HAPPENINGS

Walter Gieseking, famed German pianist, teacher of Malcolm Troup died recently after an emergency operation in a London hospital. He would have been 61 on November 5th.

Gieseking became ill after arriving in London Monday to make some recordings. He was taken to a hospital Tuesday afternoon and operated on for relief of pancreatitis — inflammation of the pancreas.

Gieseking was injured in December last year in a bus crash in Germany which claimed the life of his wife. The accident prevented him from making an American tour early this year.

The pianist, son of a well known entomologist, was born in Lyons, France.

After studying with the noted teacher Karl Leimer at Hannover Conservatory in Germany he made his concert debut in 1913. Eventually he won renown as one of the foremost interpreters of Mozart.

His compositions included a quintet for piano, oboe, clarinet, French horn and bassoon; a sonatina for flute and piano, and a concert sonatina for cello and piano.

Congratulations are being extended to Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. A. B. Cosh upon the arrival of their daughter, Susan Myra, at their home in Manor Park, Ottawa.

Miss Elaine MacPhail, Miss Shirley MacDonald and Miss Mae Jenkins of the staff of the Provincial Laboratories, Charlottetown, and Miss Christie MacLeod of the Prince County Hospital staff, have returned from a most enjoyable motor trip to Cambridge, Mass., and vicinity where they spent a delightful week visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bramwell Chandler, North River Road, spent last weekend in Halifax. They were visiting their son Briar who is a first year medical student at Dalhousie University. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler also attended the football game between Dalhousie University and St. Xavier University. Briar is on the Dalhousie team.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. MacMillan have returned from a trip to Toronto. Dr. MacMillan was attending the Executive meetings of the Canadian Medical Association.

Miss Lorraine Sinnott, R.N., has left for Brandon, Manitoba, where she will take a course in psychiatric nursing.

Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Pierce spent last weekend in Sackville, N.B. They were visiting Malcolm Joyce and attending the Mt. Allison — U.N.B. football game.

Dr. and Mrs. George C. Fisher and son Robert, are visiting in Sackville, and also attending the Amherst Winter Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Phillips and Mr. Lowell Phillips of Summerside, motored to Montague Sunday, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Diamond.

Earlier last week, Mrs. Diamond entertained at a bridge for friends from Charlottetown and Montague. Mrs. Ivor Phillips, Mrs. G. S. A. Imman and Mrs. Sybil MacLean, assisted the hostess at the supper hour.

STERLING W.I. Mrs. A. S. MacEwen was hostess to the members of Sterling W.I. on October 9th. The meeting was opened by singing the Ode and repeating the creed in unison. roll call with "Something I am Thankful For." There was one visitor present.

The sick committee reported sending flowers and treats to sick. This was gratefully acknowledged. There was no school report. The chairman of the Supper Committee expressed her thanks for the help given by the members of the committee and asked that a card of thanks be sent to Rev. Father Dalton for the loan of dishes. The amount of supper, bazaar and dance proceeds to $142.14.

School girls were in favor of a sewing Club, but after some discussions it was left over until spring. It was moved by Mrs. D. C. McKay that all bills be paid. Mrs. Elmer Fyfe seconded the motion.

It was also moved by Mrs. A. S. MacEwen and seconded by Mrs. Elmer Fyfe that a stove be bought for the upper room of the school. Committee: Mrs. Elmer Fyfe, Mrs. L. S. MacEwen. It was decided to pay the final balance of $101.00 to Miller Bros., for the piano.

Also decided that with the trustees consent a heavy duty plug be installed in the upper room of the school; and it was moved by Mrs. Elmer Fyfe that the gas stove be repaired, seconded by Mrs. D. B. Reid.

It was moved by Mrs. Mathias Malone that the National Film board come to the school in early November.

Second, without quite knowing what you are angry about, you feel that Fred behaved rather irresponsibly, as your husband, in giving a substantial gift of borrowed money to Carol, who really doesn't need such largesse at present. You resent this gesture, as a disloyalty to you in the circumstances; and as a foolish handout besides.

Well, from a very narrow view, this may be true; but even so, it is entirely consistent with his past performance and character, isn't it? By his own admission, he contributed nothing to Carol's support after he was divorced from her mother—which is a pretty careless record, surely.

And for another thing, likely there is an element of filial defiance, of her mother and stepfather, implicit in Carol's sentimental journey, at her own expense, to see her dad. Sixteen is a rebellious age and, given the excuse of divorced parents, adolescents can be aggressively difficult and unfair, in rejecting the standby parent, in favor of the absent ne'er-do-well — as part of their drama of confused self-assertiveness, in the final phase of weaning.

PLAYS THEM OFF So perhaps Carol was here on such a mission, and skillfully played upon Fred's sympathies, jockeying him into the position of vying with her mother, for top rating in her current scale of allegiance. Possibly she got him in the mood to refund her train fare, and thus in effect endorse her trip, that her mother may have opposed. In any case, whatever the inside story, it seems destructive to haggle about what's done. It is more essential to the welfare of the marriage, for you and Fred to try to understand why things happened as they did. There must be this kind of sharing, if you are to be real partners. M.H.

