International Halibut Control Increasing Halibut Stocks In Pacific Waters

CATCH PER GEAR UNIT INDICATES 76% INCREASE IN ABUNDANCE IN AREA INCLUDING B.C. COAST SINCE UNRESTRICTED EXPLOITATION ENDED IN 1930—7% RISE IN OTHER MAJN FISHING REGION

International regulation of North America's Pacific halibut fishery under the convention between Canada and the United States continues to bring increased abundance in convention waters.

Since 1930, the last year of unrestricted exploitation of the fishery, the abundance of halibut, as indicated by the catch per standard unit of gear fished, has increased by 76 per cent in Area 2 of the convention waters, which includes the waters of the British Columbia coast and by 37 per cent in Area 3, which lies west of the Cape Spencer, Alaska. These two areas are the important producing regions in the fishery, although some other waters are also covered by the convention.

The figures as to increase in abundance have been taken from records of the International Fisheries Commission, which was established under the treaty for the purpose of carrying on investigation and regulation of the fishery. (Regulations made by the Commission are subject to the approval of the Governor in Council for Canada, and the President of the United States.) Canada is represented on the Commission, popularly known as the Pacific coast halibut commission, by W. A. Found, deputy minister of the Dominion Department of Fisheries, and by J. P. Babcock, formerly of the British Columbia Fisheries Department. Mr. Babcock is the commission's chairman.

More Parent Fish

Abundance of halibut has been increasing in convention waters ever since 1930, when abundance reached its lowest level, and last year, according to commission statistics, it rose in Area 2 to 61.1 pounds per standard unit of gear fished and in Area 3 to 88 pounds. Three years before, that is in 1932, the figures had been 50.1 pounds in Area 2 and 82.2 in Area 3.

Accompanying the changes in abundance in 1935, there was also an increase in the proportion of "medium" and "large" fish in the catch, which indicated that more fish of spawning size were present than in preceding seasons. More spawning fish, of course, should mean bigger production of spawn, and that, in turn, should mean in due time an increase in the number of young fish coming into the fishery. In this connection it may be added that investigations made by commission research workers in the vicinity of the Queen Charlotte Islands, British Columbia, during the period from the first of December, 1934, to the end of February, 1935, indicated that halibut eggs were more abundant than during previous spawning seasons.

Skyway Hostesses Must Meet Pretty Stiff Requisites

NEW YORK, April 23—Requirements are strict, yet thousands of young women are seeking the comparatively few hostess jobs available on passenger ships of the U. S. air lines.

Six years ago the first major U. S. transport line announced it was adding women to its regular crews. Since then the beauty, charm and bravery of the hostesses who cruise the skies have become traditional—and applications from young women have crammed the files of the major companies. One line has 2000 applications, but insists there is a shortage of qualified women.

Generally stated, the air-minded young woman must fill these requirements if she would don the pearl uniform of the stewardess: She must be a graduate registered nurse. Her height must not be more than five feet four, nor may she weigh more than 120 pounds. She must not be more than 26 years old.

She must have an engaging personality, be solicitous, the comfort of others and capable of performing a variety of tasks, from explaining the fundamentals of aerial navigation to helping change a diaper.

One of the air lines operates a school to polish its stewardesses, classes going into such things as passenger psychology, how to make air travelers comfortable, serving lunches and answering questions about the geography of the route flown.

The stewardess must be a registered nurse, explains an air line representative "because the institutionally trained girl has an understanding of discipline and a knowledge of how to deal with the public that is required in the job of stewardess."

The stewardess may not be "beautiful but dumb."

She must have sense enough to be able to carry her end of almost any conversation. She must have poise in the presence of the great and near great, for many in these classifications travel by air—politicians and movie stars, opera singers and captains of industry.

The ranks of these aerial Jacqueline-of-all-trades are constantly being depleted by that quick bank-and-turn which lands women in front of altars. Says an air line official:

"A majority of the stewardesses who have given up their work to become housewives have married pilots, while several others have married passengers."

Anglican Pension Assessment Revised

MONTREAL, April 23—(C.P.)—Proposal of a pension committee to impose a premium on clergymen's incomes to place pensions on an actuarial basis, was adopted today by the annual session of the Synod of the Montreal Diocese of the Church of England.

Adoption of the motion was called a "history-making" step for the Church of England in Canada. Clergymen will be assessed two per cent of their salaries during 1936 and 1937, while parishes and other sources will provide four per cent towards the pension fund.

