LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Letter From Capt. Read.

Sir,—In your issues of Oct. 30th and 31st, by implication and by name I have been dragged before the public charged with writing certain letters concerning Clark Braden, which have appeared in your columns. Now, Mr. Editor, you can inform Mr. Braden and his pervers from St. Eleanor's, McDonald, the defender of the faithful, that I have written no letters nor inspired any editorials that have appeared since Mr. Braden left here. I have neither the wish nor the leisure to enter on a profitless discussion of Mr. Braden's character—the issue is not between him and me, but between him and three eminent Christian divines, Drs. McCosh, Cook, and Fairchild. I have my reasons for believing that these three gentlemen have written the truth, and that Mr. Braden has not. These reasons are: Mr. Braden while here told a good many lies about myself, and I am informed, repeated them through the country. He made slanderous and lying attacks on the character of eminent Free-thinkers. When his statements were challenged in regard to the latter, he referred, in proof of his statements, to the Mayor of Peoria and to Judge Puterbaugh, or any other reputable citizen of that city. These gentlemen were written to. Mayor Warner published his reply in the Peoria Transcript, giving Mr. Braden the lie direct. Judge Puterbaugh, whose name figured in his book as one of his own witnesses, wrote three letters, some of which have appeared in your columns. Among other things he said: "He (Braden) got up a book made up of forged affidavits and pretended statements of reputable citizens. He carefully keeps away from where he is known, as he knows his word would be taken for nought, and he would not be able to deadbeat on the people," etc. This, Mr. Editor, from an eminent jurist and Mr. Braden's own witness, ought to be conclusive.

The Peoria Transcript of Sept. 12th last, in a leading article, under the title of "The Liar," etc., says: "This same Prof. Braden was clearly convicted of bearing false testimony. Mr. Braden is simply a monster of lying. A man who should be morally incapacitated from editing even the Police Gazette." The other Peoria daily, the Journal, commenting editorially on "Braden's Reply," which had appeared in the Transcript over his own signature, says: "The charge is a monstrous and villainous lie, cunningly concocted and villainously planned."—i. e., Braden's charge. The Apostolic Times, a Disciple paper, of August 8th, 1876, says editorially, commenting on a tract Mr. Braden had written against some of the preachers of his own denomination: "We do not hesitate to declare that the author of such a tract deserves to be not only censured, but excommunicated by the congregation to which he belongs and repudiated by the entire brotherhood."

The Christian Review, another Disciple paper, refers not alone to the tract, but says "in addition to that Clark Braden's conduct has been such for some time past that the Church has discarded him and disowned any fellowship with him." There is much more in these two Christian papers of a similar import, but space forbids me to quote. The Falls City Journal says: "We personally know Clark Braden to be an unscrupulous liar. Braden is a liar by nature and a charlatan by profession. The Table Rock Argus says: "From what we can learn from Mr. Braden, he is a scoundrel and a villain of the blackest dye. Christianity evidently needs no such defenders."

His statement that Dr. McCosh mistook his book for another of somewhat similar name is false, as the correspondence will prove. Very much more could be written to show the utter unreliability of this gentleman's statements.

Now, if Mr. Braden should produce the letters he claims to have from Drs. McCosh and Fairchild, and have them certified, they would avail him nothing in the face of these gentlemen's emphatic statements and his reputation. Messrs. Cook and Fairchild can have no strong motive for stating what is not true, while Mr. Braden in this case has.

Mr. Braden's unmanly and ungenerous attempt to shift the onus of responsibility on the shoulders of his publishers, is scarcely less contemptible than the falsehoods themselves, and his confession that he has the letters in his own possession arouses the suspicion that he is at his old tricks again. The extract purporting to have come from the Princeton Review does not appear in that periodical as quoted in "Problem of Problems." When it is known that Dr. McCosh did not review the book, and he writes emphatically that he "certainly did not review it." What does appear in the Review is rather denuncatory by reason of faint praise than commendatory. Some writer says of it in effect "that it was the best he had read on the subject"; while Braden's book quotes the Review as saying it was the best book written, etc., a vast difference in the meaning. The reviewer may not have read two works upon the subject in his life. The letter of Mr. Braden's voluntary defender is even more unfortunate than the principal's. It scarcely merits reference, except as it reflects the feelings of a certain class of silly people, who look upon truth as an unwelcome guest when it disturbs their fossilized prejudices. This writer cannot see that he is blaspheming when he takes my name in vain three times (and that without any reverence) in the space of eight lines, knowing, as he says, that "I worship the beauty of my own brain."

Now, if I knew what he worshipped I should not, according to his ideas, fail to worship it too, or at least to pretend I did. Another point. He says that Mr. Braden's attack on the character of Mr. Ingersoll was made as an offset to the charges brought against Christ and others by Free-thinkers, or words to that effect. Now, this is what eminent Free-thinkers have said of Christ. Thomas Paine says: "He was a virtuous and amiable man." John Stuart Mill says: "Not even now would it be easy for an unbeliever to find a better translation of the rule of virtue from the abstract to the concrete than to endeavor to live that Christ would approve our life." Strauss says: "He remains the highest model of religion within the reach of our thought," and Ingersoll says, "For the man Christ I have infinite respect. Let me say, once for all, that the place where man has died for man is holy ground. Let me say, once for all to that great and serene Man, I gladly pay, I gladly pay the tribute of my admiration and my tears. He was regarded as a blasphemer, and his life destroyed by hypocrites who have in all ages done what they could to trample freedom out of the human mind. Had I lived at that time I would have been His friend, and should He come again He will not find a better friend than I will be." Compare this with the lying and scurrilous abuse heaped by Braden and his followers on the great idoloclast—offset indeed—and this is the idea of some who would fain be considered as having a title to the kingdom of Him who admonished His followers to return good for evil.

