GREAT DRY GOODS SALE.

We intend to make extensive alterations in our premises next spring, and a change in our business, and to do this must clear out our entire stock of Dry Goods, Clothing, Carpets, &c., &c

To dispose of this immense stock within so short a time, it must be sold at a sacrifice, and we shall, therefore, give discounts varying from 20 up to 30 per cent.

The stock consists of Seasonable and Fashionable Goods, which are all marked in plain figures, and at prices that are well known to be the lowest in the market.

This Sale will be for CASH ONLY.

GREAT DRY GOODS SALE

STANLEY BROTHERS' ANNOUNCEMENT.

We don't believe in Clearance Sales at this busy season of the year; its not business and its not right. But to meet those who have started it, we will offer our whole stock at Large Reductions for Cash, as we are bound not to be undersold.

Our Goods are all marked in plain figures, so that you can see for yourselves the regular price and the marked down price. This is a bona fide Clearance Sale. Come and get Bargains.

ANY GOODS THAT ARE CHARGED MUST BE ENTERED AT THE REGULAR PRICE.

STANLEY BROS.

Ch'town, November 21, 1887.

GREAT DRY GOODS SALE

AND OPENING OF THE WINTER CAMPAIGN.

We find our premises are at present entirely too small for our increasing trade, and contemplate adding to the rear of our large store a two-storey brick building

In order to do this it is not necessary to advertise such enormous discounts off our already very Low Prices, as the public are well aware that our prices are away below those who are continually advertising 20, 30 and 40 per cent discount.

FOR CASH

We guarantee as much Dry Goods for one dollar as any store in the city.

JAMES PATON & CO.

GREAT DRY GOODS SALE.

BIG DISCOUNTS.

TREMENDOUS STOCK.

J. B. MACDONALD will offer his entire stock of Dry Goods and Clothing at a Great Sacrifice, bound not to be undersold by any house in the trade.

Come right along; you will find that no one can attempt to undersell us.

CHAPTER XVIII.

"Nay, but hear me," said Halero; "it seems that, by the marks or arms that are upon them, he knows that they were formerly his property. Now, were you to give me the box, as you promised, I fairly tell you, I should give the man back his own."

"And Brenda might do the like," thought Mordaunt to himself, and instantly replied aloud, "I have thought better of it, my friend. Captain Cleveland shall have the toys he sets such store by, but it is on one sole condition."

"Nay, you will spoil all with your conditions," said Halero; "for, as glorious John says, conditions are but—"

"Hear me, I say, with patience. My condition is that he keeps the toys in exchange for the rifle-gun I accepted from him, which will leave no obligation between us on either side."

"I see where you would be—this is Sebastian and Dorax all over. Well, you may let the jagger know he is to deliver the things to Cleveland—I think he is mad to have them—and I will let Cleveland know the conditions annexed, otherwise honest Bryce might come by two payments instead of one; and I believe his conscience would not choke upon it."

With these words, Halero went to seek out Cleveland, while Mordaunt, observing Snailsfoot who, as a sort of privileged person, had thrust himself into the crowd at the bottom of the dancing room, went up to him, and gave him directions to deliver the disputed articles to Cleveland as he had an opportunity.

"Ye are in the right, Maister Mordaunt," said the jagger; "ye are a prudent and a sensible lad—a calm answer turneth away wrath—and my self, I shall be willing to please you in any trifling matters in my sma' way for, between the Udaller of Burgh-Westra and Captain Cleveland, a man is, as it were, atween the deil and the deep sea; and it was like that the Udaller, in the end, would have taken your part in the dispute, for he is a man that loves justice."

"Which apparently you care very little about, Master Snailsfoot," said Mordaunt, "otherwise there could have been no dispute whatsoever, the right being so clearly on my side, if you had pleased to bear witness according to the dictates of truth."

"Maister Mordaunt," said the jagger, "I must own there was, as it were, a coloring or shadow of justice on your side; but then, the justice that I meddle with, is only justice in the way of trade, to have an ellward of due length, if it be not something worn out with leaning on it in my lang and painful journeys, and to buy and sell by just weight and measure, twenty-four merks to the lispund; but I have nothing to do, to do justice betwix man and man, like a fowl or a Law-right-man at a lawing lang syne."

"No one asked you to do so, but only to give evidence according to your conscience," replied Mordaunt, not greatly pleased either with the part the jagger had acted during the dispute, or the construction which he seemed to put on his own motives for yielding up the point.