In 1938 percentages will be increased to 2 1/4 and 4 1/2 per cent respectively, and in 1939 to 2 1/2 and five per cent respectively.

Rt. Rev. J. C. Farthing, Bishop of Montreal, who presided, said: "The value of this scheme is that it paves the way for the introduction of pensions on an actuarial basis."

"If we can make this a success in our Diocese in the next three or four years," he said, "it will be showing the way to all other dioceses to follow. It is a matter of great gratification that this synod has adopted this scheme and that we have helped the church through out Canada to see their way to adopting 'similar schemes.'"

Draegermen and How They Got Their Name

The Moose River mining disaster has brought to public attention very vividly the Draegermen of Stellarton. In consequence, the uninitiated in mining lore have been puzzled as to the meaning of the term "Draegermen" and many have been the enquiries for enlightenment.

First of all, a Draegerman is one skilled in mine rescue work, but he is not the name of the equipment carried on his back—respirators and tanks of oxygen. This apparatus was invented by a German named Draeger. His invention is in common use in the coal-mining areas where the miners fear the deadly gas of the coal mines more than they do the falling of the mine roof.

In Moose River the equipment is not required, but the skill of Stellarton's rescue squad has proved to be of inestimable value.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. PHILIP SMITH

On Saturday morning, February 15th, the community of Kelly's Cross was saddened by the death of one of its most highly esteemed citizens in the person of Mrs. Philip Smith. Mrs. Smith was born and lived the whole of her long life of seventy years in Kelly's Cross Parish. She was the daughter of the late Patrick McGuigan and his wife, Mary Trainor, and was born only a short distance from the place where she and her late husband settled after their marriage.

She was a woman of many admirable traits of character, had a simple and loving disposition and was always ready to lend a helping hand to those in need. She had a steadfast devotion to duty and was exceedingly patient and cheerful in all her sufferings. These are a few of her many good qualities for which she will be remembered by her friends and neighbors.

During her long illness of two years, from a chronic infection of the lungs, she was tenderly nursed by her daughter, who did everything that was humanly possible to alleviate her suffering which was of often very intense. She was frequently visited by her pastor, Rev. Father Pitre, who administered to her the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving mother, one daughter, Annie, her husband having predeceased her, two years ago, and another daughter, Hilda died at the early age of eighteen, nineteen years ago. She also leaves one brother Bernard of Boston, Mass.

Her funeral took place on Monday, February 17th at St. Joseph's Church, Kelly's Cross, where Rev. Father Pitre, the pallbearers were: Messrs. Emmett Sturdy, Patrick McGee, Aneas Higgins, Hubert McQuaid, Joseph Carragher and Eugene McMahon. May her soul rest in peace.

Philip Johnson, presented by the Theatre Arts Guild of Kentville, N.S.

The second offering was the much-discussed radical play "Waiting for Lefty," by Clifford Odets, which Mr. Granville-Barker described as "a play of bitter irony." It was presented by the Progressive Arts Club of Vancouver. Bernard Shaw's "Overruled," given by the Beches Library Drama League of Toronto was called by the Adjudicator "an intellectual harlequinade." He said it did not rank within the works of Shaw that count. "With respect to the play, "Legend," Mr. Granville-Barker had little good to say. "This play was written for amateurs—that is a reason why amateurs should avoid playing it," he said. The players had done well, save that they were not always audible.

"This play was rather an empty thing," he continued. "It is a sham from beginning to end." The actors had attacked it with sincerity and truth, but they had little reality to take hold of. He commended the individual acting of practically all players, but suggested grouping might have been improved.

sh Empire at the top of the list in combat plane force and predicted it would continue there through next January.

France, which was rated strongest in January 1936, dropped to second. Russia was ranked third this year, Italy fourth, and the United States, Japan and Germany followed in that order.

"In speed and efficiency the commercial airplanes of the United States are far superior to those of other countries," he said. "Nearly every nation on earth is either buying these products of American factories or trying to imitate them. Upward of 40 world records are held here. The air lines are doing more business than those of the rest of the world combined."

The comparative table of combat airplane strength of the air powers, including the probable strength next January, follows:

	Jan. 1935	Jan. 1936	Jan. 1937
British Empire	2,800	3,600	4,800
France	3,800	3,400	4,000
Russia	3,000	3,300	4,000
Italy	2,300	2,800	3,000
United States	2,000	1,900	2,300
Japan	1,800	1,800	2,100
