

Seizure Of Suez Canal May Mean Fall Of Nasser Soon

By STAN SWINTON
ROME (AP) — Gamal Abdel Nasser's nationalization of the Suez canal may well bring about his fall from power before many months.

That is the opinion of Middle East experts who have been in on the spot contact with Egyptian developments for several years. Anti-Western elements in the Arab world outside Egypt—and particularly the Arab refugees who lost their Palestinian homes when Israel was created—enthusiastically support President Nasser. Each new Nasser action against the West wins their cheers. But Nasser never has been able to win over his own people because of internal problems which receive little attention abroad.

Even before Nasser nationalized the Suez canal and Britain retaliated by freezing Egypt's sterling balance, the Egyptian economic situation was bleak. The highly publicized Nasser revolution has failed to produce economic reforms which would have raised the abysmal living standard of the Egyptian peasant. Financial restrictions and red tape have choked Egyptian commerce. Interference in commerce by economically ignorant army officers has led the Nile republic close to disaster.

In a country where economic development was urgent, Nasser has depleted foreign exchange balances to purchase guns and planes. The cost of living remains high. Unemployment has been widespread. Land reform has reached only a fraction of the landless peasants. Even those who benefited have grumbled more than they have cheered over the clumsy way reform has been handled.

The United States' decision to withdraw financial support from the Aswan dam pulled the cornerstone from under Nasser's economic development program. Unless he can find some way to finance the dam, the growing Egyptian population faces increased unemployment.

This has dual significance: 1. Nasser's main enemies inside Egypt almost certainly will take heart and increase their efforts against him. These include those still loyal to the old Wafd party of Mustafa Nahas, others never reconciled to the removal of Gen. Mohammed Naguib from power, and still others who feel that the revolutionary clique now in power is ruining the country financially.

2. To repress this growing opposition, Nasser must depend increasingly on dictatorial devices—the brute strength of the army, rabble-rousing speeches to arouse hatred against the West and fewer civil liberties. This increases internal unrest.

ENEMIES WITHIN
An important factor little appreciated abroad is the Egyptian belief that the West has decided that Nasser must go. It is true that British influence has declined in the post-war years. Yet Egyptians still have an exaggerated conception of secret British power. Many believe in their hearts that Britain still can drive any Arab leader from power—and they do not want to be on the losing side.

Moreover, Nasser has made a poor show abroad. The much-touted Briol conference, where he met with President Tito of Yugoslavia and Prime Minister Nehru of India, cost Nasser prestige. Nehru clearly emerged as the strongest figure. Privately, both Yugoslavia and Indians expressed surprise at the lack of background knowledge on world problems displayed by Nasser. In the neutralist camp a feeling arose that he was a man of limited ability and foresight whose survival in power for any long period was questionable.

None of his enemies can shake Nasser from power without support from the army. The strong man still can count on his old friend, Gen. Abdel Hakim mer, commander-in-chief of Egyptian armed forces, at some 300 other key officers who supported the Nasser revolution have been removed from their commands and given civilian jobs. Some older career officers privately resent this government — by junior-officers. If he should decide to oppose Nasser, the issue might be resolved quickly.

SCENES AT LAST ST. ANNE'S

5,000 Attend St. Anne's Day Celebrations At Lennox Is.

A record crowd estimated at upwards of 5,000 people swarmed to the Mic Mac reservation on Lennox Island Sunday to take part in the annual celebration held in honor of St. Anne, the patron saint of the Indians.

Because of the unexpected numbers of vehicles, over 2,000 o'clock when hundreds of cars converged on the narrow road leading to the Port Hill wharf. The fields used for parking lots were filled to capacity; motorists parked their cars on both sides of the highway and were hampered slightly by a strong wind that resulted in a fairly heavy swell, but the boat trips nevertheless were enjoyed by the majority.

Solemn High Mass was observed at 11.00 a.m. on the grounds surrounding the shrine of St. Anne, the celebrant being Rev. Fr. MacIntyre, Egmont Bay, Deacon, Rev. Phelan MacKenna, Alberton, sub-deacon Rev. R. Phelan, Basilica Charlottetown. Master of ceremonies Rev. R.P. Murnaghan, Grand River. The sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. McKenna. Due to an oversight the basting racks used in the preparation of barbecued chicken were not

Wheat And Passengers Pace Montreal Harbor For Top Year

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
MONTREAL (CP)—Wheat and passengers are pacing Canada's biggest harbor toward a record season.

