THE PROSPECTS AT GEORGE-TOWN.

The Advertiser says: There is a fair prospect of a large amount of shipping being done at this port and the outlying ports before the close of navigation. The schooner "J. M. S.," owned by John M. Stewart, Esq., is about commencing to load with potatoes and oats for Havana. Messrs. A. A. McDonald & Bros. have chartered the brig, "G. W. Wakefield," owned by John LeBrocq, Esq., and intend loading her with potatoes and oats for Great Britain. Their new brig, "Archibald," will proceed shortly to Cardigan Wharf, to take in oats for the old country. The brig, "Assyrian," also owned by them is expected to arrive here about the middle of November, when she will be loaded with produce at this port and will be loaded with the European mail Montague Bridge for the European market. Mr. Gordon will immediately after her arrival here, load the brig, "Sirius," with timber and grain for the home market. There are numerous others which will be engaged in loading in a short time both at Cardigan and Montague Bridges. At present quite a number of vessels have gone up to Montague Bridge to take in cargoes. Among them we learn the new brig, "Shamrock," owned by Owen Connolly, Esq., Charlottetown. Capt. Senesbaugh is having a fore-hold house built on the deck of the brig, "William," and has concluded to load her with oats both here and at Montague Bridge, for a European port. Messrs. McLure Bros. and A. J. MacLennan & Co. have commenced loading the brig "Gavin" with produce. The barque "J. W.," owned by Captain Westaway, discharged a cargo of coal in New York, and is at present receiving a cargo of grain for the United Kingdom.

INTERVIEW BETWEEN THE SULTAN AND THE PATRIARCH.

At an interview with the Sultan recently accorded to Monsignor Nerses, the Armenian Patriarch, much was said on both sides of the fidelity of the Armenian subjects of the Porte, and of the reward which are in store for them. The Patriarch said: "Majesty! All the thoughts of my nation are fixed upon you and upon your army, for whose success we never cease to pray, forgetting even ourselves in our anxiety for you." To this the Sultan replied: "Truly I groan continually over the miseries of the present time. I, who would not willingly tread upon an ant, am deeply grieved that so much innocent blood is being shed. But God knows that I am not responsible for this horrid war. You are the greatest of Monarchs, sire," replied the Patriarch. "You have surpassed all your predecessors who ascended the throne of Osman in prosperous times whilst you have crowned the Ottoman flag with glory in the midst of trials and difficulties of every kind. Since you ascended the throne you have not had an instant of repose; and it is in this that your greatness consists. The entire nation prays night and day for the success of your arms and for the termination of these disastrous days in order that your Majesty may be able to fulfil the promises made to your solemn Hatt, and devote yourself to the development of agriculture, commerce, art and education." "I am entirely satisfied with my Armenian nation," said the Sultan. "I thank the Armenians with all my heart, and I desire you to convey to the Armenian nation the expression of my satisfaction and the assurance of my regard. I make no distinction between Mahometans and Christians. All are Ottomans. Their religion is between them and their God. I have given them the Constitution (the Sultan used here the French word) in order that they may all prosper in fraternal equality." The Patriarch then offered up a long prayer for the preservation of the Sultan's life, for the success of his armies, and the accomplishment of his great designs. The Sultan listened with his hands crossed on his breast and his bowed down as if in prayer also.

COLONIAL TRADE.

We read in the Birmingham Post:—"The most serious question in connection with the Colonial trade of this country still is the ever-lengthening list of American-made goods which in Australia and New Zealand are gradually driving our English goods of the same description there. Every month adds to the list of American-made goods, and diminishes the list of English-made goods. The correspondent of a leading mercantile firm here says, 'Sydney swarms with representatives of American houses,' and their offers are so tempting that very many lines are now being ordered direct from American makers, and do not come through the English merchants' hands. This is of course, to be expected. The Americans plainly say they mean to have the trade of Australia and New Zealand, and they are gradually, but very surely, carrying their threat into execution. At the present rate it will not be many years before these splendid markets will be lost to England."

In the proposed new Roman Catholic hierarchy for Scotland, the Primate or Metropolitan is to be styled "Archbishop of St. Andrews." He will, however, reside in Edinburgh. The suffragan sees are to be those of Glasgow, Lismore, or Fort William, Aberdeen and Moray.

Miscellaneous News.

