P.E.I.'s Support Sought To Reap CPAC Benefits

"The ultimate goal of this organization is a well-planned community. Interest in these two areas has pretty well died out. One of the main reasons we are holding this executive conference here is to try and stimulate that interest."

During the informal discussions that went on during the day, the executive came to a decision on one of the issues it was here to look over. It will recommend to the association that one of two conferences, to be held concurrently by CPAC in 1966, be held in Charlottetown.

5,500 MEMBERS

The other one will be held in Regina, which had originally asked for a national conference. It was decided at the discussions to hold separate meetings for Eastern and Western Canada.

Fifty-five hundred members in the eight other provinces comprise CPAC. There has been a 28 per cent increase in membership during the past two years, and "significant progress" all around, according to Dr. Baker.

The speaker stressed the benefit that would be derived from the forming of a P.E.I. division in helping at the 1966 conference here. He urged that at least three should be set up a voluntary agency of government officials, with help perhaps from commercial interests.
