PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION!

A DECIDED SUCCESS

Notwithstanding Bad Weather.

THE PRIZE LIST.

Notes and Comments.

THERE was a very good attendance of visitors at the Drill Shed yesterday afternoon and last night. To-day, as the weather was somewhat finer, though very uncertain, there was a more general turnout. Visitors to the Shed were charmed with the excellence of the different exhibits and delighted with the music discoursed by the Band of the 82nd Battalion.

The show grounds to the west of the Shed appeared, however, to be the centre of attraction for farmers and all interested in the development of that noble animal the horse, as well as in the cattle, sheep, etc.

The remainder of the prize list, together with some notes of the different exhibits will be found below:—

Judges—Geo R Beer, city; J T Mullin, Kensington; D McQuarrie, Roseneath; F Andrews, Wright's Mills; Jas Wisener, Wisener's Mills.

HORSES.

On the exhibition grounds the great centre of attraction was of course the horse display. The majority of the animals shown were first-class in every respect, indicating clearly that although the horse buyers from the United States have drawn largely upon our supply, we have yet a large number of superior animals remaining. The different classes were well filled, and the appearance of all the animals so excellent, that the judges must have had considerable difficulty in deciding to which to award the prizes. Splendid specimens of horse flesh were shown by Messrs. A. Gourlie, Summerside; A. Blue, Kensington; B. Dockendorff, North River; R. Fitzsimmons, New London; J. T. Rodd, Brackley Point; Dr. Dodd, city: George Tweedy, Royalty; St. Dunstan's College; T. Robbins, Bedeque; J. A. McMillan, Brackley Point Road; R. B. McMillan, do.; F. Bovyer, Lot 48; Jas. Guard, Lot 48, and many others whose good work is noted in the prize list elsewhere. The animals were paraded at noon to-day, and drew forth the admiration of the large number of people surrounding the circle in which the parade was held.

CATTLE.

The exhibit of cattle was both large and good. Splendid specimens were shown by well-known and enterprising raisers such as the Hon. Donald Ferguson, ex-Sheriff Longworth, E. R. Brow, B. E. Wright, Hon. T. H. Haviland, B. F. Longworth, George Mason, T. A. McLean, Geo. Tweedy, F. Bell, A. Boswall, Governor Macdonald and many others whose names have escaped us, but whose success is duly recorded in the proper portion of to-day's issue. Hon. Donald Ferguson's Galloways looked splendid and were much admired. Taken all in all the cattle exhibit this year may safely be said to be larger and better than that of last.

SHEEP.

The sheep pens were fairly well stocked and many superior animals were shown by such well-known stockmen as Hon. D. Ferguson, Henry Longworth, B. E. Wright, J. S. McLeod, Jos. Kennedy, W. Miller, C. Holman, A. Boswell, F. G. Bovyer, Wm. Mutch, and others.

PIGS.

This class of animal was well represented. Among the principal exhibitors and prize winners we notice the names of Messrs. Wm. Rattray, T. Murphy, Geo. Crockett, J. M. Auld, J. J. Trainor, P. McN. Robertson. T. A. McLean, Geo. Barrett, Geo. Crockett, J. McQuaid, and others.

POULTRY.

The poultry exhibit was large and very good. Some splendid specimens were shown. Among those who were successful in capturing prizes we notice the names of A. Boswell, E. Tweedy, F. G. Bovyer, R. Bridges, Jas. Lewis, P. A. and J. K. Dorsey, J. McKinnon, Frank Smith, E. Walsh, Geo. Dockendorff, F. L. Haszard, D. McKenzie and others.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The competition in these classes was brisk. The exhibits were excellent. Of butter, choice samples were shown by Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Howard, Alex. McMillan, Mrs. Crosby, Mrs. Irving and others. For the best factory-made cheese the prizes were taken by the Dunk River Factory, Cornwall Creamery Co., and St. Eleanor's Cheese Factory, in the order named, while the prizes for farmers' make were captured by Mrs. Abbott, Robt. James, Jr., and Jas. Farquharson.