The St. Eleanor's pervert again says in effect that "Mr. Watts was not assailed in a brutal manner, while Mr. Braden was." Mr. Watts did not leave himself open to a brutal attack, but had he endeavored to destroy the fair fame of T. DeWitt Talmage or "worse far," his fair and innocent daughters; had he endeavored to throw over their fair fame the leprous mantle of slander think you he would not have been attacked? Now, Mr. Braden commenced the attack, not only upon Mr. Ingersoll but upon myself. He had not been speaking five minutes before he declared he had come there to "skin infidels." That he understood from the chairman that I had certain documents reflecting upon his character, and with a face reddened with rage he shouted, "Let the infidel bring them along." I had previously asked Mr. Campbell, the chairman, to request Mr. Braden not to make use of personal abuse; and he would not be attacked by me; but that was out of Mr. Braden's line. Did not Mr. Braden in Halifax, Truro and Charlottetown adopt the same methods? Are not two of his books entirely of the same character? Reference is also made to some kind of broad humor by some people in Summerside who characterize this pervert as a "dog out," a "tadpole" and "bigot." Well, that is humorous, the very idea of calling an advanced thinker like R. H. McDonald a "dog out" is enough to draw a smile from a stoic. Whoever says that he has not advanced beyond the tadpole stage would cause a laugh, for every one here knows Mr. McDonald is a full grown croaker, and as for a bigot, why he is so tolerant that he has no fault to find with reading even Mr. Ingersoll's works; indeed, he was one of the first persons here to receive and distribute this kind of literature. But Mr. McDonald should not find fault with the little joke, for wittingly or unwittingly, he jokes himself. "For instance, when he says in effect: "If Mr. Braden's character is not what it should be he is well able to defend himself." Now Robert, that is a joke.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I have to thank you for space which might, perhaps, be better employed; but as I intimated last summer, the sooner the Christian community discovers the viper it is warming into life the sooner it will have prevented the sting that is sure to follow. I do not claim to be a Christian, but if I could do anything to enhance the value of Christian institutions, if I could do anything towards the promotion of a higher ethical culture in those who claim the name, but who, in reality, are wolves in sheep's clothing, I would do so. Be it distinctly understood that I made a distinction between Bradenism and Christianity. I would be sorry to charge the latter with the vices of the former; there is about the same relation between them as there was between Judas and Jesus.

I am a very busy man and have no time just now to notice the scribbling of Bradenites.

New Books, Etc.
"Buttons" and "Bootle's Baby," by John Strange Winter, author of "Beautiful Jim," "Army Society," etc. John Lovell & Son, Montreal, is the publisher. These are interesting stories of life in the army. The first is directed against class distinctions and ends very happily. The second is capital throughout. Mr. Theo. L. Chappelle has the book for sale.

In the last number of the Dominion Illustrated Hamilton is well represented both as to its leading men and to its architectural features—claiming three entire pages. The meet of the Ottawa Canoe Club will gratify canoeists at the capital and elsewhere. Sportsmen will enjoy "Where's the Field?" and the Noon-day Nap is a blissful reminiscence of the summer that is no more. The Dominion Illustrated is published by the Dominion Illustrated Publishing Company, Mr. G. E. Desbarats, managing director. Subscription, $4. Address: 73 St. James Street, Montreal.

The Century Magazine for November is full of interesting matter. November begins the twentieth year of this excellent magazine.

We are in receipt of a monthly paper called Farm Poultry,—a practical poultry-raising guide. It is published at 22 Custom House Street, Boston, Mass.

The Christian Guardian, published at Toronto, is the leading organ of the Methodist Church in Canada. It is, moreover, a first-class family paper. Dr. Dewar is its editor. Subscription price two dollars a year in advance.

"The Teaching of Temperance."—This excellent text book authorized for use in our public schools, is the production of the celebrated Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of England, than whom there is no greater authority in the world on the nature and effects of alcohol. The object is to instruct in the facts as to alcohol, its character and composition, and its effects upon the organs of the human system. These facts once understood, the deplorable results of contracting the habit of using liquor through ignorance of its nature and effects are likely to be avoided. If children are taught the danger and the needlessness of the use of alcoholic liquors, the coming generation will bless their teachers for the moral effect of their efforts. Mr. Theo. L. Chappelle has been appointed wholesale agent for P. E. Island, from whom supplies may be obtained. Retail price 25 cents.

The Favorite

Medicine for Throat and Lung Difficulties has long been, and still is, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs; allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for diseases of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy.

"My wife had a distressing cough, with pains in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which was cured her. A neighbor, Mrs. Glenn, had the measles, and the cough was relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have no hesitation in recommending this to every one afflicted."—Robert Horton, Foreman Headlight, Morilton, Ark.

Cough Medicine

"I have been afflicted with asthma for forty years. Last spring I was taken with a violent cough, which threatened to terminate my days. Every one pronounced me in consumption. I determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Its effects were magical. I was immediately relieved and continued to improve until entirely recovered."—Joel Bullard, Guilford, Conn.

"Six months ago I had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs, brought on by an incessant cough which deprived me of sleep and rest. I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief until I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few bottles of this medicine cured me."—Mrs. E. Colburn, 19 Second St., Lowell, Mass.

"For children—afflicted with colds, coughs, sore throat, or croup, I do not know of any remedy which will give more speedy relief than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have found it also, invaluable in cases of Whooping Cough."—Ann Lovells, 1252 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
