

MARY HAWORTH

Wife's Smothering Attitude Not Agreeable To Spouse

Dear Mary Haworth: My ideas plane, enough camping equipment marriage may be old ment to stock a store, movie fashioned, but I feel when you equipment, and so on. marry you are to share life as know one needs relaxation fully as possible with the part- and I'm not jealous. But I feel ner who is the most important two men have become too im- person on earth, to be treated as such. But it seems my husband doesn't agree. He is always pulling away. We've been married eight years and have a son, I would like to have another child, but hesitate due to my husband's unentitled attitude. He has two male cronies, one single, the other married (who neglects his wife and children), and apparently he can't see enough of them. He sees them during working hours, also belongs to a club with them, and likes to go camping, hiking, trail riding in his jeep, etc., in their company. I've learned to share his likes, as he rejects mine. But if he takes our son and me on that type of outing, sometimes with another couple along, he's dissatisfied. In a few days he is planning another trip with his two buddies, though he knows I disapprove of them. He runs his own business and owns two boats, three motor vehicles, several two-way radios, radio-controlled model air-sons into the other's growth history.

In your case, unfortunately, you want to be wholly "at one" with your spouse, somewhat in the sense of Edgar Allan Poe's poem about Annabelle Lee: "who lived with no other thought than to love and be loved by me..." A very suffocating brand of devotion, actually.

As I see the picture, you and your husband contribute about equally to the problems of which you complain. And the source of conflict is emotional immaturity in his character and yours.

You look to him with a demand, fixated childish dependency to be your everything, as the phrase is. As if, without him at your side, participating and encouraging, every step of the way, you just can't manage to feel any real interest in living.

He reacts badly to this pressure, involuntarily, due to his own immaturity and failure to comprehend the inner meaning of the crossfire.

Your attitude makes him afraid, unconsciously of the growth requirements of marriage; as it should be lived. Hence he rejects growth; he regresses to an earlier age. He takes flight into being "one of the boys," sticking like a leech to his two male cronies, hiding out with them, figuratively, from the womenfolk, to give himself breathing spells from your relentless demands.

The downright approach to solving your marital problems of mutual confusion and offense is through first hand consultation with a family relations adviser. Ask your local Family Service Agency for an appointment, to discuss specifics. M.H.

Restores a Younger Smoother Look to Winter Aged Skin

Canadian winters are merciless in their raid on a woman's youthfulness. Dry air and overheated dry rooms cause the loss of soft, smooth complexion years too soon. But now science outwits these enemies of fresh, young looks. 2nd Debut with CEF 600 and CEF 1201 in double strength are purely scientific products. Nothing else can actually put water back into the skin. A more youthful look returns to stay—as long as 2nd Debut is used regularly.

MR. AND MRS. LESLIE POOLE Martin-Poole Vows Pledged Recently At Zion Church

Marriage vows exchanged at Zion Presbyterian Church recently united Catherine Edna, daughter of Mr and Mrs Cyrus E. Martin to Leslie Edward, son of Mr and Mrs John Poole, Milton. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev Donald A. Campbell. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie with neckline of scalloped lace accented with sequins, and long lily point sleeves. A four tier shoulder length bouffant veil of silk illusion was held in place with tiny roses and satin leaves. She carried a cascade of red roses. Eileen Martin, sister of the bride, attended as maid of honor and Eleanor Thompson, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore identical street length dresses of pink satin with pale pink organza overskirts and cummerbunds with bows at the back waist. Their headresses were of matching material with organza roses holding short double illusion veils. They carried white and pink carnations. Orville Curtis attended the groom as best man, and Vernon MacLeod, cousin of the groom, ushered the guests to their seats. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Martin chose a two-piece suit of royal blue with blue and black accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses. The groom's mother wore a dress of white, blue and black jersey with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Following the ceremony, a reception for 50 guests was held at the high school in Hunter River, where the bride's table was decorated with mixed flowers and centered with a three tiered wedding cake. Mary A. MacKenzie proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded. Alba MacQuarrie circulated the guest book. For travelling, the bride wore a two piece suit of peach wool boucle, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Following a honeymoon trip to Nova Scotia, the couple are residing in Milton.

ELLEN'S DIARY

We Preserved Crabapples In Heavy Bubbly Syrup

"I should like to be on the Island now" one native-born, and reared, writes from a distance. "I still remember how beautiful the Autumn is there. And how good that season used to be. Not that it is not lovely and also pleasant here, but we don't have the glory of the maples, and the shubbery is different. I think so many times of the stools in the harvest fields, of the overflow of the crop put up in quaint stacks and roofed racks, and of the fall thrashing when the gear went from barn to barn." "And when the word came it was moving to ours what preparations indoors were made: the extra bread and rolls, the pies and the sweets. And the huge roast of beef that went into the biggest pan to be cooked - "The Christmas Pan" we children called it, because it was used then to roast the festive turkey. And the noon meal, I can picture it yet: the table in the kitchen with its cover of white oil-cloth, spread with so many good things, it always reminded me of our Church Tea. It was always a full season as regarded eats. There were vegetables in plenty, always a great glass bowl of beets catching the sunlight, and new relishes and pic-