GRAIN.

There was considerable competition in this class and some very fine samples were shown. Among those who succeeded in taking prizes were Messrs. Christopher Bullman, Rustico, D. Pineo, do.; S. McCallum, Brackly Point Road; J. McMillan, West River; S. Houston, South Rustico, and several others.

ROOTS AND VEGETABLES.

The display in this class this year was large, and in the opinion of many better than that of last year. The mammoth squashes, citrons, cabbages, cauliflowers, etc., attracted general attention. The turnips were, on the whole, better than last year, the potatoes were fully as good, but were not shown in such abundance, and the mangels, beets, pumpkins, brussels sprouts, tomatoes, celery, fodder corn, etc., would be hard to beat. The principal exhibitors and prize winners in this class were Edward Bayfield, James Burke, Richard Burke, Government House, Alex. McKinnon, Mrs. H. Palmer, J. McKinlay, James Mutch and others whose names we have forgotten. Mr. Bayfield's mammoth squash weighed 140 pounds, and the citron 27 pounds, the latter the largest ever shown. His collection of potatoes grown from seed shown this year was large and varied. The collections of Mr. Richard Burke and Mr. James Burke were also excellent; the squash owned by the former and which took second prize, weighed 126 pounds. The exhibit from Government House was also capital; the splendid samples of fodder corn being peculiarly attractive. There were also many other nice exhibits but which were not awarded prizes.

FRUIT.

This exhibit was not so large as last year, but the quality is considered superior. The apple as usual predominated; there being about 200 different varieties, each one better than the other and all good. There were some seven or eight different samples of pears, four of grapes, (indoor and outdoor) seven of cauliflowers, and a sample of wild strawberries, the latter something remarkable at this season of the year. The exhibitors and prize-takers include such well-known names as B. E. Wrights, George Wright, Thos. Dodd, James Lewis, A. Gill, Wm. Brown, Wm. Heard and others.

FLORICULTURE.

The display of flowers was beyond question the best seen for years. The different varieties were well represented, and the beauty of arrangement was apparent at a glance. The qualities shown were rich, the gaudy weaklings of previous exhibitions being conspicuous only for their absence.

WOOLEN AND FLAX GOODS.

The exhibit of articles in this class was large and excellent, reflecting great credit on the matrons and maids who competed. The display of hearth rugs and door mats was particularly good, the specimens shown being to our mind far in advance of any seen at previous exhibitions. The knit work in stockings, socks, mitts, overalls, horse rugs and other articles necessary for the protection of man and beast from winter's chilly blast, was fully up to the average if not superior, to the displays of former years.

SCROLL SAWING.

In this class were shown several very nice specimens, but Mr. W. P. Doull's beautiful clock knocked them all out on "time." The clock, which is composed of 365 different pieces, is the result of Mr. Doull's method of spending his spare "hours," and shows that "time" at least does not hang heavily on his "hands." He also exhibited a very pretty card receiver, which together with his clock, "received" considerable attention.

FINE ARTS.

The entries in this class were larger and in some cases superior to last year's exhibit. Some of the pictures shown were good, while others were,—well, not so good. Some drawings from still life attracted considerable attention, one particularly, illustrative of a bottle which looked as though at some period of its history it might have contained a small decoction of that somewhat popular beverage known as "special blend," a cigar box, and some dessert in the shape of lemons, being the unwitting means of enabling persons from whom better might be expected to work off several atrocious puns. The usual exhibit of photographs was for some reason or another, not to the front.

THE CHARLOTTETOWN WOOLEN COMPANY

exhibited about two hundred specimens of their manufactures in tweeds, blanketings, flannels, yarns, etc. They also showed several suits made up from the cloth manufactured in their establishment, and for which they carried off prizes. The exhibit was tastefully arranged and labeled, and some one or more of the employes was always present to afford visitors all necessary information.

THE CHARLOTTETOWN SOAP WORKS

display was nicely arranged near the entrance to the Shed, and was in charge of the manager of that establishment, who was always pleased to talk up the excellent qualities of the manufactures. The exhibit consisted of some twelve choice specimens of soaps, as well as samples of the celebrated Diamond Potash which they sell.

