Princess Margaret Visits Famous "Aladdin's Cave"

By HENDERSON GALL

MWADUI, Tanganyika (Reuters — Princess Margaret stared fascinated Monday at more than $1,000,0000 worth of diamonds glittering in an "Aladdin's cave" diamond-sorting centre here.

"How tantalizing," she said as she examined the gems, laid out for the occasion on a velvet-covered billiard table.

Dr. John Thorburn Williamson, the 49 - year - old Canadian-born bachelor who owns the mines in this area, was to have shown Margaret the display himself and to have presented her with a $42,000 diamond brooch with 250 stones. But he is ill in Montreal and is expected instead to present the gift to Margaret later this year in London.

Margaret also inspected a moving belt bearing diamonds and proudly as one was plucked off and pinned to her pearl-buttoned beige globe.

Later in the day, she officially opened a new sorting house, the nerve centre of a $20,000,000 diamond recovery plant, and watched while a working model of an electrostatic device sorted out tiny diamonds from small pieces of gravel.

SEEES NATIVE DANCERS

She also took a look at the day's "take" in diamonds, worth about $2,500, and then signed her name on a special page of the guest book decorated with giraffe, elephants, and the Williamson crest, a baobab tree surmounted by diamonds. It was under a baobab tree that Williamson discovered his first diamond 16 years ago after years of search.

Earlier Monday Margaret watched a number of native dances at a baranza (tribal gathering) in Mwanza before she left to visit the diamond mines.

She also thanked Chief Majebere, senior chief of the Sukuma tribe, dressed for the occasion in lionskin robes and a lion's mane headdress.

More than 40,000 Africans, painted warriors, and snake dancers performed for Margaret to throbbing drums and shrilling pipes.

Twelve hundred danced past the princess in a long swinging line.

Among gifts the natives presented to Margaret were a toy hunting spear for Prince Charles, a wildebeeste tail and two smoking pipes.

LITTLE SANDS

Mrs. Jack MacDonald of Pictou Island, visited her cousins the Misses Margaret and Dora MacNeill of Little Sands on Sunday, September 30.

During the last weeks of September, Mr. Carleton Hume hauled a house, which he purchased from Mr. Stanley Livingstone, High Bank, and placed it on his lot just east of his store. It is believed that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hume of Brookline, P.E.I., plan to reside here for the winter.

The Little Sands school is progressing favourably under the experienced management of the teacher, Mrs. Donald (Lillian) Livingstone of Hopefield. There are 18 pupils enrolled.

Congratulations and best wishes for many years of happiness go out to Mr. and Mrs. William Miller now residing in Murray River, who were just recently married. Mrs. Miller, was Miss Marlene Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Dixon, Little Sands.

Harvesting continues. A great deal of grain was stored during the last part of the last week in September and the first two days of October. The rain on October 3 will further delay the storing. About all the grain here has been cut, but there are still many stock to be stored. Some threshing has been done by combine and it is expected the blower will sooon be at work in the area. It has been a bountiful harvest, for which we gratefully thank the Giver of all increase. Man may sew the seed but only God can give the harvest.

There were at least three killing heavy frosts during the last week of September here which did a lot of damage to the gardens. It was an off year for cucumbers and pumpkins, and the early heavy frosts killed the few plants that tried to grow with the result that few people had enough of these vegetables for their household needs. May cranberries were also frozen. The autumn colors on the leaves and little plants, make a very beautiful picture.

Although we have had many light rains during the summer and early fall, the ground is too dry for ploughing and many wells or pumps are either dry or very low and some residents have to carry or haul water a considerable distance. So many people will welcome this rain, although the harvesters were hoping for a few more beautiful days like the last few days of September and the first two of October.

Sincere sympathy goes out to the family of Mr. Earl Llewellyn of Sturgeon, who passed away in the Halifax General Hospital recently.

Mr. Harry Bonnell, Charlottetown, was in Little Sands on business on Tuesday.

Hunting season on Hungarian Partridges opened here October 1 and several shots were heard. Two hunters get at least a bird each. Hunters from New Hampshire and Charlottetown have been in the vicinity this week.

Many of the Little Sands members of the High Bank-Little Sands Women's Institute motored to Murray River on Tuesday evening for the October 2 meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. William MacKay. Mrs. MacKay formerly resided in High Bank and is still a member of the Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacPherson, who are employed in Charlottetown, were in Little Sands son remaining until Wednesday, over the weekend. Mrs. MacPherwhen she planned to return to the city to her duties.

Mrs. Reuban Moore, Murray River, (formerly of High Bank) was taken to the Montague Hospital on Monday and underwent an operation on October 2. Her many friends are wishing that she may soon be restored to good health.

Mr. Hector MacLean of Little Sands, has gone to Pictou Landing to spent some time with his niece, Mrs. Gratto.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Livingstone of Hopefield, were visitors to Little Sands on Sunday.

A very enjoyable sing-song was held in the Littlw Sands Church on Sunday evening, with special solos, duets and trios, etc., which was enjoyed by a large crowd of people.

Mrs. Alex Blue was sorry to hear that her only aunt, Mrs. Ernest Griffin of Albion, is not enjoying good health. Best wishes go out for her recovery.

Mr. Blois Clow of Albany, visited his mother in Little Sands on Sunday.

A television set is noticed at the home of Mr. Angus MacMillan, Wood Islands East.

Mrs. MacFarlane and son James, who were residing in Charlottetown, have returned to their home in Hopefield.

Mr. Donnie Livingstone of the R.C.N. of Charlottetown, spent some time at his home in Hopefield recently .

Best wishes go out for a good recovery to Mr. Jack MacDonald of Murray Harbour, who was injured in a fall, while working on the Cape Bear New school roof. Mrs. MacDonald was formerly Miss Marian Gillis of High Bank and has many friends here.

Some farmers here have begun harvesting their potato crop the first of this week. Fields which stayed green until the heavy frost of last week will not be ready to dig for some time, which will leave a lot of digging for the last two weeks of October.