But Bryce Snailsfoot wanted not his answer. "My conscience," he said, "Maister Mordaunt, is as tender as any man's in my degree; but she is something of a timorous nature, cannot abide angry folk, and can never speak above her breath, when there is aught of a fray going forward. Indeed, she hath at all times a small and low voice."

"Which you are not much in the habit of listening to," said Mordaunt.

"There is that on your ain breast that proves the contrary," said Bryce resolutely.

"In my breast?" said Mordaunt, somewhat angrily, "what know I of you?"

"I said on your breast, Maister Mordaunt, and not in it. I am sure nae eye that look, on that waistcoat upon your own gallant brislet, but will say that the merchant who sold such a piece for four dollars had justice and conscience, and a kind heart to a customer to the boot of a that; sae ye shouldna be so thrawart wi' me for having spared the breath of my month in a fool's quarrel."

"I thrawart," said Mordaunt; "pooh, you silly man! I have no quarrel with you."

"I am glad of it," said the travelling merchant; "I will quarrel with no man, with my will—least of all with an old customer; and if you will walk by my advice, you will quarrel name with Captain Cleveland. He is like one of you cutters and slashers that have come into Kirkwall, that think as little of slicing a man as we do of flinching a whale—it's their trade to fight, and they live by it; and they have the advantage of the like of you, that only take it up at your own hand, and in the way of pastime, when you have nothing better to do."

The company had now almost all dispersed; and Mordaunt, laughing at the jagger's caution, bade him good-night, and went to his own place of repose, which had been assigned to him by Eric Scambester, (who acted the part of chamberlain as well as butler) in a small room, or rather closet, in one of the out-houses, furnished for the occasion with the hammock of a sailor.

BIG EGG SHIPMENT.—A special egg train of twenty-five cars passed over the Grand Trunk a day or two ago for New York via Delaware, Lackawana and Western railway. Those trains are guaranteed to make the run from Hamilton to New York in 48 hours. The shipment was a single consignment from Strathtrow, and the total number of eggs was over 51,000,000.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Georgetown Awoke:

Sir,—Although Georgetown is a very pretty place, with beautiful wide streets, so laid out as to divide the two into a number of blocks with the same exactness adhered to as in the planning a city; and although the natural scenery with which it is surrounded is such that some of the neighboring villages cannot boast of; yet none seem to speak very highly in its praise, but the very general complaint we hear is: "It's a dull place! a dead-and-alive place! Nothing going on at all!"

Indeed, one of its residents (not the writer), no later than this very day, was heard to say: "If a loaded cannon, pointing directly down the Main Street, was discharged, this afternoon, it is not likely any one would get hurt, as we scarcely see any one moving about!"

But, to-night, Mr. Editor, a great change came over this place—such a change as one would hardly think possible in so short a time. As the evening train came puffing in her whistle was heard to blow unusually loud and long, and it did not very soon cease, but still louder and longer it blew, and yet more loudly, if possible, with no indication of its ceasing to blow; and as the moments passed by and the train's whistle continued to blow without any intermission, only that it blew louder, and still more loudly, the quiet place became almost frantic with alarm. Men, women and children (I cannot say who else) ran with all possible haste to the depot, many of whom (like the writer) likely ran with the awful expectation of soon receiving the sad account of a dreadful railway disaster in the quiet village of Georgetown!

But great was the surprise of the people, and greater still their merriment, when they learned that the occasion of the wonderful salute with which the train had just greeted them, was an occasion of joy and not of disaster. The fact was, one of the young men of this town, a clerk of Macdonald & Sons, had been away from the place a short time, and was now returning home in the train being accompanied by his newly-made bride. The train hands made the very best of the happy event (and who would not?) and many of the residents of this village (especially the boys) were in perfect sympathy with this new departure, and all extend to the happy couple their congratulations.

VERACITY.

The Domestic Monthly December, 1887.

The Domestic Monthly gives to every yearly subscriber, free, coupons good for one dollar's worth of patterns. Any patterns may thus be selected at any time. The Domestic was never more successful than now; the December number is filled with good things, charming stories and poems, and attractive illustrations.

As a fashion magazine the Domestic is without question, the most practical, complete and reliable. It gives the earliest notes of new fashions and illustrates them minutely. It saves ladies many times its cost in suggestions of a practical nature. It is a real help in the family. Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher has edited one of its departments for many years, and all the well known writers contribute to its pages.

The Domestic Monthly is published at 853 Broadway, New York, at $1.50 a year, post-paid, with $1 worth of patterns to every subscriber.
