THE CHEMICAL POLICE.

HOW THE GREAT FOOD INSPECTION WORK IS DONE IN PARIS.

Analyzing Bread and Hubs—The Public is a Large Patron of the Institution Bringing Patented Toys, Cakes, Etc. For Tests.

"The Municipal Laboratory," said a play which, from the pen of Ida M. Farber in the "Paris" Magazine, "is a chemical police service. It exercises a surveillance over men, it exercises one over economic matters. It searches for poisons, microbes and adulterations, just as the ordinary police searches for assassins, thieves and embezzlers."

cholera microbes both might pass through a baking unharmed. When this was established, the inspectors began a vigorous campaign against the bakers, destroying them from the foundations.

The importance of this superintending is evident when it is remembered that in Paris no one bakes at home, and that bread and pastry are all ways bought. Nothing could be more inviting than the public bachelors and pastries. They are models of neatness, good taste, and tempting displays. But "things are not always what they seem," and there are more points to be seen in the shops than the water with which the bread is mixed.

The flour gives the Municipal Laboratory no little trouble. It is found mixed with sand, chalk, plaster, alum, phosphate of lime, carbonate of magnesium, even sulphate of copper. Wheat flour is adulterated with cheaper kinds, as rye, barley, corn, peas, beans, lentils, rice, millet, buckwheat, potatoes, even with fine sawdust. Then butter is replaced by oleo-margarine; the sugar with that "sweetened illusion" saccharine. If the cakes escape the adulterated flour, butter and sugar, they still run the chance of being colored with some injurious substance. A cake is a work of artistry in Paris. It imitates everything created or manufactured, from a canary bird to a Swiss chalet. To carry out such ambitious designs, colors must be employed, and frequently they are poisonous. In order to draw the attention of the inspector away from the weakest spot in the stock, the agent must match address with address. In case fraud is found in any of the pastries articles, it is confiscated on the spot.

The first point is regulated by establishing shops especially for the sale of household articles. Or, if a shop is not in a regularly licensed butcher's shop, by requiring that it should be placed under the supervision of the inspector. The meat costs about half as much as in London.

I was particularly struck by the number of cooking utensils in use in one of the rooms at the laboratory. "Confiscations of the inspector," said the chemist.

"Do you survey kitchens then?" "Certainly," he responded. "Every dish used in a public restaurant of Paris either in the kitchen or for the table, every pot, pan, and tin in the bakeries; and every bar faucet in the wine shop—in short, everything used in preparing food is under the care of the inspector. The law forbids the use of lead, zinc, and galvanized iron in the manufacture of cooking vessels. In order that all copper vessels be cleaned and kept in good condition, it directs that pottery which is covered with a glaze containing enough oxide of lead to give a leaden tinge to the food, is to be removed; never to be soldered on the inside, and that the materials used in their manufacture be conformed to a certain standard. It is the inspector's business to look after all these things."

"And the results?" "That depends. There are establishments in Paris like the great restaurants which employ a skilled tinner regularly, and their utensils are always kept in order. In many other shops kept by women the copper vessels are the pride of the establishment, but in many others they are, unhappily, neglected. In 1889, out of two hundred and fifteen samples analyzed here, ninety-seven contained lead."

For the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava only one Victorian cross was awarded in the office. It was given to Lieut. A. R. Durno, who saved the life of a non-commissioned officer by cutting down three Russian lancers, and later in the battle also saved the life of a private. The decoration was recently sold at public auction in London.

The bedrooms of the Orient are far different from those of Christendom. Fully half the women of that part of the world sleep upon the floor or the ground, and even the richest of the ladies of Asia have never known the luxury of hair mattresses and spring beds. Most of these Mongolian beauties do not know what a feather pillow means, and the Japanese pillow consists of a lump of wool about the size of a loaf of bread, with a piece of soft paper tied on the top of it, so that it will fit into Yum Yum's neck and prop her head off the floor.

William Black, the novelist, does his literary work in a room at the top of his house above the noise of the street and away from all unnecessary interruptions.

Plain Living and High Thinking.

The two go together. But high living cannot be associated with high thinking. It utterly deranges the system and makes mental labor of any kind an effort. It leads to dyspepsia, indigestion, may be completely cured, as it has been in hundreds of cases, by a systematic course of Hawker's liver pills. They are sold by all druggists.

Your home tells the stranger what you are. What kind of a reputation does it give you?

A Railway Manager says: "In reply to your question do my children object taking Scott's Emulsion, I say No! On the contrary, they are fond of it, and it keeps them pictures of health."

The faces of the Astor family are valued at $300,000, and those of the Vanderbilts at $500,000. The Pope's lake treasures are said to be worth $75,000, those of the Queen of England $75,000, and those of the Princess of Wales $250,000.

Priestley's Cravenettes are really the only satisfactory goods for ladies' waterproof garments. They come in Navy, Merve, Brown, Grey, Casto and Black. The name of Priestley is so well known that a manufacturer of high dress materials that Cravenettes bearing this name and rolled on the Varnished Board may all ways be relied upon.

The sweepings of the Denver mint which have been accumulating for years, were washed recently and yielded $3,000 worth of gold.

Ladies desirous of sending their children to Mr. Earle's music school next term will greatly oblige by making application to him, once as he will have only a few vacancies outside of his regular pupils. ## Broken in Health

That Tired Feeling, Constipation and Pain in the Back Appetite and Health Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mr. Chas. Steele, St. Catherine's, Ont.
"I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass."
"For a number of years I have been troubled with a general tired feeling, shortness of breath, pain in the back, and constipation. I could get only little rest at night on account of the pain and had no appetite whatever. I was tired in my limbs that I gave out before half the day was gone. I tried a great number of medicines but did not get any permanent relief from any source until, upon recommendation of a friend, I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, with which I used before at once. I have continued its use, having taken three bottles, and I feel like a new man. I have a good appetite, feel as strong as ever, I have my sleep, and enjoy perfect rest at night. I have much pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla. CHARLES STEELE, with Eric Treves, St. Catherine's, Ontario."
Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy on the action. Sold by all druggists. elee.