THE FURNITURE EXHIBIT

of Messrs. Doull & Heartz reflected great credit upon these enterprising young men. The exhibit consisted of a handsome parlor suit, trimmed with satin and plush, and composed of a Gondola lounge, Grand Duchess chair, Cleopatra chair, Tub chair, two Turkish chairs, Ottoman and cushioned footstool, and drew forth the admiration of those present.

P. E. ISLAND POTTERY CO.

exhibited a splendid assortment of goods of their own manufacture. Previous exhibits of this kind have clearly shown the superiority of the Island-made article over that imported from the other Provinces, and Messrs. Hornsby and Murphy even excelled themselves this year, the lawn vases and ornamental pottery being wonderful specimens of the potter's art.

COLLECTION OF INSECTS.

There were two or three excellent cases containing nicely arranged samples of native insects, but Master Harry Bayfield's was adjudged the largest and best and was awarded the prize.

FISH.

The display of canned fish was excellent and showed clearly that this industry is in the hands of men who throughly understand their business. The names of the prize takers can be ascertained on reference to the prize list.

THE TROUT EXHIBIT.

Mr. Frank Stanley's display of sea trout was excellent. The case contained several splendid specimens of the speckled beauties after which so many of our local fishermen angle with varying success.

MR. JOHN COOMBS

had his case of specimens of binding again on exhibition. The exhibit was much admired, and proves conclusively—to our mind, at least—that Charlottetown can compete successfully with the other Provinces of the Dominion in this as well as in other branches of the bookmaker's art.

MR. S. N. EARLE'S

cases of stuffed birds, which occupied a commanding position near the western door of the Shed, attracted considerable attention. The cases, which contained some twelve or thirteen beautiful specimens, were surmounted with two deers' heads.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

The case of boots and shoes exhibited by Mr. J. T. Fanning, of the Golden Boot, Summerside, and which captured first prize at the recent Prince County Exhibition, contained some nobby specimens of the shoemaker's handiwork, and attracted general attention. If all the Summerside Knights of St. Crispin turn out work like our friend of the Golden Boot, the Charlottetown talent will have to look sharp after its laurels.

ODDS AND ENDS.

An immense number of people were in the city, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather.

The number of city visitors to the exhibition this year was not so large as usual, owing to the bad weather.

The exhibits both inside and outside the drill shed were unanimously voted the best yet; but many people complain of the high price of the admission tickets.

The Band of the 82nd Battalion and St. Peter's Boys Band furnished splendid music.

Rev. Mr. Jost's collection of penmanship was very good indeed

Mr. John P. Smith, of Centreville, exhibited a map of Prince Edward Island, which was very well executed.

The collection of Indian work and other miscellaneous articles, although not very large was good.

The exhibition closed at four o'clock this afternoon.

The contribution of the Art Union, of London, represented by Mark Wright & Co. was very pretty.

Many ladies and gentlemen have articles on exhibition for which no prizes are offered, and the ownership of which the great bulk of visitors, including the reporters for the press, are in blissful ignorance of. Would it not be advisable in future to have these articles ticketed with the exhibitor's name and residence so that all who attend can see to whom they belong.

While on the subject of the ownership of exhibits we suggest that in future the exhibitor's name be written on the card attached to each exhibit as soon as possible after the judges have concluded their labors. The public in general and the reporters for the press in particular would appreciate the favor.

The reporters very often see an exhibit which they think worthy of honorable mention although it has not been awarded a prize, but as there is nothing about the exhibit to indicate its ownership, they are, of necessity, obliged to pass it by. It is true they can obtain the desired information by consulting the books in the Secretary's office, but as the clerks therein are but human, and do not appreciate being disturbed every few minutes even by reporters, the information is not often applied for. The ticketing of the exhibits, as suggested, would do away with the difficulty and make the reporter's work much easier, as well as enable him to bestow a few words of praise where, in his opinion, they are merited.