Wedding At Port Hill Will Live In Vancouver

The St. James Anglican Church, Port Hill, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday October 10th, when Lucy Irene Nisbet, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nisbet, Tyne Valley, and Stanley Ellis Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Forbes, Port Hill, were united in marriage. The church was decorated with baskets of multi-colored ladioli and yellow mums. The tuxedos were marked with light blue accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Forbes, the groom's mother, wore a dress of violet crepe and lace with rose hat and gloves. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, Miss Sandra MacKay was in charge of the guest book. Rev. Cecil Forbes proposed a toast to the bride, to which the groom responded. The bride's table was covered with a beautiful white linen cloth, which has adorned the bride's table for three generations of the family of the groom's mother. A three tier wedding cake set in folds of net and caught with tiny sweet heart rose buds, was flanked by tall white tapers.

Assisting in serving at the reception were five of the members of the P.E.I. Hospital graduating class of 1956. They were Miss Jean Robertson, Miss Jean Aitken, R.N., Miss Shirley Henderson, R.N., Miss Betty Underhay, R.N., Miss Ruth Stewart, R.N. Tea was in the charge of the aunts of the bride.

The bride's going away costume was a beige wool lace dress with beige borg jacket and gold and brown accessories. She wore a corsage of bronz mums.

Out of the province guests were Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Forbes, Vancouver, B.C., Dr. and Mrs. Donald Forbes, New Westminster, B.C., Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Forbes, Dorchester, N.B.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nisbet, Portland, Maine, Mrs. Cecil Birch, Amherst, N.S., Mr. Carmen Birch, Amherst, N.S., Miss Constance Forbes, Sackville, N.B.

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes will make their home in Vancouver, B.C.

The best man was Dr. Donald Forbes, brother of the groom. Ushering were Mr. Jack Nisbet, brother of the bride, and Mr. Sidney Forbes, cousin of the groom.

The bride's mother chose a dress of navy blue crepe with light blue accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Forbes, the groom's mother, wore a dress of violet crepe and lace with rose hat and gloves. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Playhouse Awaits Spring

Today, breaking in a rose glow at dawn, brought us to the last harvest of the year — the gathering in of the turnips to bar-cellar.

"Don't believe the world owes you a living" one says "the world owes nothing — it was here first!" All at Alderley worked for their living today — the family and the brawny helper, who was quite as interested as we. "It's getting late in the year" he said. "Folks shouldn't be careless and let days like these slip uselessly from them. We shan't get too many of them, at the most."

There was a pleasant warmth to the wind, a genial glow to the sun the best saving of turnips.

"It's too dry" we overheard one say, "thoughts evidently going on to the plowing ahead."

"There", be rain in plenty yet! the helper offered. "You hardly ever see winter setting in before rain fills the swamps and the brooks."

"But winter doesn't come until almost Christmas" the first said. "Well, never mind when it comes," the helper chuckled, "there'll be good plowing, you'll see, before winter sets in!"

And of the trees about so richly colorful not long ago, only the oak was left with treasure to spend. Changing dreams toward morning, we caught sight of moonlight through the branches of the white birch beyond the window. So bare now. "The melancholy days" are on the march.

Through the sunlight after dinner, we saw Granddaughter go along the yard in the direction of the playhouse which stands in the shelter of the raggedy old spruces down in the orchard. It was to place during the summer holidays when other pastimes failed to charm, that she went with Mack and Gage to play at "Keeping house." If Mack has long since outgrown that stage which was content to be mostly an onlooker, "because, dear, don't you see you are our family!" Granddaughters fastidious housekeeping placed other restrictions on her men-folks, which were not always suffered in silence.

"We made the shelf for you — we're not going to clean up your litter besides," we remember Mack's decisive tones one day full of summer.

And Granddaughter's, "Well, how are you going to make good husbands if you don't learn to be tidy?"

November, seconded by Mrs. A. S. McEwen, also that a silver collection be taken up.

The correspondent consisted of a paper on Acts and Literature by Mrs. L. S. Ramsay and one from the T.B. League which were discussed.

The next place of meeting is to be at the home of M.D.C. McKay, Lunch committee: Mrs. Lea Reid, Mrs. K. R. McKay, Mrs. J. S. McKay, Mrs. Blair MacEwen and Mrs. L. S. MacEwen.

Collection for the evening was $185. Two contests were much enjoyed, and after a delicious lunch served by the hostess and committee in charge, the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Food Fads Unnecessary If Meals Are Balanced

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN
Every few years a new food fad crops up. Sometimes it leaves its mark on coming years; more often it soon disappears.

But almost nobody thought to star the balanced ration which, made up of assorted foods that are properly prepared to conserve all nutritive values, makes special food fads unnecessary.

It is just as vital to body efficiency to supply balanced food as it is to an automobile to have gas, oil and water.

All the menus given in this column are not only appetizing, but carefully balanced, as well.

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Tomato Soup
Green Pepper Steak
Flaky Converted Rice
Lettuce Vinaigrette
Chocolate Dot Gingerbread
Pear-Apple-Date Bowl
Coffee
Tea
Milk

The tomato soup and croutons furnish vitamins and other values; the steak supplies necessary protein and B vitamins; the green peppers and lettuce provide vitamins A and C and needed bulk. As the rice is converted, it contains thiamin and riboflavin as well as starch. The gingerbread contains molasses, which contributes iron, with chocolate added for fine flavor and high energy values.

The fruit bowl furnishes bulk, vitamins, minerals and refreshing flavors. With a choice of coffee, tea or milk, if required, we have an appetizing and balanced dinner.