Gilman, the New York forger, is a nephew by marriage of Henry Ward Beecher.

An entire square in the town of Cham Lake, Mich., was burned on Monday. Loss $40,000. Insured $15,000.

Pesth journals announce the discovery of traces of the thieves who, in 1875, stole bonds to the value of 1,000,000 florins in England. A London householder is said to be the person principally concerned.

A firm of undertakers in San Francisco caters to the desire of its poor patrons by hiring to them a very costly coffin. After the funeral is over the body is secretly transferred to a cheap coffin and buried.

Dr. James Dannigan, a St. Louis physician, has been held on a charge of manslaughter in the fourth degree, for administering six hypodermic injections of morphine to a patient, who died six hours afterwards.

A new church, built at the sole expense of Lord Skelmersdale, at a cost of between £5,000 and £6,000, was opened on Monday, at Dalton, near Wigan. At the subsequent luncheon, Lord Skelmersdale said he wished it to be understood that all the sittings in the church were free and open for ever.

Among the novelties at the coming Paris Exhibition will be a youth of fourteen, with feet shaped precisely like his hands. He can use them for the same purposes, and plays upon the piano with both hands and feet, having a peculiar chair which enables him to curl his body into the necessary position.

The seven-legged horse belonging to the Great London Circus and Sanger's British Menagerie died the other day in a New York stable. It was recently bought in Vermont for $3,500, and was brought to this city to be exhibited next Monday evening at Gilmore's Garden. Other horses have had three legs; others perhaps five or six; but it is confidently believed that no other horse has, and that none of those who have gone to their rest ever had, seven.

Referring to the Indian policies advocated by Lord Dufferin at Winnipeg, the New York World, in a recent editorial, says:—How singular and complete is the contrast between this Canadian policy and our own! What American statesman, writing or speaking of our Indians, would allude to or regard them as "fellow-citizens," or contemplate them as an "appreciably advantageous element in the economical structure" of the country?

Within a few miles of the furniture town of Evansville, Ind., are a three-legged dog, a pet hog with no eyes, a man who is about to marry his daughter-in-law's sister, two other men who have wedded each other's daughters; a young man who has espoused the mother of his deceased wife, and several variations of the Enoch Arden type.

Ned Gausby, colored, has been arrested for burglary at Atlanta, and on looking up his record it was found that he owed the State some service—156 years of it, in fact, having four times escaped from jail—namely, when sentenced to a ninety-nine years term for murder and three terms of twenty years each for a homicide and two burglaries.

An indignant lady writes to the Hartford Times: "The Club a success? To be sure it is. Hartford would be nowhere without the Club. It makes everything pleasant. Keeps men at home evenings. Makes things cheerful for wives. Promotes hospitality. 'Makes more drunkards than all the saloons?' No, indeed. Drunkenness at the Club, perish the thought. Show us a case if you can. 'Talk gossip there?' Men talk gossip anywhere! Never! Nobody but women do that."

With fine weather Cleopatra's Needle should have arrived in England about October 11th.

The Times understands that at the present time lime blossoms, elder flowers, wild roses and sweet peas are in full bloom at Balmoral, at Braemar, and elsewhere in the neighbourhood. At the same time the trees are already assuming their autumn tints; but the heather is still coming out fully in sheltered places.

A man named Hunter died at Sanderson, after having walked 168 miles in 48 hours—ten miles further than Weston. He died three days after the feat.

Mr. Gladstone is about to visit Ireland for the first time.

Bristol is at present spending £2,500 a year upon free libraries. The Corporation have just opened the fourth or south branch of the public free libraries, containing 8,000 volumes.

REAL CANNIBALS.—Real cannibals have been discovered by missionaries on the islands of New Britain and New Ireland, of the north-east coast of New Guinea. These natives are rude savages of the Oriental negro type, who live more like beasts than human beings. Rev. George Brown, a Wesleyan missionary, reports that he saw women roasting the leg and thigh of a man who had been killed in a fight. In another hut smoke-dried human flesh was hanging. In another he counted thirty-five jaw bones of men and women. Cannibalism seemed to be common in all the islands, not as a religious rite, but as an ordinary means of subsistence. The natives assured the missionary that the accounts heretofore published of a race of tailed human beings were true, and were certain that these strange creatures were not monkeys.
