, take up your time in anything foreign from the point. Take three or four stalks of celery, cut into small pieces, boil in water until tender, add milk, butter and pepper, same quantity as for an oyster stew, serve hot with oyster crackers. This is one of the most toothsome, as well as health-promoting dishes. A significant fact about celery is that most every doctor uses it, and the significance of it is this, in their practice, in direct contact with most every form of disease, some such preventive and nerve restorer is needed. It has been said that celery and lemons should be freely used as a preventative of la grippe, and also the best medicine to take for it. As Gay & Son have some celery left yet, it would be an actual sin of omission (if in need of it) not to procure some. A few weeks more and celery will be a thing of the past. "A word to the wise is sufficient." Our best celery will be 50 cents per dozen for this month only. Orders delivered on board train without extra charge. Call at our Stalls in the Market, or address J. J. GAY & SONS, P.O. MAIL, febl—dy law wky

COLLISION ON THE I. C. R.

A collision occurred near Springhill Junction on the I. C. R. on Saturday night, between the C. P. R. midnight train and an I. C. R. special. A gentleman passenger of the C. P. R. train took to Halifax several splinters which entered the car he was in through the windows, as a memento of his narrow escape. The damage done, which was principally to the special, was not extensive.

BERIED TO DEATH.

A Springfield, N. S., despatch of the 31 says: Mrs. Bennett, wife of the stipendiary magistrate, while stopping near the kitchen stove, brushed her dress against it and ignited her clothing. When her cries brought assistance she was completely enveloped in flames and so horribly burned that she died on Saturday morning. She was 52 years of age. Two sons and her husband survive her.