The Montreal waterfront is humming steadily and the activity extends generally along the wide expanse of the St. Lawrence shipping lanes.

Ten of the 16 vessels making scheduled St. Lawrence River calls came to Montreal. An 11th will start in November. Two are spanking — new, the Empress of Britain of the Canadian Pacific Fleet, capacity 1,000, and the Cunard Steamship Line's Carinthia, carrying 910.

Supply runs to the remote north shore area of the St. Lawrence, to power, aluminium and mining developments, are ahead of last year's schedule.

Shipments will perk up with the strike settlement, a company official said Friday. The achieved target last year was 7,500,000 tons—2,000,000 via the St. Lawrence River inland and the remainder by the American seabor.

Mock A-Blasts In War Games

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer
CAMP GAGETOWN, N. B. (CP)—The enemy "Fantasian" forces sliced deep into democratic Blue-land Sunday, wiping out one front and badly crippling others as bitter atomic warfare gripped Exercise Morning Star in the fourth day of mock warfare.

There was no immediate estimate of the number of "dead" and "wounded," but one front was reported to have been completely wiped out. The fighting front now forms a jagged line across this big training camp.

A Blue-land dispatch rider, carrying papers indicating the locations of some unit headquarters, was captured by the aggressive Fantasians Sunday. Many other prisoners were taken by both sides.

MOCK A-BLASTS
Simulated atomic explosions, coupled with the boom of Sabre jets breaking the sound barrier, rippled through the wooded hills as ground forces let loose with barrages of harmless explosives in retaliation. Sabres and navy planes dashed high in the sky in serious-looking dogfights.

On the ground Fantasians troops wearing American-style uniforms with yellow crosses, moved in huge convoys down road arteries into Blue-land territory. They followed big tanks and bren gun carriers. On one front Brig. J. V. Alard, commander of the 3rd Brigade, pulled his Blue-land troops into withdrawal shortly before the Fantasians wiped out the area with an atomic blast. But the Fantasians advance was held up on that front while engineers replaced bridges that Blue-landers blew up.

The Blue-land forces are under the overall command of Maj.-Gen. J. M. Rockingham whose 10,000-man 1st division forms both armies. The enemy Fantasians are led by Lt. Col. G. C. Corbould of New Westminster, B. C.

STEP UP TEMPO
The battle, almost as realistic as actual warfare, increased its intensity during the weekend, and the 200-man umpire staff were kept busy along the front, tagging hundreds of dead and wounded. Tanks, tagged at Le-land repair, lined roadides and crippled gun carriers and trucks were pushed to one side. After a reasonable period of time the men and vehicles will be returned to action as replacements.

Crews of the managed vehicles were using the time to catch up on their sleep, but the foot soldiers were still stealing their way down fields and highways and carrying all regular battle equipment and live on battle rations.

No serious injuries have been reported since the exercise started but forward medical units said they cared for some minor bumps and bruises. One soldier crept his jeep into a 2½-ton truck and went through the windshield, but escaped with a scratched chest. Most of the "patients" brought to the units are tokens and undergo the regular examination in the dugouts.

Five New Hotels In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Tourist director O. L. Vardy predicts Newfoundland's $5,000,000 tourist industry will increase by $10,000,000 within five years.

The big increase will come, he says, when five new hotels are built across the province by Trans-Canada Development Company and other tourist accommodations are completed. So far the provincial government has not been encouraging tourists to visit the island because of accommodation difficulties.

Trans-Canada Development has already started a 100-room hotel in Grand Falls and construction of a 50-room hotel was scheduled to start this month in Gander. A 50-room hotel is due for construction in Port Aux Basques, later this year along with a 75-room hotel at Stephenville. A 200-room hotel in St. John's is planned by the company for 1958.

Mr. Vardy says he expects large numbers of tourists when these new accommodations are ready and highways are built and improved.

France Supports Algerian War
PARIS (AP) — Premier Guy Mollet won a vote of confidence Saturday on a plan for financing the war in Algeria, and outlined his terms for ending it.

The financial plan is designed to raise about $428,000,000, half the extra amount needed this year to keep some 500,000 men under arms in North Africa. It is based on a bond issue, despite warnings from economists that loans should not be used to cover deficits.

Terms of the bond issue have not yet been announced, but few people think it can produce the sum wanted. It that case a series of six taxes will go into effect, one by one, until the difference is made up. These are costly
