

Can. Premiers Meet in Hfx.

Accompanied by Provincial Secretary J. Davie Stewart and Provincial Treasurer M. Alban Farmer, Premier Walter R. Shaw, plans to leave Sunday to attend the Canadian premiers conference in Halifax.

A number of items that were brought up at last year's meeting in Victoria will again be on the agenda.

The premier expects that such items as: uniformity in education, co-ordination of tax legislation, unemployment assistance, economic and industrial growth, recreational truck licensing and the Confederation Memorial Building project will come under discussion.

property is being considered, although it is known the owner has been approached and asked to set a price for it.

Charlottetown had originally intended purchasing or expropriating the Scantlebury property on Kent Street opposite another tract adjoining City Hall, which was recently purchased. This property, which currently houses the Hennessey Funeral Home, is expected to provide civic parking in the near future.

When plans for the Scantlebury property met opposition, civic authorities dropped them and started looking for other possible sites.

Can. Housing Resumption

Costing Investigation

Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet to conduct a survey was engaged yesterday that it is possible the original Charlottetown Housing Study Conference will be reconvened for the purpose of discussing the improvement of housing conditions in the city, with emphasis on the low-income brackets.

The conference was originally called by Mayor Gaudet soon after he started his first term as chief magistrate, and resulted in a three-way agreement between the City, provincial government and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in which a qualified man

After several delays, the survey report was made public. But Mayor Gaudet publicly expressed dissatisfaction with it, as he maintained it was more a planning survey report and did not provide the city with the housing information it needed.

BY-LAW SOUGHT

The subject was under discussion at a City Council meeting in June, and it is expected that in the next few months when Council is in session, the city will attempt to pass a by-law regulating conditions of rental property.

At that time, it was agreed by Council to request the two main welfare agencies in the city to co-operate by supplying the city with information in their possession relating to rented properties which they consider unfit for human habitation or inadequate to provide decent living conditions.

It is believed the agencies have now made available a list of such places. As a result, it is thought likely the city will soon make its first move to eliminate sub-standard housing in the city.

Although the original idea, as set forth in the election platform of the present Mayor, was to plan for adequate housing for senior citizens, this has had to be abandoned, at least temporarily.

PROVINCIAL GOVT MOVES

In the meantime, the provincial government, through the department of welfare, has moved into the housing field through building several group developments to house older people.

Because of this development, it is believed the department of welfare has suggested the municipalities withdraw from that particular housing field.

If and when the city does move into the matter of housing, then condemnation and expropriation proceedings might logically follow.

This just might be of double benefit to the city, in that any such places condemned and cleared would provide possible civic parking sites.

MARE PARKING SPACE

In the latter field, it is believed the city is planning an offer of additional property to be used for parking areas. No hint has been given, as yet, as to what

Waterfront Trusteeship Is Expected

OTAWA (CP)—The government will likely announce today that it intends to impose a trusteeship on waterfront trade unions, a reliable source says.

But the enabling legislation will probably be left for action after the summer recess.

The source said constitutional difficulties are delaying immediate legislative action to place three trustees in fact and five waterfront unions representing more than 21,000 sailors, enlisting and dock officers on Canadian ships.

Prime Minister Pearson has announced a statement in the Commons today on the government's plan to deal with terror, violence and lawlessness on the Great Lakes waterfront.

The police officer said that while he fully realized the seriousness of the charges and did not wish to influence the court, he felt that a long prison term at Dorchester would do the accused no good, because of the contact with others who were not first time offenders.

He went on to say that the major problem of the accused was that the company he kept, and the fact that he was unable to find employment when his first came home from Ontario.

He added that Blackbird has been co-operative with the police when arrested, readily admitting his part in the offense. This, he said, is the first time the policeman rebuffed "the first step towards rehabilitation."

Magistrate Johnston said that, because of the number and seriousness of the charges, he could not possibly give a suspended sentence, but would allow the accused to serve his five year term concurrently in Queens County Jail.
